Thread: Rep in order to post in Marketplace

Dylan25079 - July 6, 2014, 11:30 pm

I don't understand why someone needs rep to post, Because just because you have rep doesn't mean that person won't scam etc.

Can anyone explain why you need rep to post in Marketplace and nothing else?

A Fox - July 6, 2014, 11:31 pm

To prevent someone with a brand new account posting in the marketplace..?

Yes, but someone can make a brand new account and have a friend "rep" them.

Stop complaining about rep. Earn some by being HQ .

No one can be trusted on the internet in my honest opinion, despite the amount of 'rep' they have. I do however see the reason as to why people need reputation to post in the marketplace. If this rule wasn't in place, new members like yourself and I could come here, intentionally to scam someone.

It's another necessary layer of security.

That section would be terrible with a bunch of new accounts, the one rep helps filter a lot of bad traffic. Even if people are able to "bypass" it, it still stops a lot of accounts and makes it more difficult overall.

It's probably to ensure people won't scam as a new member.

Dylan25079 - July 6, 2014, 11:39 pm

Why are these people repping me and negative repping me? I wasn't asking for rep, I was asking a question.

I was just neutralizing it all, seeing that you weren't asking for rep.

Thank you, I was going to PM you asking who to PM to get it removed, but I didn't have 25 posts to PM.

RelationShit - July 6, 2014, 11:41 pm

Even if you had 1 rep
And posted on there..

You would still need 25 posts to be able to PM the people that want to be in contact with you about your product/service. ?

Edit: seems like you found out, nvm.

This is actually keeping me entertained.

Why is this keeping me entertained?

I'm going to go play games.

b?xxy - July 6, 2014, 11:42 pm

This is just to prevent spam, and also for the people who have negative reputation to keep them out.

Hey you nub, PM me, I have a question and I'll PM you once I get the 25 post;p

Now why are people negative repping? I never asked for rep, smh. This is ridiculous.

Here's a Tip fear all ub3r's they are evil people, I can't even trust myself because all ub3rs are devil worshipers. Just look at that evil skull on my name!! Omg

420 Blaze It - July 7, 2014, 12:02 am

They should actually change it to 10. In case they get repped by a friend.

It's simply just a precaution. But it's true, lots of rep doesn't mean the person won't scam.
