Thread: In Desperate Need of Access To This Website's Admin Panel.

Skulk - July 9, 2014, 3:36 pm

Hey guys, so this is a very long story and I'm posting this for a friend of mine that is in deep trouble.

He had an account on this website.

And he posted some girls that he knew in real life so that the users of the site could photo shop her head onto nude photos so that they looked real, and they did.

She eventually found the photo and last night contacted him about it, infuriated. She states that he has 24 hours from 8 PM Pacific Time last night to remove the images or she will file a civil law suit against him.

Now here's the kicker, his forum account is banned and there's only one admin on the site that is able to remove posts. I've already made an account of my own and asked nicely for him to remove the images, but he ignores my PMs. I'm currently holding the site offline for about 30 minutes at a time, then I let it on and ask if he's going to remove it, when there's no response, I re-send the attack.

The forums are very simplistic and basic and should be easy to get into. I just have absolutely zero knowledge about SQLi or anything like that.

If someone could please do this for me I'd really appreciate it.

PM me for specific details.

Where is the image hosted? Try to get the host to remove the image for child pornography.

EDIT: Or if its a adult just say for nudity.

The images are hosted on the website. I'm not sure where to report them to.

The website is terribly put together but ridiculously active.

Your friend is perfectly perfectly fine, and has nothing to panic about really.

Firstly, I don't know how she even managed to find the pictures - But what he did wasn't illegal.

It's not harassment, and the pictures aren't real. There's similar sites, and celebrities aren't able to take any action against forged pictures because they're not real, and it's clearly stated that they're not real.

All in all what he's done isn't illegal, and the bitch is just pissy that someone has fake nudes of her. She's bluffing, and even if she isn't she can't do anything.

1: Photoshop is perfectly legal.

2: Your friend didn't even make the pictures. Other users did. He's not accountable for their actions. If he were to ask for CP, he'd most likely get in trouble. But if anyone actually posted it providing it for him, they would likely be the ones to get fucked.

I've reported the website to spam404 for child pornography, also I tried to lookup where the website was hosted but I got redirected to <http://myprivacy.net/> that keeps information private. I'll see if I can find anything else.

There's been a slight snag in Arcane's progress. So if someone thinks they can remove ONE picture on ONE link from this small shitty forum, PLEASE PM me.

AnonFreeworld - July 10, 2014, 12:00 am

Can I get the sites url so I can see what's possible?

Skulk - July 10, 2014, 7:02 am

Ugh I still need someone to do this for me ASAP. Please ahah.

Evex - July 10, 2014, 7:05 am

I don't understand how she found out that he posted them there...

Yeah, me either.

When I asked him how she found it, he gives me a weird story about how one of her friends found it and then showed her but if you saw the website you'd know that she couldn't possibly find it on her own.

Even doing a reverse image search of the images doesn't pull them up.

I think he told someone thinking it'd be funny and word just spread quicker than he thought.

I did some WHOIS research for you and found out this:

Contact EasyDNS, maybe they can help you out. I am sure this kind of websites isn't allowed.

Thanks for that man. I saw that earlier and didn't really think anything of it but I've contacted them and sent them a super long essay haha.

Hopefully they take the links down and maybe even the whole site.
