Because he's the hero AA deserves, but not the one it needs right now. So we'll hunt him. Because he can take it. Because he's not our hero. He's a silent guardian. A watchful protector. A Dark Knight.

Why come to a section just to voice your obviously unpopular opinion. Nobody cares what you think, you are invited to leave and never come back.

Anyways, does anyone know how animes are funded? I'm confused as to how an anime is funded, is there crowd funding or is there a loan of some sort?

Basically it is about a Japanese businessman who is sucked into a life of violence. His view on life and his personality change as he begins to experience life through the complete opposite of what he was used to, working in a boring office from 9-9 and slaving over a job he hated.

I enjoyed it, but not nearly as much as I thought I was going to. Considering the high praise it received from being one of the best in the horror genre, I was hoping to be blown away. I've never watched an anime that had several arcs in one season; it has always been one cohesive story. Would it be better if I watched the second season to get a better understanding of the story?

I think I have to defend School Days at least once a month lol.

The shock and hatred you have right now is what the mangaka originally wanted. It was to super exaggerate what would happen and how teens modern life's are and how stressful they can be. I mean it's no secret that Japanese suicide rates are high and it's due to this pressure and that's what the mangaka aims to show.

Also, ratings dude.

Anyone watch older animes like Sailor Moon? One thing I've noticed is that everyone in an older anime's looks are inconsistent, I mean I know it has to be drawn but sometimes it gets down right weird. It even happened in Dragon Ball Z sometimes it felt like they'd change people who drew the characters every episode.

Can anyone else relate or am I just seeing things?

Totally relate. Some of my favorite anime such as Saikano, Maison Ikkoku, Lupin the Third and others have some odd looks every once and awhile.

You said it yourself, they had to be drawn, key frames were made, and usually an assistant will fill in between the key frames of a scene. I appreciate older series that used these techniques before digital, as CEL shading/coloring and animating then most likely took more time. If you wanna see a more modern anime film all drawn by hand that looks both consistent and beautiful, I suggest you watch Redline. You won't regret it.

Thanks as you can tell it means a lot to me, it may seem so minor, but sometimes they gaff so bad it ruins the characters image for you for ever. I'll take a look into Redline, and take your word that its art style will be cool!

To miss out on legendary stories because you don't love the art seems extremely shallow.

Take some of the short animations by Tekken for example: They're between 2 mins and like 7 mins. They're literally drawn with sharpie on paper, yet many of them have brought tears to my eyes and they're some of my favorite animations. You'd be missing out.

I was talking about the extreme. Notice how I said older hand drawn animes sometimes have this problem. Never once did I say I dropped a show because of it. Sure there are a few that are still hand drawn, but even so the problem is not so much as it use to be.

I've seen a few hand drawn animations that were extremely well done, and have prompted feels as well, but at the same time, sometimes these things just ruin the "feeling" of the anime if you know what I mean.

On episode 9, seems pretty fast paced. Everything is happening one after another. I think it needs 24 episodes, I feel as if a lot of important character development is missing. I guess it's good, can't judge it properly till I finish it though.

You have to give things a chance to develop, I know if you don't like something from the get-go it's easier to just drop, but at the same time if you'll never know if it turns into something you like if you don't watch.

Lucky, I'm stuck with "gourmet" microwave noodles, which must pale in comparison to hot fresh "non-preservative noodles." That being said it's cheaper so that's a plus.

I've thoroughly enjoyed:

Evangelion

Eureka Seven

FLCL

Cowboy Bebop

FMA

SAO

Elfen Lied

High School of the Dead

Also some scattered episodes of Gurren Lagann, Soul Eater, Bleach, Naruto (Please don't spring into elitist mode because I happen to have seen some episodes of a monumentally popular anime) Blood+, Rosario+ Vampire, Heaven's Lost Property, and Claymore.

I'm definitely open to suggestions based on my past watches.

Glasslip - WTF is wrong with the writers? The premise of the whole show was bad, they jumped way to quickly into the whole "relationships/romance" thing, sure the anime is about that but now they have backed themselves into a corner. How long can they draw out this relationship shit? Waaaa anon-kun doesn't like me, oh fuck off you man child.

There are so many things wrong with the show it's about as painful to watch as shitting out a sharpened piece of glass. May as well call it Glasshit because at least that way people will get the hint that this show and all of its characters are like a bunch of crusty turds marinating inside the bile of grease and scum in a mcdonalds washroom.

If you like this show please enjoy it, you may also enjoy having a person shove a cactus dildo up your ass.

Maybe when they get to a reasonable price and release to the general public, it could be a thing. Some kind of optimized visual novel would be sweet. It still needs some fixes I believe. I've heard it makes a large number of people nauseous during use so I hope that gets addressed.

I hope they make a Season 4.

Definitely pay for it since you can afford it. I have an account and I barely use it but since it supports the industry I don't mind. All the shows currently airing get uploaded to crunchyroll one hour after they are aired in Japan. That's about as good as it gets as far as I know.

Not really, puush doesn't capture right for me (it captures like 1/4 of my screen) so I have to use Print screen to capture, so images are always big unless feel like resizing (which is such a bother).

The whole point behind that cliffhanger was to get people to buy the novels, and continue where the anime left off that way.
They did their job well of making people want to buy novels.

I doubt they'll make a second season.

If they were to do that people would say stuff like "I won't read the novels, I'll just wait for the second season"

Which is dumb.

Because I need my damn lolis.

You're pretty optimistic if you're thinking that a season 2 would wrap it up, animes like that tend to go on for a while.

I wouldn't mind a season 2 though, NGNL was quite enjoyable.

You have a few choices, personally, I use CCCP with MPC-HC. Once you've gotten either of those installed to your preferences, simply press the "1" key on your keyboard and it'll become minimal. You do have a few options if you take a look at the following screenshot that is contained in the spoiler: \(Click to View\)

Your other alternative if you're looking for a sort of minimal option of watching anime is using PotPlayer with the following skin below:

No-no-no. Sleep when you can then wake up when you want to set that as the new time. Once you've woken eat breakfast. Your body and your brain then remember that as the new wake-up time.

Pretty fucking judgmental, thank you very much. Long story short I can't deal with girls who wear glasses. Anyways, most of the girls in anime who wear glasses fit an archetype of strong minded head of the class bitch who makes mine and others lives miserable because I like taking things slow and doing whatever I feel like doing.

Before I knew it, I had a dream to rape a bat

You have quite the refined taste, don't you? Wishing for a child you could rape and rape and rape...

Oh shit... I just popped a boner...

I can't hold back my Kool Aid smile

It feels like I'm fishing, I caught a cute girl with my cock!

Ooooh she's already wet even though she's a virgin

Fine young girl's pussy juices are worth their weight in gold after all

Just relax and accept the fact that you're getting raped, it's easier that way.

TASTE THE LEGENDARY PENIS THAT KILLED A WATER BUFFALO IN HIS HOMELAND!

AHH I'M COMING!! I'LL CUM DIRECTLY INTO YOUR ESOPHAGUS!

Seems my cock has given you the means to savor victory.

SATAN GUIDE MY COCK!!!

I pierce Senjougahara from behind, feeling each segment of her spinal column as I go

Irrespective of her will to continue, this cruel fucking gives both sides pleasure. This is the ultimate sandwich rape.

Good thing our parents shared syringes. DOUBLE RAPE TIME!

Everyone is training their asshole these days!

My eyeballs are not there to make your cock feel good! You got that?

Just SHUT THE FUCK UP and let me RAPE YOUR ASS

OOOOOH I'm getting squeezed by my little sister's ass pussy!

This is exactly why I can't stop raping elementary schoolgirls.

This is it...

I came with the force of one thousand suns.

I - I'm sorry I kind of raped you

Actually the thing is, even though I look like a normal person, people know which religion I came from, from my name. My surname is solely used for people of my religion. People here in India are way too judgemental and close minded. Although hardly anyone follows this rule but elders have divided the days like, you can't get haircuts on Monday, wash hair on Tuesday, eat non veg on Friday etc and if you'll do it, a curse will get upon you ?

Well it pretty funny how [censored] VPN replied within an hour and they have a lot of people contacting them and giving you a 1 year premium as a gift. While you have Crunchyroll who takes a long time replying and not giving a single fuck. I can image someone finding a exploit that give them access to the db and CR just give them a "thanks". Also, there is a glitch with CR if you use a VCC and get the free 15 trial of premium and have it auto-renew it won't charge and it like a unlimited account.

It is an anime lounge. The main topic is indeed anime. It doesn't affect anyone's conversation when a few posts go slightly off topic. Especially when they are members who have been around long enough to know the fucking rules.

Like I said previously, link your anime/manga list when asking for recommendations. Also, you should specify genres you're looking for.

I don't think it would become a video thread since you could discuss the one or many anime if it wins for the week. Not sure if you have can urls in the voting column, but it would only be two a week, and also users could submit their own AMVs if they wish.

As long as we still get the articles from the manga, vn, and animr of the week the weekly should be fine. You could also add the dates when current anime episodes will be aired, and give a quick 2 cents on one of the currently shown anime too.

And if we had artists (I know one or two people in AA could do this, not sure about the rest) we could include fan art too.

I'll definitely have a look at it, I know AMV's etc. are pretty popular amongst AA so I can see it being a popular section. Could even make it fan submissions like MVOTW and that saves us needing a extra staff member.

In that case I'll PM you my top 20 AMVs after I look for their links. The only thing that you should look out for if you add this to AA weekly (other than atrocious editing) would be major spoilers.

I think I have a good competitor against Labyrinth, considered to be one of the most artistic AMVs made since the editor managed to supplement and make Shaft's visuals even more jaw-dropping.

He's such a shallow character though thats ruining things. Sinon has an interesting plot, Kirito just turns up and manages to be good at everything. "Shit I need money, oh right yeah I can beat this game no one else can and no one else has figured out even though millions of people play". "Shit we need to get somewhere quickly, luckily I can drive these things no one else can". It's just a lot of bullshit, its like the writers just said "fuck it, let Kirito solve all problems and fuck the rest of the cast".

Currently watching Katanagatari and The Tatami Galaxy, and Zankyou no Terror later hopefully!! personally thought the Rebellion ending was brilliant, it's certainly not what you expect and it really spices up things quite a bit. I loved the fact that there was actually a huge amount of foreshadowing to that ending throughout the entire movie, but it never really became apparent until it happened. It also improved Homura's character development by quite a bit. All in all it just made perfect sense and I felt crushed when it happened (that's a good thing).

Then again I'm a huge fanboy and I would've cried in joy over any ending they chose.

at the start of the first episode you will think: "another sword art-esque rip off... great."
however, if you keep watching you'll find that it is actually quite dark and gorey and then it just keeps getting better and better over the next few episodes.

It's not too uncommon to have female voice actors for young boys in anime

Something that's kinda interesting: You know the vocaloids Kagamine Rin and Len? They're both voiced by the same female voice actor, Asami Shimoda.

Pretty much this. Going back to early days of cartoon - many of the boys were voiced by girls as they give a more authentic, innocent tone. Think of Ash in Pokémon.

I started watching Bakemonogatari last Saturday and I finished watching the final episode today. I absolutely loved it; the art style was cool, the opening and ending songs were awesome (I liked how the opening changed based on which character was being focused on by the protagonist). The story kept me interested throughout watching all of the episodes.

My favourite part:

Spoiler (Click to View) It was the episode where Senjogohara takes Koyomi out on the date; the car ride with her dad was funny because of the dialogue between the characters and I liked the romantic scene near the end when they were looking at the stars and Senjogohara pointed out Deneb, Altair, and Vega and the other stars and I realized how it was related to the ending song.

I also finished xxxHOLiC and I liked it in terms of how each episode was solving a new problem that came their way. I liked the themes it had when it revealed things about human nature through the clients that walk in the store.

I'm looking forward to watching the next season in the Monogatari series and the second season of xxxHOLiC!

Right now, I'm going to be finishing up Higashi no Eden and Witch Craft Works.

And also, I'm keeing up with Akame ga Kill (pretty good so far), Zankyou no Terror (which is amazing so far!) and Tokyo Ghoul (Tsukiyama Shu is hilarious XD)

Right now, I'm going to be finishing up Higashi no Eden and Witch Craft Works.

And also, I'm keeping up with Akame ga Kill (pretty good so far), Zankyou no Terror (which is amazing so far!) and Tokyo Ghoul (Tsukiyama Shu is hilarious XD)

I'll allow you to be my protege, your dedication is on point, we have similar tastes.

When a series is only 12 episodes long, then they didn't have the budget to make it a much longer series.

I am waiting for the tracker I use to go on and then I'll download the episodes I am missing.

It's definitely worth the watch. I wouldn't say it's a horror anime; more along the lines of a psychological thriller. Sadly, there aren't too many horror anime out there.

If you want that super creepy factor, then yes, watch Higurashi. Just make sure you understand how the story is told. Otherwise you'll be left scratching your head and shit won't really make sense.

I was a little put off by it too, but I think in the end that's what made it that much more creepy. The art style is really misleading but adds to the horror effect, in my opinion.

It's overlapping an image. I'll have to look into the CSS to see what image it is.

Taiga does have some features such as the HummingBird client updater. It's also able to be ran on the GNU/Linux platform and I believe OS X/Unix. But if you're just using MAL to track your anime, then MAL Updater is just the best. Plus, there's more features on MAL Updater than Taiga.

MalU does a better job at detecting anime folders than Taiga, but if you set Taiga up correctly it's much easier to use. It can even create subfolders for all the anime you download from its Torrents tab, while MalU can only download them to a set folder (unless this has been fixed since I stopped using it). Also Taiga looks more minimal so it gets bonus points in my book.

The Gamer isnt really good now. The author is unsure how to proceed. Han Jee Han's friend know more about games now than "The Gamer" himself. For example how he told him that he should stand back and spam it with magic while he tanks it and when he told the blue haired girl to not waste her points.

And the author has made it too easy for "The Gamer" (Han jee han) to get vitality and wisdom. Running for some hours and gains shitload of vitality is broken.

Btooom! Is the same as the game they play in hunger games. Im not sure why it didnt pop out in my head when i read your question.

Also i recommend reading the manga for Btooom! since it continues past the anime and it has better development. But the anime is really good too.

I haven't seen any discussions or anything on Akuma no Riddle. Has anyone seen it, if so what'd you think of it?

I felt it was a bit short, and perhaps there could have been more character development for Haru because I didn't find that she changed much if at all throughout the series.

I used to watch Ecchi/Harem's when I was a weeb like 4 years ago lol but it's something you grow out of. I watch/read things for the plot/art. Once you get past that stage, you start to realize how much effort get's put into a manga or an anime.

You start to appreciate it.

That's one thing everyone doesn't do. Many anime's these days start of good, develop a huge fan base, and it turns utter shit because they are whoring money out of the retarded fan base (Naruto fans pls).

Just finished D-Frag! and I absolutely loved it. One of the funniest anime I've ever seen. I just wish it had a little more romantic development but it is what it is. Hopefully there will be a season 2.

Think I'm going to start GJ-bu next.

Started Ccubed, looking nice with the cute girls.

Also working on the front end on my site.

What is everyone else up to?

Please don't watch C^3, it is probably the shittiest anime I have ever seen in my entire life. I too fell into the "cute girl" trap, but it turned out to be so terrible. It's just a super mediocre ecchi with shitty played tropes, and predictable, shoddy writing. I'm just trying to save you some time, don't do it!

This is just my opinion of course.

Edit: Okay not the shittiest, but it's pretty bad.

Fan service? Not really.

I didn't notice any at all. Besides for maybe in the OVA.

Also, it was really unrealistic. There was a point where I couldn't take it seriously anymore. But its not real so whatever. It was good

Well if you went into an anime expecting it to be realistic you are going to have a bad time.

Also Revy? She wore one outfit the entire time which completely fit her persona.

At least choose actual fan service, such as the scenes in the OVA (warning Roberta's Blood Trail spoilers):

Or you have been watching too much Naruto.

I want to re-watch the show first though. I'll get to it... probably never.. I watch stuff so slow..

Someone fill me in on what Madoka is about?

It looks like a girly anime. No offense yo.

EPIXIA???? - August 3, 2014, 11:23 pm

Eh.. different genres? I haven't watched much action. the other ones were supernatural, or just in a comedic way that isn't meant to be taken seriously.

seriously.

Black Lagoon is actually recognized as one of the go to action anime for people new to the genre.

I guess it would be new if you went from watching Clannad to it.

It looks like a girly anime. No offense yo. Madoka is a thriller which pretty much takes the Mahou Shoujo genre apart, it's supposed to look like a girly anime. It's really hard to explain without spoiling stuff. :/

I want to re-watch the show first though. I'll get to it... probably never.. I watch stuff so slow.. Instead of rewatching the show it'd probably be better to watch the movies. They miss some details (which isn't a problem if you've watched the series) but the pacing is better in general. (iirc it's a bit shorter as well)

It's a magical girl show, but it gets very dark pretty quickly.

I'll just say this: Gen Urobuchi did the Script and Series Composition, and if you know anything about Gen Urobuchi, you'll know it likely won't be a girly care-free show.

If you don't know Gen Urobuchi, then here's a review of a visual novel he made:
<http://kotaku.com/saya-no-uta-the-song-of-saya-the-kotaku-review-509012142>

I'd recommend trying it out. I'm not sure when the switch happens, but watch at least 3 eps.

Looks girly, but is in fact a pretty dark show. Don't let appearances fool you. To put it shortly, it's a deconstruction of the magical girl genre, and is a very enjoyable and extremely well made show, produced by SHAFT and features music composed by the great Yuki Kaijiura. I'd definitely advise you to watch it. You're going to have to watch past episode 2 or 3 for things to get "dark". Protip: watch the Blu-Ray release for amazing visuals to accompany the beautiful soundtrack.
