It's just a .reg file which sets a DDoS protected proxy server in Skype?

Yes, fast and easy. There are so lazy people sometimes.

No, only if your IP is still in the database of the Skype resolver.

R?DSPY - July 26, 2014, 11:52 am

Will you be able to see who is connected to the proxy and their activities?

EDIT: It won't let me go online. Is anyone else getting this problem?

Danooned - August 25, 2014, 11:52 am

Uhm, got a little question, is this still working now?

Callam - August 26, 2014, 7:00 pm

All this does is make skype run through a proxy. If this proxy is down you can always go on websites like HideMyAss and get a free proxy to use from there.

I would note that you may have a slow/laggy experience if you choose a "bad" proxy.

Doesn't work, says something about not being able to change the registry.
