Gaming Forums ==- <https://www.gamingforums.net>

We have some general discussion forums for just relaxing and having fun.

About Us

Gaming Forums is a forum made by gamers, for gamers. Gaming Forums is here for people to have a chill time, to relax, to make new friends, to game with others and discuss on a variety of other topics. After you come home from a tiring day of work or school you'll want something to relax, lots of people talk to friends, go out, play on their console or PC, and our mission is to bring all of these things together. A community where you can meet gamers, interact with gamers and have a fun time. And hey, not interested in gaming? We have other forums too for a bit of chit chat, and we won't hesitate to make more if that's what people want to do.

Mission Statement

Our objective isn't to bring any other forum down, so don't make that out of my statement, but it's a fact that lots of boards start and end very quickly. Sometimes the members make excellent contributions, and one morning you're just trying to find something but you're greeted by a nice "Cannot connect to remote server" message by your browser, and that sucks because either that data was something you needed, or someone you wanted to talk to or whatever the reason is. And that sucks for me too, it happens so many times. We are a board here to stay. We've invested almost two thousand USD into this forum already, and won't hesitate to invest more. We aren't here for profit, if we were we'd probably just buy some normal domain, go ahead and use some free theme and launch, and that setup doesn't say anything about the community, nor how much fun you'll have there, that simply states that the forum may not have the backing to stay around. We have the money to make sure this forum isn't going anywhere, we want to make sure the site is fast, and hence we are optimised at blazing fast speeds and working hard to make sure we continue getting those quick speeds. We want to have a warm community, a community that can have a fun time, because at the end of the day this is all a way to seek entertainment. All the statistics of mine you see, post count and the lot, that's all because I was entertained by content and felt like participating in it, having a nice discussion and so on. We invest more money into R1Soft and a backup server than anything else to make sure your data is always there, and always there for a backup if there are ever any issues, we won't be going down any time soon. Surely we can't expect to make all our investments back soon enough (financially anyway). I've had a few concerns about people getting engaged into the board and the owner closing it down, that won't happen, my personal seal is on that.

None of our staff team will be standing on the other side of the path acting like they're any bigger than anyone else, including me. We want to be in the action and have fun ourselves, we chose gaming as our topic for that reason :) Please feel free to interact with us, have fun talking to us, and if need be act the same with us as you would anyone else, because quite frankly everyone can express their opinion to anyone else, as long as it's displayed in a mature way, no-threatening and abides by forum rules, and on that topic, we don't want to restrict anyone with a large chunky wall of text, we just want to make sure everyone has a safe and fun time, and acknowledge that we have a variety of different age groups and personalities, we are tweaked to suit everyone.

We've invested weeks into this, I've had this domain for two months or so now, and we've been wanting to make this for about three or so. That's quite a long time. We don't want to bust out with something half completed. We're here with the full experience we can provide.

What do we want?

What's the catch? I just want to assure you that we are going to stay, and stay in a way that isn't serious. Our boards remain professional, all official, permanent content is written to the best of our ability, professionally and the lot, but that doesn't mean that that's what we want from a forum. We want a chill time, we are loose people ourselves. I'm not here looking for mature people, perfect posts, picture perfect robots, we have enough bot spam for that (two spam threads every minute for the past month of board installation, eventually I got fed up and coded myself some ways to protect against it :P, nothing has gotten through since). We just want the followingA nice community

Active discussion on a variety of topics

A chill community, be yourself, relax, take some time to have a blast, go wild :-P

Feedback, we'd love to know where we can improve and what you think about us

What can we offer you?Friendly, fun atmosphere

Fun, involved staff team

A beautiful theme

Security and reliability

Every single one of our awards are achievable awards

Custom modules i.e Marketplace system

A growing community

Why Us

A thing I get told a lot is "gaming is a terrible niche", "saturated market". I really hate it when people call my idea a niche or a market. I'm not here to profit a great deal, and I don't consider that. I've made a couple of gaming suggestion threads here, some of which have been implemented and others died in the wave of suggestions, I really love gaming, I love discussing gaming just as much and honestly I think there are improvements that can be made as to how it sums up, and that's what I'd like to do here, an easy way to discuss games, organised and the lot but the main priority is simply fun.

We've been in planning for months, had the domain for two months. We've waited until we are sure the backend is secure enough, until we have a safe environment and are able to offer you our very best. We've started a short while ago and already got a growing community.

Our promise. We will not sell this forum. We will not give up. We will not sell our board to be merged. We will not employ new leadership teams, staff or so on for money. We will never be crazy money oriented. You will not find your efforts wasted.

Speedtests

please note that the test may just have been lucky, we usually get under 1 second American and European load time, and max 2 seconds for Amsterdam and Asia

Adjustments made, we're now loading just under 500ms for various American locations, and around 800ms for European locations. Image compression can save us another 60% of page loading time, that's very, very fast for the amount of content we have.

Latest Updates:

27 August 2014 - We have moved over to XenForo. We also now use FULL STRICT SSL. That means that you pass on data over to CloudFlare in a secure connection, and CloudFlare passes it to us in a secure connection. CloudFlare will only accept a valid SSL certificate. We use organisation level SSL certificates for this.

Due to moving to XenForo we lose functionality like awards, but honestly that's not a worry! I'm quite glad actually. I'm sick of forums trying to pull off a HF, usergroups, awards, all that stuff, make a few bucks and close down. Considering that, I'm glad we have what a forum board should be, not some bloated piece of software covered with layers of useless features. We are a forum, a place for gamers to interact, and we want members in general, whether gamers or not, to have fun communicating. They shouldn't aim to have the most decked out profile. In my opinion that's not right, and I don't see other big forums doing that.

30/08/2014 - A successful move! We have moved over to a new host, with more power and resources to make sure the site runs smoothly. With better connectivity too, this site is much faster off the bat, and with our own optimisations we have insanely fast pagespeeds.

(Jul 27, 2014 11:17 AM)Escrow Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) After a few days chatting with Robust about forums, MyBB and design topics I thought I'd write up a little review of gamingforums.net. The cost of this project was one of the first things that stood out to me. You see forums open and close every single day on HackForums. Often new and inexperienced members think that they can make some fast cash with a $5 webhost and generic domain but I can tell you for certain I have a good feeling about this forum.

The domain itself - gamingforums.net is perfect for this niche. You don't get such perfect domains like this without spending some serious money. The reason such domains are expensive is because they provide amazing SEO. I wouldn't be surprised to find this site on pagerank #1 within the coming weeks.

As for the actual site I can see that Robust has done everything in his power to ensure a stable and fast browsing experience. You wouldn't think it possible to have such a gorgeous looking site load so fast. The design is truly eye-candy. It's rare to see someone spend actual money on MyBB themes these days, many just rip their themes from other popular forums and hope no one will notice. Robust used one of the best, most talented designers in the business to craft and develop this amazing theme and it really shows.

Those of you looking for gaming discussion of all kinds really should check out the site, I doubt you'll be bored. There's a section for everybody - no matter what your tastes are. You like shooters? No problem. Prefer to role play? They've got that too. More of a casual gamer? I wasn't joking when I said they can cater to all interests.

It's early days, forums open and close all the time but this is certainly here to stay. Robust is a dedicated sysadmin with many years of experience under his belt I can tell. He's even taken the time to explain a few concepts regarding server setup that I was unsure of.

All in all I wish Robust and the team who helped to create gamingforums.net well. I rate the site a solid 9/10 - reaching 10 if Robust can make it through the early stages and pick up activity.

Two thousand into the forum? What did you spend that much on?

It can't be MYBB as that's free. It can't be the theme as its simply tranquil with some changes made.

Maybe from MYBB-Central although that's a $15 subscription. I guess it could be hosting but that's an outrageous amount for a start-up.

I don't mean to pry but I can't think where you spent all that money.

It's not tranquil with changes made? It's designed by Dynaxel (Jessie S.) and cost a couple hundred. Domain was around the thousand back. We invest quite a lot into R1Soft agent licences and also a powerful RAID backup server, a bit into pentesting and then subscriptions at various sites, add on our custom plugins being developed by various MyBB staff members, it would surpass the two thousand mark.

Yeah I imagined it would be the domain, that would be the big cost, should generate plenty of traffic. A lot of back end stuff makes sense then, but on the front end it was hard to visualise what it was spent on. What I was presented with didn't appear to be $2000 worth. But that was my perception of it, I was more curious about what it was spent on.

MoneyHoesNClothz - July 28, 2014, 2:55 am

I haven't registered but the site looks amazing and you already have a couple members. Goes to show how quality creates results.

One thing though, you have a lot of sub forums and not many threads. I would suggest you create some type of guide about each game/sub forum so that people have a reason registering. Since you have little to no content and users, posting some relevant content would be beneficial to getting some users. I have no experience with forums, so take my advice with a grain of salt. I just think it would help for gaining initial traction.

I don't have much interest in gaming anymore (except bf3 xD), but it looks great and I am confident you will have a huge community.

Good luck!

Bo Burnham. - July 28, 2014, 3:06 am

Going to register asap. I don't really like the gaming section here on HF so this is exactly what I need.

And, as everyone before me has stated, It looks so fucking good. Professionalism at its finest.

Doxicity - July 28, 2014, 3:10 am

Site looks very good. Although under RPG section you should include World of Warcraft, as it's quite popular.

You should include Starcraft 2 under Strategy, as it's also quite popular.

You could add Diablo 3 under Action, as it's considered an Action-RPG.

I've hit 20 posts.

No, you're correct. Content is very important. I've been writing some myself and the community we have so far has been discussing some stuff too, which is amazing to see. I'll try and fill up sections. We can do a gaming approach or just a general discussion approach a lot of forums have.

We do have a few general forums if you want to join and post there, and I'm a big Battlefield 3 fan myself.

Thank you. Our aim was to make sure all board official things are as professional as possible, so even the help documents might get a rewrite and a layout change. Of course, activity, threads etc are meant to be fun and chill, but all official things look better as professional to me.

Starcraft is being added. The other two, I think we've got quite a few games. Sections will now be created when there is activity in the lounges to back them up, and of course all threads related to the game moved.

We have more general discussion for those who don't like gaming.

Robust - August 23, 2014, 2:40 am

Take a look today, we've added more features and strengthened everything.

Robust - August 26, 2014, 2:26 am

We plan to renovate how forums are done here, expect extreme changes, because I reevaluated what a forum should be, and to be quite honest I think everyone selling usergroups, custom awards, four usergroups, stickies and all of that stuff since day 1 should reevaluate what they're doing. Our changes are drastic, and completely eliminate most stuff that ruins a forum. These changes can take up to a week of constant work.

We don't have those things already, but it's time to focus on what's most important - we are making a forum board. That should say a lot. Thanks for everyone with us so far, we're going nowhere.

Robust - August 27, 2014, 3:01 am

The change is currently in place. So far it's taken a good seven hours, and going. It's just a few more things and I can start trying it out and making sure our CL conversion happened successfully.

No data has been lost.

Security is tougher, we now use SSL (<https://www.gamingforums.net>). Software is now XenForo. First phase of our changes is complete.

What makes it unique is that every other board here is blasted with purchasable awards, usergroups and all of that shit, once everything is sold, board closed. We have a mother fucking forum board, not some complete and utter waste. However, exclusively, we have a custom marketplace like the one Digitalpoint has and a few other cool tools just for gamers to use.

The board looks bland with a default scheme.

Probably the second biggest XenForo board, and the second biggest digital board uses the default XenForo theme, however they recoloured it using the built in style colouring thing. Digitalpoint.com. A custom theme doesn't mean everything.

My forum has more time spent on it than just about any other forum on here, I can guarantee that, perhaps not in terms of advertisement and generally talking to others about it, but definitely in backend work.

I've made a forum, and a bunch of tools next to it to make it convenient for gamers. I have not made some random piece of shit.

A waste of a sticky and attention is your own decision. I'd like you to stop being an ass, not with me idgaf, but generally around the forum you should just calm down and stop thinking so big of yourself, it's not hard to trash AFTER you listen to what a person says. There is a big difference between negative feedback and trashing, regardless of who's work it is, it sucks.

To be honest, it looks like the default theme with a couple color changes.

OT:

I like the domain and your determination to continue with this project. Starting a forum (gaming nonetheless, which is one of the most saturated niches out there) is tough.

I suggest you work on your UI though. As Sparta said (albeit rather bluntly), your backend is not visible to the user. Sure, it populates the content of the UI, but who is going to even bother looking at a site whose UI is ugly? Would you stay on a forum whose interface looks like it was from the early 90s, complete with unstyled href and div elements? Probably not.

It's not really ugly. Just kind of bland. Of course easy use is a big plus, but design is equally as important as its functionality IMO.

What happened to the previous theme? I loved that one.

We no longer use MyBB, but that was possibly the nicest MyBB theme available.

BUT, you seem to keep bringing up Digitalpoint, and you also use Digitalpoint as a reference in a previous post regarding what makes your board unique, it seems to me like your ideas are stemming from what you see on there as it's a successful board, but there's a COMPLETE difference in user base, attraction and consumer base in terms of users flowing to the site for useful articles, threads, etc. Gaming is such a broad niche but nobody but very few such as NeoGAF have ever been able to really control it. In any case, I see that you're greatly interested in making your board succeed, but I do see many contradictions and I'm sure they're apparent to many others.

I use them as an example of one of the biggest XenForo boards that use a default theme, I also use IGN as an example. Just some big boards. We don't really share anything in common, except theme and front page news which tbh I didn't even get from there, I got it from Gamespot. And yeah, I appreciate that, and I'm aware there are issues with my idea and focus, but it interests me so I was interested enough to make a board on it. At the least I can learn from it and consider it a hobby :)

Well, I guess this is no longer a laughing matter. Game on.

Zero steps forward, two steps behind is all that comes to mind.

Anyone interested in an array of tools, quick links and stuff? Would be a little pressure to create everything, but perhaps useful.

I'd like to tell you why I'm not a member.

- Disgusting stock theme, pay to get a real one.
- It's gamingforums.net, I would show the forums by default - not the portal with news and latest threads and stuff
- Yea.

This looks very professional, is this fully customized for your forum? Regardless, the domain is excellent and the SEO should also be very good.

It's all looking good, sadly you don't have something like ProStats which brings alot more activity into the forum.

PM me your skype.
