The group has just launched. We are going to stay invite only and have a similar focus to what 143 had.

Programming - July 29, 2014, 9:06 pm

Damn, what do you guys look for in a member? That's one beautiful group icon.

Good luck with the group, guys.

Troye - July 29, 2014, 9:07 pm

I am really excited with what will come from this group. Can't wait!

Eternal. - July 29, 2014, 9:07 pm

I will help Tibit lead this group to keep a similar standard as 143, but we will have higher standards and hopefully will be able to reach out to many people.

Phoenix will be a group for those who have risen above the call of duty to help people, we are looking for genuine and honest people for the group who will desire to be active, helpful and an asset to the Hack Forums community. We are invite only, please do not inquire about joining the group as if we see you are fit we may invite you. We plan on being a very small group of at most 25 people, but more like 15-20. It's nothing personal whatsoever, just kick back and wait and see.

Why would you say that? We're not looking for the elite, "famous" members of the forum, there is no post count or reputation requirement to be invited. The only requirement really is the person be a genuinely kind and helpful individual.

Before anyone jumps to conclusions, Me saying that isn't me requesting mass attention.

Most invite only groups say that; 'The only requirement really is the person be a genuinely kind and helpful individual.' really, I've only been invited into The Empire and apparently that was due to someone being drunk? I don't really see the odds of someone like me getting in. I've said these things all one time or another. I'm on the forum daily, but it seems like the only ones that ever get invited to these type of groups are:

Friends of Current Members

Users who do Mass Giveaways and such let me just stop before I start getting attacked by the rest of the community for 'Attention Whoring' or anything revolving around that.

Good luck with the group, though, I'm sure it'll do great with You & Eternal as leaders.

That's not true at all, sometimes yeah who you know or popularity plays a part in it, but groups have recruitment for a reason. I mean fuck dude if you want a spot in this group go work for it, go post in a section you feel like you could contribute too. Go help people you feel like you could help and you'll get there man.

If this is run anything like 143 was then being popular and giving away shit won't mean a thing, neither will being friends with anyone actually. There are a lot of new variables in play here so we'll see. Time will tell.

Take a piece of advice from someone who tried and learned from the experience. Don't try just because you want in the group, just help those because you want to help a member in need out. Don't do it for the userbar, do it because you actually want to help that member out and care. The rest will fall into place after that.

Are you saying you'd be happy sending someone money for half the group, then a month later, being refunded. Do you have that much in your bank account? I mean I'm not hating here, but I had to transfer that from other investments, which cost me money.

BECAUSE OF THE PRICE OF THE GROUP IT WAS WORTH THE INVESTMENT, THAT'S WHY I DID IT.

infamous userbar meant a lot too back in the good 'ol days when there were about 20 fags in it

Are you brain dead? Where did I state that a userbar symbolises a group? I simply stated that I liked the older user bar.

?lien - July 31, 2014, 10:07 am

I tried to steer clear of this thread to be honest. I am most critical of my own work as all artists are, for the most part. I just want to be clear that many versions of both the banner and userbar were submitted and this was all done a very long time ago. The official graphics request thread contained most of it all but not all of it and honestly the version that was selected isn't my personal favorite for many reasons. Some alternates had both subtle and relatively major changes and I liked some of them better. But all that said, my opinion, Kink's/Tibit's and any other users here on this thread are going to vary and they went with what they wanted. There were some other good submissions by other artists, too. If they decided to change the design today it wouldn't hurt my feelings.

Everyone's artistic style is unique in some ways and this was my style and interpretation of how I thought it would look good (one version anyhow). I had some other ideas in my head of how it could be completely different and still look phenomenal and I'm sure Kinky and Tibit did as well. Everyone is entitled to their opinion and that's fine, I just personally don't see the point in posting negative feelings and thoughts about their choice here.

I appreciate anyone's positive comments but let's not make this a thread about the graphics. That's not the purpose of it.

I must say that the new userbar is actually really attractive and catches the eye. Don't get me wrong, the old 143 logo was also just as well but this new one is a real grabs the eyes.

I had some other ideas in my head of how it could be completely different and still look phenomenal and I'm sure Kinky and Tibit did as well. Everyone is entitled to their opinion and that's fine, I just personally don't see the point in posting negative feelings and thoughts about their choice here.

I appreciate anyone's positive comments but let's not make this a thread about the graphics. That's not the purpose of it.

I'd just like to say that I like how you included the hearts from 143. That is a touching tribute.

Thanks but I can't take any credit. For one, their double-heart design was theirs and I merely copied it from scratch which, although isn't incredibly easy it isn't incredibly hard either. Secondly, the double-heart design was requested by Tibit to be in the Phoenix design. I did prefer the subdued white highlights, personally, but they chose that design for the final userbar. I think the dulled highlights are the correct choice for the banner and such though. Every design included different versions of the hearts and heart highlights.

Some of the upcoming events in the works will be great for the community. I am personally planning one out that will be different than anything the group has done before.

Rep doesn't matter, and neither does being active in any one section related to what the group is about. Just be yourself. Be active and be helpful, and if they take notice, then you might receive an invite. Remember though, they want to keep it a small group.

The only downside to a group like this being reintroduced is an influx of members in the innuendo who have no prior experience of giving advice who attempt to give advice.
8/10 times it's terrible advice.

Yes, that I am aware of. That's why I I'm happy that the goals behind this group are the same as those presented by 143.

If I was leader, the group would be harder to join compared to 143. I have very high standards when it comes to this type of shit. I am not convinced by a few buzz words in a post. But thank you for showing your concern. But I like to think that every group influences members to post normally dumb crap to be noticed. But never as harmful as giving life advice.

What do you mean an example? I won't call a single individual out.

When a group like this comes along, people will try to fit in with the ideals that the group has. So specifically for Phoenix, members will try to give advice in the innuendo forum in hopes for an invite.

Many of the members who are doing this have no prior experience in giving advice, which could lead to some bad situations if the advice needed is serious.

Its a group flaw that every group has. They try their hardest to gain an invite and don't realize that it isn't about trying, but just being a genuinely good person. That is going to be the tricky part of finding the right members for it. I really dislike getting the PM's about "Hey where is my invite? When are you going to add me?" because it shows they don't really care about what the group stands for.

This group looks so awesome ?, the members in this group are people I aspire to be, Nehssa and Cooligan are amazing people to work with. I hope 143/Phoenix never sells because it's really one of the only groups that in my mind will remain extremely prestigious.

On topic, the Empire was a fantastic group.. Just because it was sold doesn't mean we can't still act like it's here. For many it was one of the best groups on HF, the community within the group was outstanding and it was just generally well respected. The Empire will never be forgotten, as it made such an impact on quite a lot of the community here, both in and out of the group itself.

If you need assistance with your problems, I'm sure members of Phoenix or I could help you via PM ?

Sure thing, sorry about the problem and it won't happen again.

We don't need help though solving it, its just grim and the way he acts to me. I try to be nice and he decides to be the mean one.

Anyway, deleted my posts, hopefully grim will do the same.

Thanks for taking initiative, and thanks for understanding! I also understand the situation.. but for it to get better, its best for someone to be the better man and just let it go. Not choosing sides here, but I wish people could just get along a lot more than what Ive seen all over forums lately.. ?

Greivous, I'm getting PM's that I shouldn't even talk to LQ members like u.

Should really stop being immature and bringing up things you can't back up.

Now, let's go ahead and stop posting and keep this under the topic of Phoenix, shall we? ?

Hard to do anything such as being the better man when he calls me out every post I make, then in a way calls himself a HQ member yet HQ members don't do that if I recall, they help, right?

Any suggestions since you're here.
