Thread: Stop wasting money on these shitty money-making eBooks. They are a big lie.

Sparta. - July 31, 2014, 8:51 pm

Don't close this thread. This will actually help all of you staff members from dealing with people who whine and bitch about eBook scams. I'm helping you guys.

Holy shit.

Stop wasting your money on all of these shitty eBooks.

Want to know why? You won't make shit and you'll be very unhappy for even wasting your money on a 5-20 page hunk of bullshit.

A person who comes out fresh from a college to pursue a career in programming or engineering earns about 50K-80K+ a year.

You ARE NOT going to earn 50-70K a year or $200-300 a day by buying and following some cheap ass written-in-one-day eBook that some imbecile posted on the forum; REGARDLESS of its thread design or whether or not the seller is prestigious or not.

Stop getting hypnotized by the dollar signs and repetitive commas and zeroes. Almost every single 5-10 first vouches are just the OP's buddies posting "vouch for this user, he is legit!". Any simpleton can easily comprehend that posts made within the first few pages just saying "vouch, I know him, blah blah, he is legit" wasn't asked to do it or just because he is their friend?

All of those "payment proofs" are utter bull shit; either someone being paid to show off $X,XXX dollars in their payment processor/bank account or real life money.

Let's talk about saturation. What a fucking stupid term to use in this context. It disgusts me. Anytime an eBook advertises that it's not saturated, IT IS A LIE.

Why in the FUCK would someone sell an "unsaturated" method that earns them more than they could earn with selling it to people?

Have people these days not come to learn that you will not make money online just by reading a book for 15 minutes and put in "1-3 hours of work" a day and simply just make more money than someone who has an actual college education and formal career?

Hell, you won't even make more money than a normal minimum wage job from this stupid shit.

Let's look at some examples:

<https://hackforums.net/showthread.php?tid=4359524>

User is "scammed" $50 for first off, paying to a bullshit eBook as usual, then realizing that the method is illegal. Not surprising. At all.

<https://hackforums.net/showthread.php?tid=4365909>

"Apple Exploit". Already seems illegal (social engineering).

Let's look at them stickies in the eBook Bazaar:

Here you can easily tell how desperate the sellers are, and how desperate their target customer is. "SECRET MONEY HACK" - sounds stupid, right? Then it promises $33K+ in 1-2 months. WOW! That is around a quarter million dollars a year. Around the same money only people who earn an education at prestigious universities like Princeton and Harvard get. Too bad that's bull shit. Even the seller knows that himself. The only money the seller is making is the money he makes FROM YOU.

Why even bother adding more examples? Fuck that. Go look in the Marketplace and if you are not easily gullible, you'll sought out most (or all) the bull shit ones (which is basically... all of them).

In conclusion,

Ebooks promising more money than an average career pursuing person or decent worker at a job, are BULLSHIT.

The seller, instead of making money on their ironically supposed "unsaturated" and "guaranteed" method, is actually making money OFF OF YOU. Stop feeding money to earn a silly document with 5-20 pages that promise you an amount that you will not make so easily by "doing nothing" or "spending 2-3" hours a day. You can earn more making a minimum wage job or earning a career after college.

Stop getting hypnotized and wise up.

And to Omniscient, or any staff members who somehow took the time to read this, I think we need a change. We ALL know you will not become a millionaire within a year or two from reading an X page of bull shit for $10-100. We ALL know, especially the sellers, that money making eBooks are mainly sold just for the SELLER to make the money, NOT the consumer. You don't walk around the streets asking people to sell weed with you, do you? You don't walk around the streets telling people what you did to get rich. If X method is supposedly unsaturated, then why the hell would the seller even bother selling it? It's complete bull shit.

For the respect of this entire community's sake, I'm going to kindly offer for eBooks like these to be gone. You can EASILY get one staff member or notable person in this community to contribute and rid the Ebook Bazaar section of all the bull shit that is basically scamming money hungry users out of their money. You could simply say, "Ah, it's their fault! No biggie". That isn't the case. It's the Consumer and the Provider. The Consumer's expectation of the Provider is to receive the product as advertised. In this case for almost every single money making eBook, the Provider is full of shit and the Consumer is in respectable terms getting scammed.

Silent ? - July 31, 2014, 8:53 pm

If they really worked people wouldn't be giving away their methods for so cheap.

adsper23 - July 31, 2014, 8:56 pm

Too bad most of the kids here are 16 and think the moon is made of cheese and can make big bucks by sitting behind a computer all day, while all these fag book sellers are using hackforums as the real 50$/day money making method that some people are actually catching up to , hence the fake ass titles proving 50000$ per day.

??¢?? - July 31, 2014, 9:15 pm

They claim they make thousands and thousands on end, but sell the eBook for $20?

If you make thousands, what is $20 going to do? Lol potatopete54 - July 31, 2014, 9:23 pm

if it really worked then one of the ebook owners would've bought Infamous by now from Judge Dredd ?

Vamporno - July 31, 2014, 9:25 pm

No it truly work how you telling me. The sellers do make thousands wanna know how? Make a sticky on a eBook thread get a Thread design and make a ebook about a public method but change words and that profit right there.

OT: True bought 1 eBook to see if it was legit and it wasn't lol. Most people just wait for it to get leak.

Mohatu - July 31, 2014, 9:26 pm

Stuffed animals from carnies are also bad, people still buy them. People will buy what they wish, and yet another one of these threads will make no difference.

Exactly this.

Threads like this have been made countless times, it's no help, people will buy what they want.

Seer - July 31, 2014, 9:34 pm

It's not just money making eBooks, all of them are complete shit. Some kid who couldn't even set up a RAT posted a spreading eBook where he claims you can get up to 3,600 slaves a day! AMAZING. And of course tons of his friends vouched for it.

Naveen - July 31, 2014, 10:00 pm

Well Not actually all the ebooks. Only if you put the efforts you can earn.

Weebex - July 31, 2014, 10:40 pm

Adding another thread to the other threads about ebooks wont make a difference. No matter what people will still buy it, then whine how it is fake, make a scam report about it, and still buy more after that.

CyberStudio - July 31, 2014, 10:46 pm

Thank you for posting this Sparta, I felt like somebody needed to..

However I disagree with one thing, not ALL ebooks are bullshit. I've seen some that promise $5-15 a day and actually pay that amount.

The ones promising like 200k a year are bullshit.

Make big or go home IMHO. I'd rather have a real job and earn big IRL. Why waste time on 1$'s when you could earn 100$'s for the same amount of time.

If you have millions of subs and ads on YouTube for example would be a nice income.

Sorry if off topic.

Ifinger - July 31, 2014, 11:35 pm

I'm surprised with how many people even buy them, even the people who buy em just to leak.

Vegas - August 1, 2014, 3:45 am

I pretty much have a 100% positive track record with ebooks. I snatch up vouch copies and expose saturated bullshit all the time but I've never bought an ebook that didn't make me easily 10x my investment ONCE, and I've bought at least 5. Just saying. Don't have the judgment/observational skills of a fucking turnip when you're looking for a seller, sit down and focus for a fucking minute and put some work in, and maybe you won't get hooked like a fish.

PoLoW - August 1, 2014, 4:01 am

Optimusvn - August 1, 2014, 4:04 am dont buy any book for making money . i have bought 1 book and never buy agian. i agree with your thread. good day

BI?ckHat - August 1, 2014, 6:53 am

This would be pretty much solved with the introduction of "vouch reputation" . When you "vouch" it means that you vouch with your account rep that the seller is selling an ebook and that it will do as described. If majority of buyers disagree with the method being useful then ALLLL of those "trigger happy vouch dealers" Would receive a "negative voucher" reputation from the buyers or some Sheit like that. And with time when you go to a product page, you see 12 vouches from 12 different ppl, you look at their negative vouch rep and conclude that their vouches are along the same value as shit.

Hidden™ - August 1, 2014, 7:00 am

People making threads like this don't understand that there are some legitimate e-books that honestly do make money.

Very seldom do you guys think about the people that write the e-books and how much time and effort they put into them.

If you see one that promises 70k in 2 days, it is most likely a scam. However if you see 50$ in 2 days, it's most likely something simple and easy to do and more than likely legitimate.

Another reason people like to call these books scams is because THEY are too LAZY to do the work that the e-book requires.

I agree with that 100%. I dare to say that over 75% of books here CAN make you money. What is the reason they don't? The user expects that reading the book is the work he puts in. So he buys the book, reads it from cover to cover and next step he wants is to check his email for a message from PayPal notifying him of his daily 200USD deposit.

matrixdude - August 1, 2014, 8:17 am

True words mate, hope people will understand it finally, in my opinion this ebook section would have to get closed by yrs ago. It just turn the forum into a lower level.. :\

'Snorlax - August 1, 2014, 8:19 am

Many of these ebooks are true if you take your time. If OP is lying about his income and what you can earn, you should take action.

But if you don't spend the same amount of time as OP selling his ebook, then it's your own fault.

I have a good laugh on this.?

Basically, if anyone want to sit back and wait for income to in, there is only one method, as far as I know(not the parent pocket money thing).

It's called investment, you can invest in virtual money such as bitcoin, which goes up and goes down almost monthly I think.

Or invest in stocks eg stock market shares/company shares/gold/FD.

Eg. IT stocks such as microsoft/apple/etc.

Eg. bank/financial

Eg. stores/hotels/restaurants/etc.

Of coz, theres risk involve too.

All these investment need money which means earn money first, then only invest then only sit back, and wait for the money roll in.?

Hopsin - August 1, 2014, 9:18 am

Nobody force you to buy those eBooks. It's still your responsibility, this thread will be closed like others as usual. It won't make any change. Sorry mate.

A lot of eBooks are useless, yet there IS the occasional one which is good.

I think the best way is to make the eBooks go through a 'satisfactory test'. For instance, if a certain group were allowed to rate the eBooks on money making factors.

The problem is, is that it can't exactly be a normal HF Group. No matter what people say, groups will always be biased depending on the seller. We see this commonly with vouch copies.

Sasaki Haise - August 1, 2014, 3:29 pm

I don't think it's a problem about pruning bad E-Books, if anything that just solves half or part of the problem. If there's a solution where people can stop making threads with bad E-Books, that would help much more. A review system could be possible, but that alone is a pretty powerful position that I don't know who can fit in it.

I'm going to provide proof regardless of the fact that any intelligent human being would know that there's no such thing as the ultimate proof because everything can be faked specially on the internet.

I bought an ebook that was called "PPD Guru" around 8 months ago or so.

I simply applied the method in it and I made $150 in the first 10 days or so, until my video on Youtube got removed.

I have no problem sharing my screen via team viewer if you want.

That's not the point. People are getting scammed regardless. The point of this thread is to make people wake the fuck up and realize you don't make more money than minimum wage or the same money of a CS/Engineering major by reading a 5-20 page book.

I was recently scammed for a measly $25 on what seemed to be a new, promising e-book. After receiving -reps and a scam report on me (even though I paid him in full for the e-book and haven't charged back yet), and after reading this thread, I will NEVER buy another e-book that has anything to do with monetizing on this forum again.

That is just sad for the HF marketplace. Every online marketplace has it's scammers and what not, but the e-book market here is almost entirely made up of scammers. Some type of action should be taken by Omni to protect members and rid his forum of this cancer. I'm thinking about submitting a write up about this to a few higher profile blogs. Not only are most of the e-books about fraudulent ways to earn, the way these members are advertising them is also illegal.

There are eBooks that can help you make money, i remember I've bought one myself and the eBook actually made me 100$ after 2 days of hard work(2-4 hours each day), but yes, there was kind of a moral problem doing it.(PS: tenaxium) anyway, i would love to see a change in the eBooks section, instead of selling "Make 400$ a day by doing nothing" it would be very useful if lets say for example: Professional Website Masters would have sold SEO Tips and such.

Some actually do work,

I have bought one for 40$ before after I saw a vouch from a member I have seen around a lot, helping people. So I figured there might have been some truth in it.

That e-book has made me well over 1200$ in 2 months of sitting on my butt clicking and typing to people.(do note: this was not for hours straight, sometimes a mere 10 minutes a day sufficed.)

Too bad it got saturated easily but yeah, it was well worth it. Just be picky by who vouches.

DannyBoii - August 7, 2014, 10:53 am

I just feel that everyone knows that eBooks do not do ALL they say (not saying they don't work) but that it compels people to buy them as they trigger a little thought inside the buyers head just like mexicans having "The american Dream" of a better life across the border. Anyway, Just buy them Don't buy them it is YOUR money so who cares. Useless, these threads are useless.

People will keep purchasing money making ebooks and other people will keep selling them;
It's the nature of internet, the wiser and older person makes money over the newest and inexperienced, this last one then becomes smarter and starts doing what has been done to him, then the cycle goes on.

Limited Edition - August 8, 2014, 4:13 am Jaguar's and Kryptonic's eBooks actually do earn. Only 2 good eBooks I have seen on the whole of HF. Everything else I have purchased has been shit.

I have my own working method that works much better than both of these eBooks and brings in nice big amounts of money any time I want some extra cash. Its my own method although it is a blackhat one. I do not write a shitty eBook and try to resell it and the few people I have sold it to paid me $100 and actually joined my monetizing team, to 1 other user who I didn't want to join I let them pay $250 for the method. I'm not making anything from selling it compared to the money I could earn from the actual method but the high price tag shows people that I don't need to sell it to make money and that I only sell to people who are serious about it and will not leak it to everybody.

Anyway, everybody is missing the most common method of them all ... write an eBook, bullshit like your life depends on it, make a good looking topic, bullshit some more just for lol's and then finally take idiots money. A good trick is to offer refunds to people who don't make any money, then you spend 5-10 mins helping them earn $0.10+ so they are now void from your refund option. Also, a good way to make more more is to add several editions "basic" "standard" "gold super awesome l33t package". It doesn't matter what package they buy, they'll get pretty much exactly the same info, the same 'limited support' and the same outcome of losing $20-$50 on the eBook and earning nothing or a couple of $.

Now you all know the secrets of making money online, You're welcome, I expect vouch copies of all your eBooks.

The only way you earn from eBooks is from selling them. I'm not saying all eBooks don't work because a few do have a few working methods in that people rarely give out but the only true way of earning money is if you just sell an eBook with loads of non-working methods inside.

_daniel - August 9, 2014, 6:48 am

A simple key to determining an eBook's legitimacy is by the guarantees given.

If a seller guarantees earnings, you know that instantly the seller is lying. As markets are constantly ever-changing, the seller does not have the time or resource to ensure each and every customer meets the minimum guaranteed amount.

Furthermore, take a look at the seller's posts'. If they never contribute to any worthy discussion, chances are they don't know what they're talking about or not willing to contribute for free.

Regards.

The only methods that work are saturated. Period there saturated for a reason. I agree 100 percent with this thread. I have made like 2k online using various sites but its most just online gambling and getting lucky. Probux,neobux do payout yet but it takes forever to use Ptc. PPD do work if you put lots of time and effort into making it look legit. But a video on youtube can get flagged very easily and start you from square one. You can make money online just takes a fuck's load of time. Props to you op for posting this :)

Let's suppose, that by using a monetizing ebook, we could earn 500$ per day, according to the seller.

Why would creator sell his working private method for 20 or 50 bucks, if he earns 15k per month?

People are stupid, people are gullible and most of all, people are desperate. Does it seem morally wrong to take advantage of those people? Maybe. In the end though, it's their money and they decide how they want to spend it.

Take a look around, this isn't just on HackForums with people making money from selling bullshit ebooks, it's all around us.

Casinos take advantage of people in every way possible. They want your money in return of selling you the dream of striking the big one. Same goes with lotteries/gambling in general.

Look at the weight-loss market, it's the exact same shit and that's been going on forever. "Take this pill for a week and loose 20 pounds doing nothing!" or "Wear this vibrating belt while you do your everyday task and have abs in no-time with no exercise at all!"

So really, how can you blame the people who do this when really, it's been around us our entire lives.

As for where I stand, honestly, if you're dumb enough to fall for it, well, that's on you.

The methods that make you that are shared between a group of a couple people, why would they ever sell it to you? All ebooks are usually recycled ideas changed just a tad or used by someone so the method is actually unsaturated to HF but in don't earn much at all. My private methods make me a ton but doesn't mean I would ever release lol Pew pew, right on target. I don't give a fuck about anyone's method because I know they'll keep it to themselves. Exactly.

It's funny how everyone think that the only way to make money online is with a secret method, when the truth is... Making money online is easy, and the basic methods that knowns to everyone are the ones that actually work. (You might know the NAMES of those "methods" or the basics of them but you know nothing about how to apply them correctly) E.g. affiliate marketing, product creation, etc. People say "oh i know that stuff" but the truth is that if you really knew those stuff you would have been making thousands of dollars or even getting rich.

Yet ;)

What do I do? Read about internet marketing bro. I'm off to bed, good luck working in 9-5 job and earning so much money, I'm sure it's better and more than what I do sir.

Yeah, exactly. You don't have shit.

And nah, I'll make more money from you selling eBooks from a college degree.

I know you don't make $365K+ a year. You are spewing the typical bullshit of arrogance to make people think you're rich.

Considering how ignorant you are, you don't know shit about internet marketing nor do you make $365K+ a year.

I don't think anyone would pay money for a product with your "internet marketing" bullshit when you're a sand dwelling cunt who can't speak English for shit.

Please show me when I said I make $365k + a year. Thanks. Still doesn't matter, only my lastest Hackforums eBook sold 600 copies for $27.99 each and there was also $49.99 package, do the math yourself if you think "no one would buy from me"

I'd rather have a bad English then being an ignorant fuck who will go to college do a degree and make what I make in a month what I make in a week.

But you are probably right, I never made any money online right? All those 600 customers, they're not real, all 500 comments on my last eBook are mine and Hackforums is a small part of my business but if you say so...

Kid, stop trying to make yourself even more of a stupid fuck.

You don't make that much money a year nor will you ever be successful.

The irony of this whole thing is that you spew out all this bullshit to protect yourself but in reality all you are here on HF everyday is to sell an eBook to upkeep your shitty degenerate apartment.

Hmm.. I wonder why you want people to "promote" your "product" aka your shitty eBooks rather than affiliating with your supposed real internet marketing?

Oh wait... you're a fuckwit who tries to make people believe he really makes six figures a year when in reality you're just a moron who is poor as fuck and wants to take other users' money for a shitty invalid eBook.

Thanks, you're right bro. I'll never be succesful, I wish you could teach me how you are so succesful making threads and butthurting about eBooks.

The truth is that whenever someones comes to me and ask for proofs in screenshare or Teamviewer I just give it to him.

And yeah I've had an eBook here which I made $15,000 of in 2 month without doing a lot and just spending few hours a day on the computer. I bet you make that in few months full of work from 9-5 right?

Go away "kid", and stop talking shit :) I don't care if you say i won't be successful, and if you think a shitty post in Hackforums will change any of that that's funny :D

I never said I make 6 figures, never said I make $1000 a day, I've had $1000 days but I make 4 -5 figures each month.

If you think I said that, you're blind. Learn to read bro.

I dont think people need to be warned, if you buy a ebook for $30 and expect to make a million dollars then you dont deserve to be on the internet

Sparta. - January 10, 2015, 12:19 am

It's been a while, but people need to still be aware and acknowledge this issue.

Autocorrect - January 10, 2015, 1:17 am

Let's take a little bit of logical thinking and apply it to the situation. What percentage of this site's active member base is under the age of 18? Probably close to 90%, right? I remember reading from a poll not too long ago that the most common age among users is 16. There's 2.5M members here. So that's 2.25M active members under the age of 18. That sounds about right. The sellers of these e-books claim that they make thousands every day. Bullshit. We all know that with the common age being 16, these kids are more than likely to blow all of the cash that they're so seamlessly and effortlessly earning on awards to increase the size of their e-penis. Honestly, being so young, could you not spare half of your apparent daily earnings to get the MD award, proving you actually have any cash?

Of course not, because they don't earn shit from the e-book that they pulled together overnight. Have a look at the e-book sale rights. Sellers always mention how much profit they have made from the e-book. Attention all members that wish to profit from re-sell rights:

Smart buyers do not give a single fuck how much you have profited from your e-book.

Smart buyers care about the positive feedback received from customers. Positive feedback creates better revenue, making a good return for the person buying re-sell rights. Most of these sellers will do anything to make a quick buck, and it doesn't take much logic to figure out that the only person profiting from the e-book is the person you're buying it from. It is the very simplest example of a Ponzi scheme. Let me say it again, the only person profiting from the e-book is the person selling it.

Wise the fuck up HackForums.

Your best option is to learn about something that you enjoy on the Internet, could be hacking, doxing, cracking, coding, whatever. Then you can use the skills you have acquired and sell your own product. That's the only way you will make money from HF.

420 Blaze It - January 10, 2015, 2:45 pm

I have purchased $200 in eBooks, not to make money from them, but just to see if any of them actually work.

I can in fact say, none do.

This guy is making +$1000 monthly with his ebook, and is asking for $0.10.

Why the hell he'll beg for $0.10 if he makes $1000 a month, and without effort ?

Anyway...

I thought it was common knowledge that ebooks were just a way to make some quick cash off of dumb regulars and l33ts...

The Bearded Man - April 19, 2015, 9:30 pm

There was a similar thread in another section but the same thing goes. With E-books, most of the time they moreorless just expose you to a public method of uncertain money making scheme that you didn't know existed before because you simply haven't stumbled upon it yet.

hackingcore101 - April 19, 2015, 10:11 pm

i personally wouldnt buy an ebook to save my life really

M.4201 - April 20, 2015, 7:17 am

I'm probably too lazy to even read them if i bought 'em.

Still, it seems so easy to just buy a book and make all of your troubles on money go away.

Personally i don't think these books are a scam (or i'm just hoping they aren't).

But you will have to put effort in it to make it work.

No but when multiple users agree on the same consensus because they've tried multiple ebooks, there is obviously something wrong.
