So as anyone that's spent more than a day on HackForums knows, a lot of people here like to use glitch text to either annoy others, or bring more attention to themselves. I've noticed a couple users have begun using glitch text in their user titles, and some in their web-site URL just to make their profile look weird. As it happens more, I've been getting more and more irritating with it, and I'm curious as to if there will be any official stance taken on this.

There is a suggestion on this, but no response yet. I don't know if Omniscient saw the suggestion yet or he is not ready to do such a task. But no official word as of yet, been a while.

Report one of his posts as a 'Profile Violation' and staff will take a look at it. As Skorp said, there was a suggestion to get this unicode character filtered, but nothing has been done so far.
