You can deny it, but anyone who played/abused on OS-Prime knows it's the same source.

You didn't even change the "Owner: Ab" in the Clanchat. Even the "tutorial" and the starters are the same.

Mahdy lets not kid yourself, quit the lying. I was in the skype call when  gave you the source to use :/ So saying its built from scratch is not true. As for the actual content in the server nothing has been added as far as I'm aware since I was the developer previous to the new 1.

So in all honesty, quit all the bullshit and advertise properly or people will catch you out and your server will just get a bad reputation again.

Good luck my ginger arab!

A lot of content has been added: new custom quests, minigames, etc. We didn't just copy a source. We did a lot of other work to the server.

There are a ton of positions open. However, I am promoting those who are active and actually playing/helping out the community, not those who are close to me. Staff will be chosen by how dedicated you are to the server/forums (whatever position you want), not by relationship.

I have a player who has 682 online minutes in the game, so.. Activity and dedication comes before me. I'm not the type of owner to promote his friends.

I am also waiting for the player count to increase before I promote anyone.

Once I get more donations, I will buy more ads. Donations are instant! You will get your donator as soon as you donate. It's low EXP rates for a reason. My plan is to make it competitive to get a 99. It won't take days but it won't take 10 minutes. The point of this server is so you skill and actually enjoy doing it.

billyj1122 - October 2, 2014, 11:54 am how long has the server been up how many players daily and what's the down time

Mahdy - October 2, 2014, 9:19 pm

It's been up since August 11th or so. We maintained over the summer about 24, and then with school and college coming back the developers quit for it and the playerbase decreased.

Incognito™ - October 2, 2014, 9:35 pm

This server looks very interesting, Maybe something people should look into as a real Rs-Ps.
Good work Mahdy!

Do you really think HF was my only advertising site? I spent over 225+ on ads in the summer for the server. It had its moments. The player count was well over 25 during the summer. School started, my developers had to go back to college, players are in school all day, things change.

The homebase isn't the best place if you're looking to get a lot of players, I know you think it's different but there no home like edgeville.

Plenty of spots in which he can change home coordinates. Edgeville is plain and dull, Varrock works, Fally works, Neiz works, tons of places. But Edgeville is more common and doesn't fit well. I think Lumbridge is good, just his server is crowded with NPC's. It isn't spaced out and feels clustered.

Let me guess, you've developed tons of servers and they're all Project Insanity based or a clumped mess of code and you're still using code like:

Code if (c.playerRights >= 2) {
    if (playerCommand.equalsIgnorecase ("bank")) {
        c.getPA().openBank();
    }

}Also not trying to be mean, but considering this is a Project Insanity base it wouldn't be too hard to develop for this. Considering there is 100+ snippets for it.

Servers go offline. All because the server is down does not mean I will ever "plan" a shut down. The only time the server will be shut down for good is if I can no longer afford to pay it out of my pocket. It's the VPS that's not working.

Hosting your client on dropbox can be pretty dangerous, A lot of the time if you get a bit more traffic than you think, it will stop people from getting the client. Also if you have your cache on there.

Wasn't aimed at you. But the developers you had wasn't "really" good if they were working with project insanity as a base. You should just really consider learning a programming language yourself so you can build the server you're wanting instead of paying a developer to develop something for you.
