Thread: Suspicious .htaccess request

Ombra - August 9, 2014, 11:54 pm

I just posted another thread here; each time i refresh it i get this .htaccess request:

<https://gyazo.com/bf2e1b922f822a62f182789e59591574>

Never happened :/

Grin - August 9, 2014, 11:55 pm

It's this guy's avatar.

This users avatar keeps prompting authorization required.
contacted Xch4ng3 to see if he can get this users avatar removed.

Monokuma - August 9, 2014, 11:56 pm

Shouldn't link to the profile, obviously a phishing attempt.

Are you smart or are you smart? Yes, let him be anonymous while he attempts to steal people's information?

Hunting Rifle - August 9, 2014, 11:57 pm

You have adblock, block the site hostbb.org

Tony Stark - August 9, 2014, 11:58 pm

He is not the only one getting this, I am too. Something is up.

A username and password are being requested by <http://hostbb.org>. The site says: "Your computer is infected please login again to fix your computer"

AlexanderMaxiis - August 9, 2014, 11:59 pm

Guys its a trap be careful don't wanna go too deep dgb1tch - August 9, 2014, 11:59 pm

Just turn adblock on and you wont be getting stuff like this..

You could easily point out who it is without supplying a direct link to his profile. That's all I was trying to say.

Just turning it on wont work. Add a custom rule.

Expect being banned soon, i PMed to staff about this.

Goodbye

Bluffer - August 10, 2014, 12:09 am

I was wondering what that was, glad it's not just me, and that, that person is getting repfucked ;)

BlaqCat - August 10, 2014, 12:11 am

How tf do you make a avatar even do that crap?

Tony Stark - August 10, 2014, 12:13 am

Alright I am sure this issue is in the process of being taken care off. Good thing there weren't 50 other threads created about the same topic this time. ?

Time to continue as per normal.

(Aug 10, 2014 12:11 AM)HF Kevin Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) How tf do you make a avatar even do that crap? Ho hosted his avatar inside a directory protected by htaccess, so people have to login in order to see the content.

All login attempts are then recorded and saved into a log, so he's stealing accounts.

xploD - August 10, 2014, 12:15 am

I doubt anyone would of been stupid enough to fall for this.

WRONG I only see the IP's attempting to access the files not the passwords

You'd be surprised, Some people probably did. I suggest if someone is reading this and did actually fall for it to change the password on the account straight away. And if you did get this message and didn't do anything. You're safe. ?

AlexanderMaxiis - August 10, 2014, 12:18 am

All I saw was IP's. There is no way I could ever take anyones password:

Then people attempt to login and their IP is recorded.. what follows?

Nothing the logs disappear after a while and nothing happens.

What do you think would happen?

And so goes the moral of my story. Never fall for a phishing attack.

For shits and giggles. A laugh.

Something to occupy my time.

Trolling.
I'm closing, it's no longer necessary to discuss about this.
