Sam_ - August 11, 2014, 10:11 am

I don't agree with MCPProHosting on the high quality section. I've had plenty of problems with them. They may be good for small 5-10 player server. I had a server with them and once we hit 50 players or so, the server began lagging. There weren't many plugins or anything, it just wasn't a good experience. We swapped to an OVH dedicated server a few days later, and everything ran like it should.

My shared hosting company of choice is Creeperhost. I've used them plenty of times in the past, and never had a problem with them. You can also install more games like starbound and source games to host. They've even got a great control panel that isn't Multicraft.

Superstition - August 11, 2014, 10:18 am

GGServers may be cheap, but we have taken steps to improve our service quality.

We do in fact have DDoS protection all of our nodes except of the ones in Las Vegas.

We also have our premium line that runs on SSDs.

(Aug 11, 2014 01:03 PM)Bosnian Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Jesus. When are you going to admit that your service and support is complete shit?

Just searching for GGservers on HF will bring up more bad things than good ones.

Our sales thread is 60/40 feedback last time I checked. We have taken actions to improve our quality of service, and still keep the $3/GB price point.

We actually have 2 interviews for tonight for new staff to get the support quality and time up.

Custody - August 11, 2014, 5:33 pm

By the way, to any potential readers out there, when Hypixel says they are being "hosted" by MCPH, it does not mean that when you buy your servers, you will get the same quality that Hypixel has.

Hypixel is on sponsored dedicated servers that MCPH owns.

When you buy a server from MCPH, you will be getting shared hosting instead.

Nick - August 11, 2014, 6:01 pm

Ok updated the thread. I honestly like MCPH, they respond fast to my tickets which IMO makes them stand out against the other competitors. And... fuck GGServers... I can give a million reasons why they are a LQ host.

Lamee-Ven0m - August 12, 2014, 12:08 am

GG servers are not good, dont buy there, RAM/CPU is shown of high usage when a server has no plugins/map ETC i think its shared completely, we need a company that offers your own dedicate space.

That is why a dedicated server is the way to go if you have the money and player base for it. A CPU and all the ram that you can pay for, all to yourself. SYS and OVH are the way to go if you can afford it.

SIM-1729678 - August 12, 2014, 7:50 am

gg servers is BAD

and remove the /fr/us from soyoustart because when you are from holland they sell special game dedi's that are like 10-12,50 euro's for 2 weeks so 20-25 euro's for a ddos protected game dedi :) (32gb)

just a tip, change your ip to a dutch ip, buy the game dedi and you will save ALOT of money ;)

Dayumm - August 12, 2014, 7:54 am add ovh.com/ to dedis for bigger servers :D

then quadhosting.org/ at Moderate Hosting/Medium Quality, and ye its ddos protected & uses ssd netherbyte.com at Cheap Hosting/Low Quality

remove MCPH from high quality, put them at Moderate Hosting/Medium Quality/Overpriced Hosting

Updated again with 2 hosts from HF! Put them in a new section because of how new they are and the very small amount of reviews.

alphawarrior14 - August 12, 2014, 6:17 pm

I believe that kimsufi (<http://www.kimsufi.com/uk/>) should be added under VPS/Dedicated Server. Kimsufi is a sister company of OVH (as is soyostart), although kimsufi is meant to be a more affordable option as compared to soyostart or OVH and therefore offers lower specs.

Also to my knowledge OVH and all their sister companies (soyostart and kimsufi) have free DDOS protection that kicks in after an attack has been detected.

Kimsufi servers are weak though.. only the KS-4 has a cpu that's good for minecraft

So Dlaming is not very reliable. I would assume most of HF does not know finnish and wants US/UK hosted server. So still, neither will go up.

My only problem so far is that they are taking forever to get back in stock. I am waiting for SYS-IP-2 and god damn they are taking there time...

Acync - August 19, 2014, 3:57 am

I've been using Cloud Frost for a while now, and have experienced little to NO errors or issues.

I'd consider them somewhere up top. However, this is more of a personal opinion.

EDIT: However, I must add. One thing I do agree with you is that... Uhh... GGServers is absolute shit. I'd honestly have better luck running my MC server from a potato.

420 Lord - August 19, 2014, 4:30 am

GGservers is one of the worst hosts, remove them from the list please.

Sam_ - August 19, 2014, 7:35 am

Thanks for moving McProHosting down to Moderate/Medium Quality. I agree with everything on the current list aside from CreeperHost. I've never had a single problem with CreeperHost. They charge for support, but its good support (Edit: I don't think they do this anymore, I checked on their site and didn't see anything about it). They'll take care of you and fix you up, but I've kept a small FTB server for myself and some friends with them for almost a year now. And I've never had any problems with them. I've also used FragNet in the past. Their support is 7/10, but if you know what you're doing, they're 10/10. FragNet and Creeperhost are the only two places I recommend to people.

.-Roy.- - August 19, 2014, 9:02 am

If youre from the UK i would recommend Nitrous Networks

They're a proper hosting company who have just got a new data center.
They have thousands of customers over here in the UK area but they also have a Canadian branch.
The average user submitted ticket is answered and resolved in 40 something seconds.
Definitely a good UK host.

Baldicus34 - August 19, 2014, 11:38 am

I would suggest moving Beastnode down to Medium Quality, they flopped when our server got DDoS'd, they just null'd our server and didn't help us any further. Response tickets took about 24-48hours even with their large support staff.

Would not recommend using them. Especially with $12 a gig.
Fragnet is a much better choice at that pricing.

hutt132 - August 19, 2014, 6:40 pm

I used Beastnode. Their CPUs are very weak (or are over shared). They are good for around 40 players, after that, TPS goes low.

I update it as much as I can when someone suggests a host(after i do research on it). It would be nice to get it sticked to REALLY cut down on the "I need hosting" threads. I don't know if I should ask about that or not but I have seen people linking others to this thread when they have hosting questions.

norbert - August 21, 2014, 11:11 pm

In my past hosting experience, beastnode is good/great. I didn't have many problems with them, because i never really needed the support help.

My only suggestion for the list is to move them(Beastnode) to the medium quality, because there 'ddos protection' that they advertise and claim they have is weak to none. If your server is hit with any type of decent/long ddos(booter) they will null your ip within a few hours into the attack. In my situation after massaging them they finally got back to me(10+ hours) saying they nulled my ip and for the time being they made it so that my server unjoinable/offline for 48-72 hours just to make sure that the attack is done. I don't really think ddos protection works like that...

Dosent matter they resell OVH. It matters how many people on 1 machine. For some reason I think they put to many people on 1 machine. GGservers I had no lag on but it did have terrible service. Everyone has their ups and downs. GGservers actually "servers" are okay. HostHavocs are terrible. GGServers has just "Revamped" their website and service and i wondering how that is going. I run a medium sized server. I experienced shit hosting. I know what I am talking about. It doesn't matter if 1 resells OVH or not. It matters how 1 person uses the CPU. Higher RAM doesn't always mean less lag. Take into consideration the people using. If you are on the same dedi as another server with 30-40 players let's say. You will get lag. Some times it's just about luck. It's a hit and miss with shared hosting.

QuadHosting has free DDoS Protection. GGServers also has free ddos protection. QuadHosting would have little to no lag and GGServers might have some TPS issues and some lag.

Syntact - August 25, 2014, 5:31 pm

I've been using quadhosting for about a week now and their support system is extremely slow it's been 72 hours since I've made a ticket and still no response. Interesting thing is that I sent in a ticket before I became a customer and they answered it in about 7 hours. :/ kind of odd...

Ok, gonna be honest here. Never really liked this thread.

You think this is some amazing thread which solves all the problems, when really this thread has barely any usefull information. Maybe after you update the layout it would be cool, but as of now it's pretty bad.

(Sep 14, 2014 01:01 PM)HackFourmIsHelpful Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I was wondering if anyone knows the best and cheapest minecraft host.

Im sorry if this is in the wrong place!

This person wants to know the cheapest minecraft host... while it's definatly not a very high quality thread your thread provides almost no usefull information about what this person wants. Your thread has absolutely no mention of prices of these hosts, and this EXACTLY what the person wants. Also your thread has no mention of how well the support is, or what host's are actually good.

I mean it's cool in all to know that gg hosting is a low quality host but what about it makes it low quality? Is the price cheap? Is the support good?

(Sep 7, 2014 03:27 PM)?Gaets Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) looking for cheap but quality hosting. need to buy like 4-6 servers

The same thing is true here. This post at least explains more about what they need but how is a list of hosts gonna do any good? Like I said before, there are no prices included in this thread, and how can I tell which one is actually right for me, other than knowing which ones have SSD's and which ones have ddos protection.

(Sep 27, 2014 12:27 AM)Not Spring Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I need a good host for 5 player Hexxit server. Would like it if it's cheap and nice.

Well I mean you didn't reply to this thread with your thread, but I still think you believe that your thread can stop this. Your thread gives no other info other than "Can run modpacks well". What does this even mean? I mean any server host can run modpacks well with enough ram. Does this mean that it has a good processor? Good SSDs?

I mean I hate to just criticize your whole thread, but this is pretty much useless to anyone needing to buy a server.

Fix up your thread and give some info about the hosts that people want. Just copy the overall ratings from bestminecrafthosts.com on hosts you don't know much about, instead of saying "not enough feedback". Even if you get 1 person that says they have experience with a particular host, it's not like 1 person's experience with a host can sum up the host as a whole.

I understand you put effort and time into this but more work needs to be put into actually giving specifics on hosts.

Been using Beastnode for 2 years now, had my first issue today which they solved in a very timely manner. Their support has gotten better over the years and I've become more and more satisfied and glad I've stayed with them. I have done loads of hosting for networks up to 500 players and servers as small as 20 players. OVH is fantastic as far as I have experienced and if you pair it up with an anycast ddos protection network its pretty much perfect. I advise anybody that has a small server to use a VPS from a real company, not some kid just reselling somebody else's servers or working with a shit colo setup.

MissChiff - March 21, 2015, 3:04 pm

I can personally vouch for Beastnode. They have great customer support, servers rarely go down, and the DDoS protection is very good. Skeptics, do not be afraid.

Also if you don't want to pay the huge price then go with SoYouStart. They are a smaller startup based off of OVH and run the same great servers and support.

Use shockbyte but be sure to have plugins to prevent the server from lagging had that problem. But other then that I personally recommend shockbyte Shockbyte of course. Its basically an OVH reseller so its guaranteed to have pretty damn good specs.

OP for highend servers you should mention dedicated server hosting companies such as limestone networks etc, you get more for what you pay for with these services. You just need a little bit more knowledge

Playerbase? I believe I have a key with DDoS protection, Shockbyte would work if you want an OVH reseller. Otherwise any one in the high budget would work great.

You could probably learn how to start and control a server in a day of just googling info. Also you could install minecraft on a dedi.

The problem isn't the ram, it's the processor and or HHD speed. 3-4gb is more than enough to run 100 players or so.

Hey all,

Just an FYI -- I've had a server with a CubedHost for almost a year now, and I'd just like to clarify that CubedHost does in fact offer free DDoS protection and mitigation. I've had it happen to me a few times before and got a courtesy email saying that an attack was detected and successfully mitigated, no further action required on my part. Just wanted to put that out there in case Nick wants to fix the key in the OP~

They use OVH Resellers. The site has multiple design errors including no "premium minecraft" section which is listed on the site as offered. I see incomplete sites as a reflection of their hosting. They don't care about the site so they don't care about the clients. I also have been told they overstock their nodes ?

Something nice with OVH: If you send in a ticket for your server bill due date to be extended, they'll extend it up to a week at no charge :)

False,

If you require a little more time to make your payment, but do not wish for your server to go offline, contact us by phone or Support ticket on the day your server is set to expire to request a billing extension. We can, at our discretion, apply a 5 day billing extension to keep your server online.

Please note that these days will still be billed on your renewal. This is not 5 free days of service, simply an extension on your payment deadline.

This is a very small list as there are other server hosts out there, some offering cheap plans. But nonetheless, great thread. :)

Among the budget hosts, I have one with Fluctis. The server performance is great so far. Had a couple of bumps in the past but have already been resolved. They just need to get their support team together as it seems like the same 2-3 people have been responding to my tickets ever since.

I'd also good to note that they have been doing a 70% lifetime discount on all new orders since the holidays. Oh, and their plans come with free unlimited web hosting which has performed really well so far.

I only populate the list with hosts that don't just last a month :P It seems people just do it for the quick cash which really doesn't make sense. .. Personally I had a bad experience with fluctis but if u want the web hosting then its an awesome host!

I can recommend Limestone Networks as a host. I've used their dedis for years, both for Minecraft and for other hosting. <https://www.limestonenetworks.com/> I've only used their dedicated servers, but my experience with them has been nothing but positive. Their technical support tickets have an average response of 2 minutes, which should give you an idea of their dedication. They're an enterprise level solution; they're a few steps above OVH in terms of quality. I used them for my servers that averaged 200 or more.

Hmm I totally forgot to add dedicated servers to the thread.. But basically some of them do resell but that isn't wrong.. OVH has good hardware and is totally capable of hosting multiple servers. It all depends on the company and how much they put on a node.

Not sure if it has been discussed in the replies or not, but Fluctis is complete garbage. They give insane prices like $6/mo for 5 GB, but the server performance is complete trash. Secondly, support will do nothing but make you back up your files and switch nodes. That doesn't help. Any logical person would realize that if someone had good servers, companies like that would not be able to sustain themselves unless they try to oversell by giving cheap prices.

Honestly if you have the money, I'd go with a dedicated server from OVH or Reliabelsite. Shared hosts have problems with retention and normally can't support that many players. Plus the internet is filled with many articles to help you set up a dedicated server for Minecraft.

OVH even as a dedicated server line built for gaming servers here:

From my experience don't bother with FluctisHosting, dealt with them for a year they got cheap hosting but you get what you paid for tbh. Horrible support takes forever to reply back, half the servers I order don't work or have problems which they take forever to fix, constant problems and a little lag, Contacted them a couple of times and they have a attitude with me sometimes. Don't ever buy from them unless your really on a budget, even the panel is horrible constant errors and lagging.

How is it outdated?

Only sites i found to be down on the list is DemonVPS and PickleHost.

If you got some other sites to add to the list you can send Nick a pm

After checking out this list and settling on a host i would strongly recommend NOT to go for ShockByte.

They offered instant setup but failed to provide so even after i asked on their live chat. I went for a dedicated IP so i could get the standard 25565 port and after a full day they started my service with the wrong port. I have demanded a refund for false advertising and failure to provide what i ordered and will update this post whenever they actually pay me back. Deal with them on your own risks.

PebbleHost should be on the list:

- Public node/uptime information (quite rare for MC hosts)
- Budget and premium plans
- SSD storage for all plans- with Premium having NVMe
- VPS and web services
- Great support

Hello Minecrafter's,

We are running a promotion for 50% OFF our Minecraft Servers. It is unfortunate that Nick can't update the thread anymore so I am going to post the promotion code here. Visit our thread in the hosting section if you would like to see our plans.

Save 50% OFF recurring for life with promo "GET50OFFMC"
