Thread: [\[HF sellers READ\] Help improve HF | Stop using skype for support! | Protect yourself](#)

Protect your customers and your self by moving onto jabber

This is a thread for HF sellers to help users to start using jabber more and move away from skype and other unsecured chat channels.

To do this am asking all HF sellers to start using jabber this is a benefit for both the seller and the buyer.

Right now the most popular chat is skype which is extremely bad for a forum like this one because its insecure and regulated by the government.

What you need to do is add something like this to top of your thread

Add me on jabber: nick@jabber3r.org

Dont have jabber? [here is how you can set it up \[Click me\]](#)

example: <https://hackforums.net/showthread.php?tid=4357160>

code:

Code [color=#FF0000]Add me on jabber:[/color] youruser@jabber.org

[color=#FF6347]Dont have jabber?[/color]

[url=https://hackforums.net/showthread.php?tid=4241269]here is how you can set it up [Click me]

[/url]
This has worked greatly for me and I have moved many users to jabber by just my products think if all HF sellers started doing this. I hope HF sellers support this idea and start doing it. This is a step to improve HF communication and security. Next step is secure payment.

Great thread. I wrote a tutorial a while back about setting up your own XMPP/Jabber server if you don't want to trust a public service.

Yeah HF users need to start evolving this is the step they need to take.

Need sellers to support this idea come on guys

Brule - August 25, 2014, 10:32 am

I totally agree with LiveSupport, I've given up Skype for good as MicroSoft even spies on your sometimes. It's also really easy to hack a Skype account, so it's not really that secure.

Meanwhile we all still post everything on a public forum that's indexed by Google and I'm sure many government agencies and we use PayPal and post our anonymous e-currency addresses publicly for all to see and associate with us. But as long as our chats are encrypted through the middle we're perfectly okay!

The things you discuss in the private chat you dont in a public forum dont know what your trying to say Orgy.

Then maybe these are also things that shouldn't be advertised on a public forum in the first place?

What I'm saying is that there's no real point to hiding your chat if it's for a service you're advertising on a site like this with trackable payments anyway.

Dont think you fully understand privacy bro but ok

Then don't advertise them on a public forum. If you advertise BH products on a public forum, which is also likely regulated by government agencies, then you have already lost.

This thread is completely useless imo, those who NEED to use Jabber for their services already do.

'This thread is completely useless imo, those who NEED to use Jabber for their services already do.' You also cant be more wrong on this point.

Frawshy - August 25, 2014, 9:45 pm

This thread is useless, tbh.

Reason: You use a public payment system, easily trackable.

Same reason people use PayPal/BTC as Skype/Jabber, more people already have it, it has a larger customer base, the other will NEVER outdo it, well maybe in like 26 years, but 'til then.

I have already moved many people to jabber already by just posting a link to a setup on how to get jabber people just need a little push or it will never change and why do you keep discussing payments that's another issue for another day am talking about your privacy when you chat you guys are more confused than a gold fish. I have posted for sellers because this is the best way to make that push.

You can't hide privacy if you're using a traceable payment system.

Not many people have moved to Jabber, just because sellers have, doesn't mean buyers will, ever. Most buyers come here to quickly buy things then never come back, tbh.

1) Private chats will protect you from many things dont even need to name them if you dont know it then i seriously feel sorry for your knowledge base.

2) As I said before I have moved many people to jabber just with my products.

They won't protect you from shit if your payments are easily traceable or if you're talking about it on a public forum. I don't know how you don't understand this.

I only asked sellers to do this as this is the best way to make a push to make a change from skype to jabber as sellers have the most impact in my option to change the customers way of contact. Read my other posts bro and stop blabbing about payments for a second I know that is also a issue but one step at a time Mr Orgy.

The point regarding the payments is what invalidates your point about privacy. Switching to jabber is pointless for privacy if you're still going to use traceable payment methods and post on public forums.

Additionally, sellers aren't going to switch from Skype because buyers aren't going to switch from Skype. Same reason we still use PayPal.

Change payment methods is more complicated for users than changing to jabber keep this issue for another day HF users are not that advanced where you put in 2 changes at the same time as I say again one step at a time! . Skype has brought way too many issues. AS I said for the third time hopefully this time it gets to you bro third time is always a charm, I am asking sellers because they have the most impact on HF and they way of communication I believe so if users start contacting sellers for products with jabber they will turn jabber into a main source of communication which is what am trying to do as jabber is more safer and secure. I also believed that buyers would not change but I get the same amount of adds i use to get when i had skype and most got jabber with the TUT I posted on top of my thread which shows that it can change just believe in it.

You're not going to even get 15% of HF users to switch to Jabber, never will likely. You can't protect yourself using a traceable payment system. If you want privacy, you'll need to change both, you're just making a useless attempt for change.

Also, buyers will NEVER convert over from PayPal, or Skype. It's just easier keeping the norm for everyone. And as Orgy said, we're on a public forum, lol.

Your still talking nonsense you are talking about unrelated shit am trying to make a change for private communication which is important for privacy and I already fucking said around 4 times now I know payments are a issue but keep that for another day. People like you stop change because you're scared of it or your too dame lazy. I already said I have moved many people to jabber with just my thread and it does work if we can do this then next step will be payments.

I'm sure thats not the only reason we still use PayPal. If your business is all legal stuff (whereas OP is on about illegal), PayPal will protect you from scammers easily.

HAX ME IM FAMOUS - August 27, 2014, 5:21 am

Barely anyone uses Jabber, if I was to switch my products over I'd lose several customers. Nevertheless, thanks for the warning.

If you link them to a simple TUT on your thread like I have done am sure you will be ok.
