

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Dad: "You fucked up your results and now you fucked your life"

Visi0n - August 21, 2014, 9:38 am

Okay. This is some bullshit right now. My Dad knows fuck all. He is trying to force me into working hard in shit I couldn't care about. I tried explaining to him that I don't need history and all that nonsense for a job programming in C++ or PHP or Ruby or JS but he says I do and keeps shit talking me that I will never ever be successful now I fucked up my GCSE results.

I showed him my earnings online after he said I haven't made any money ever and I showed him days where I made more than he made in a week in a day and the days were going for atleast 18 in a row. He then tells me that I was violating copyright laws when I made what I was selling myself and tries saying that I copied and pasted. He tells me that whatever I was doing was shit and it is silly schemes.

He is a fucking dick. He tells me I live in a dream world because I want to be successful and be rich, not work 40 hours a week for an average paid job. He tells me that I will never ever become successful.

All this because of fucking GCSE results. I can guarantee that if I ever do become a millionaire or even richer, he will have none of it. I plan to move out as soon as possible and move to Australia, which is what I am definitely doing and never make contact with him again until he accepts that I am not a waste of time because I failed 2 GCSE's and sees that the internet isn't a place to waste time but a place to learn...

I mean, I'm a 17 year old kid who is fluent in C++, PHP, Ruby, Perl and JS and he is trying to tell me that I have fucked up and I will never get a job with that knowledge because nobody cares for it. Absolute fucking idiot. To think I actually thought he was interested in what I do online.

Everything he said has really got me down. Just need to vent.

EDIT: He also flipped out because I took Spanish as an option in year 11. Apparently it is a useless option. It's what I want to do .

bluefirecorp - August 21, 2014, 9:39 am

You're living in his house. If you think you know it all, move out. Pay for your own education. Pay your own bills.

Visi0n - August 21, 2014, 9:41 am

(Aug 21, 2014 09:39 AM)bluefirecorp Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) You're living in his house. If you think you know it all, move out. Pay for your own education. Pay your own bills.

You don't pay for education in England. I could pay for my own bills actually and I alone could pay for the house I am living in right now. I will be moving out as soon as possible.

.Reef - August 21, 2014, 9:41 am

Lol, i'm pretty sure every guy has a problem like this with their dad at some point. You just need to study hard bro. You always need a back up plan, sure the internet is a great place to learn, and i'm sure you are smart enough to make a career out of it, but still finish your education, and goto college because one day if it fails, you will have no knowledge and no diplomas to show for what you know to help you.

VRUMM - August 21, 2014, 9:41 am

I think he just feels insecure about you and your future, but I think he is right. You are not very well off as you think if you are making money violating copyrights.

bluefirecorp - August 21, 2014, 9:42 am

(Aug 21, 2014 09:41 AM)VisiOn Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) You don't pay for education in England. I could pay for my own bills actually and I alone could pay for the house I am living in right now. I will be moving out as soon as possible.

Oh, so, a top-tier university is free now all of a sudden? Oh, wait, you're "too smart" to go to a university. You're going to make MILLIONS of dollars by time your peers are graduating from university and landing sweet gigs, right?

The Weed Connoisseur - August 21, 2014, 9:43 am

(Aug 21, 2014 09:41 AM)VisiOn Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) You don't pay for education in England. I could pay for my own bills actually and I alone could pay for the house I am living in right now. I will be moving out as soon as possible.

Move out then, you have to be 16 to move into a flat in the UK. The rent is low and flats are better than houses in my opinion.

Anonlo?a?d - August 21, 2014, 9:43 am

All depends what you wanna do man, if you do want to carry on your education at all in your life then yeah GCSEs will bite you in the ass if you have done bad, I am nearly an example of that as one of my universitys wouldn't let me in because of a GCSE result was not up to their standards...but luckily i got in with clearing...But still do what you wanna do man, don't let adults tell you what to do but... listen to them.. they have lived/living life and they know how hard it is and how hard things can change.... :)

In your situation the best thing you can do is prove your father wrong, don't follow the education system and become successful in life :)

VisiOn - August 21, 2014, 9:43 am

(Aug 21, 2014 09:41 AM)Sh1eld Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I think he just feels insecure about you and your future, but I think he is right. You are not very well off as you think if you are making money violating copyrights.

I am not violating any copyrights. He thinks that anything I sell, I steal it when infact, I am against blackhat and I want success and success with happiness means making money legally, which, is what I do.

Manifest122 - August 21, 2014, 9:46 am

It's always a good idea to have a backup plan. You will need at least an A to do ICT as an A level that is if you plan to get hired for a programming company, freelance is another story.

Asuna ? - August 21, 2014, 9:48 am

(Aug 21, 2014 09:38 AM)VisiOn Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Okay. This is some bullshit right now. My Dad knows fuck all. He is trying to force me into working hard in shit I couldn't care about. I tried explaining to him that I don't need history and all that nonsense for a job programming in C++ or PHP or Ruby or JS but he says I do and keeps shit talking me that I will never ever be successful now I fucked up my GCSE results.

I showed him my earnings online after he said I haven't made any money ever and I showed him days where I made more than he made in a week in a day and the days were going for atleast 18 in a row. He then tells me that I was violating copyright laws when I made what I was selling myself and tries saying that I copied and pasted. He tells me that whatever I was doing was shit and it is silly schemes.

He is a fucking dick. He tells me I live in a dream world because I want to be successful and be rich, not work 40 hours a week for an average paid job. He tells me that I will never ever become successful.

All this because of fucking GCSE results. I can guarantee that if I ever do become a millionaire or even richer, he will have none of it. I plan to move out as soon as possible and move to Australia, which is what I am definitely doing and never make contact with him again until he accepts that I am not a waste of time because I failed 2 GCSE's and sees that the internet isn't a place to waste time but a place to learn...

I mean, I'm a 17 year old kid who is fluent in C++, PHP, Ruby, Perl and JS and he is trying to tell me that I have fucked up and I will never get a job with that knowledge because nobody cares for it. Absolute fucking idiot. To think I actually thought he was interested in what I do online.

Everything he said has really got me down. Just need to vent.

EDIT: He also flipped out because I took Spanish as an option in year 11. Apparently it is a useless option. It's what I want to do .Honestly bro , Don't listen to what people say on this thread
It is your life
If you want to do something do it

Visi0n - August 21, 2014, 9:50 am

(Aug 21, 2014 09:48 AM)Nine Lives Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Honestly bro , Don't listen to what people say on this thread
It is your life
If you want to do something do it
Must be hard having nine lives man!:))

RiotServices - August 21, 2014, 9:52 am

When I was living at home. I told my mom I did not want to find a job and focus on my online money making. She threw me out and I moved into my grandmothers house (I was 17). I ended up making like $5,000 in about 2 months. I showed my mom and she still called me a stupid fuck and said. "Online money is great, and i'm proud of you. The point is that you need real life work experience and not just be unsocial and sit on your computer 24/7."
I get where she was coming from, but I'm not going to change my lifestyle because other kids are having a social life.

Username Unknown - August 21, 2014, 9:58 am

My friend is in the same boat. He's an amazing artist but his mom tells him that he's not all that great. Now he has in his head that he's not good enough to pursue it. Don't follow his path. Programming will take you far. Tell your dad to fuck off.

Griev?us - August 21, 2014, 9:58 am

(Aug 21, 2014 09:41 AM)Visi0n Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) You don't pay for education in England. I could pay for my own bills actually and I alone could pay for the house I am living in right now. I will be moving out as soon as possible.Why didn't you do it earlier then.
If you're making money online is it really that fluent and you can promise you can pay for yourself?

Visi0n - August 21, 2014, 9:59 am

(Aug 21, 2014 09:52 AM)EVGA Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) When I was living at home. I told my mom I did not want to find a job and focus on my online money making. She threw me out and I moved into my grandmothers house (I was 17). I ended up making like $5,000 in about 2 months. I showed my mom and she still called me a stupid fuck and said.

"Online money is great, and i'm proud of you. The point is that you need real life work experience and not just be unsocial and sit on your computer 24/7."

I get where she was coming from, but I'm not going to change my lifestyle because other kids are having a social life.

Man, I feel exactly the same, I make money online and when I showed my Dad earlier he assumed that I was stealing someone elses work. I feel offended man, that is like saying I can't do shit for myself. I have a social life too, I go out every night with friends and have a drink on the weekend and what not. Adults now do not realise that computers and online is the future, knowing how to change a lightbulb or fix a boiler or put a roof on is great and we need that but that's just not me and I don't want to end up doing something like that for the rest of my life because my parents forced me to when I was young.

w17w - August 21, 2014, 9:59 am

Fuck his opinion then, lol.

The only one that's going to get to live through your decisions is you, regardless of them being good or bad.

Visi0n - August 21, 2014, 10:01 am

(Aug 21, 2014 09:58 AM)Grievous Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Why didn't you do it earlier then.

If you're making money online is it really that fluent and you can promise you can pay for yourself?

If you want to know the truth, it is because if I do that, I am young now, my house will get trashed, I will constantly have friends over, I will never have the time to clean it up (the room I am sat in now is a constant mess), I cannot be bothered to go shopping, etc. The reason for this is because I don't have to. If I had to, I would do these things.

Jay™ - August 21, 2014, 10:01 am

(Aug 21, 2014 09:46 AM)Manifest122 Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) It's always a good idea to have a backup plan. You will need at least an A to do ICT as an A level that is if you plan to get hired for a programming company, freelance is another story.

This is utter nonsense, I got a C in my ICT GCSE and I did A level computing...

OT:

OP don't let your parents get to you, just listen to them and shrug it off because at the end of the day life is what YOU want it to be not what your parents want it to be. If at 17 you're fluent in those languages, you would be an asset to any company. I got a job as a Network administrator with little to no programming knowledge and my main duty is making bash scripts (I have one open as I type this xD). So If somebody like you with all that knowledge on all those languages you're going to be making £50k a year by the time you're 20.

ZZoS - August 21, 2014, 10:04 am programming is great.

and you can get an amazing job being a programmer. but you'll need grades to get your foot in the door and an interview.

just get your C's in english math and science. if you've got those man, nothings stopping you.

but, do you want to be programming behind a screen all day every day for the rest of your life.

i mean, its not my idea of a dream but if its something you definitely want to do, run with it, dont let anybody tell you different.

Griev?us - August 21, 2014, 10:04 am

(Aug 21, 2014 10:01 AM)Visi0n Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) If you want to know the truth, it is because if I do that, I am young now, my house will get trashed, I will constantly have friends over, I will never have the time to clean it up (the room I am sat in now is a constant mess), I cannot be bothered to go shopping, etc. The reason for this is because I don't have to. If I had to, I would do these things. That's called responsibility.
When you're working with programming you have dead lines, that's responsibility.
You really think life is easy after school don't you?
I'm not trying to sound harsh just trying to get a point through.

Visi0n - August 21, 2014, 10:04 am

(Aug 21, 2014 10:01 AM)jayk555 Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) This is utter nonsense, I got a C in my ICT GCSE and I did A level computing...

OT:

OP don't let your parents get to you, just listen to them and shrug it off because at the end of the day life is what YOU want it to be not what your parents want it to be. If at 17 you're fluent in those languages, you would be an asset to any company. I got a job as a Network administrator with little to no programming knowledge and my main duty is making bash scripts (I have one open as I type this xD). So If somebody like you with all that knowledge on all those languages you're going to be making £50k a year by the time you're 20.

Man thanks for this, I know that with my assets I can make money, I can get a job easily but I am happy as I am now making money online, if I need a job, I can easily get one, you don't even need to put an application in nowadays, I could just E-mail an employer of a company that requires some technical skills and make money.

(Aug 21, 2014 10:04 AM)Grievous Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) That's called responsibility.
When you're working with programming you have dead lines, that's responsibility.
You really think life is easy after school don't you?
I'm not trying to sound harsh just trying to get a point through.
Life can be easy after school if I play this right. If I play it wrong, it will be hard.

However, I am 99.9% certain I already have done it right.

Tomb Raider - August 21, 2014, 10:06 am

Jesus they are fucking GCSE's at the end of the day. They mean nothing to be honest as long as you have your Maths, Science and English almost any college will take you for A-levels

Your dad is being too harsh on you.

Spending - August 21, 2014, 10:10 am

There's many very wealthy people in the world, who all graduated from the street, without a diploma (Meek Mill). Anyway, if you do your coding right and you love it, fuck history and other shit subjects in school. It is only waste of time. If you're really burning for programming and you actually are good at it, and you are able to make money. Then FUCK everybody and everything else.

I wish you good luck in the future. I just think your daddy can't face the truth, that you nowadays can be succesfull, without having a shitty job at some shitty local store. Or by not having a fucking graduation that takes you 5 years, and then you can start getting a normal job. It's just something old people can't face, or thats atleast how I have experienced it at my own. Even tho my own father has started to understand the internet world, and right now he is very happy for me taking an education based on programming.

Grin - August 21, 2014, 10:13 am

Well, shit happens. You'll grow up, move out, be successful or fail. Maybe even neither. Maybe you'll just be well off.

°FIRE° - August 21, 2014, 10:15 am

(Aug 21, 2014 09:43 AM)Weed??? Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Move out then, you have to be 16 to move into a flat in the UK. The rent is low and flats are better than houses in my opinion.

Flats are shit ton of money, I would wait til an house, be alot cheaper :P

The Weed Connoisseur - August 21, 2014, 10:16 am

(Aug 21, 2014 10:15 AM)°FIRE° Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Flats are shit ton of money, I would wait til an house, be alot cheaper :P

How? A flat is what, like £300 a month, whilst houses are £500 a month.

en-V-us - August 21, 2014, 10:18 am

Tbh pal, your grades dont really affect the rest of your life i never got great school grades but im in a better position now than most of the poeple i went to school with, work hard and things will turn out your way :)

SlightlyNuclear - August 21, 2014, 10:19 am

(Aug 21, 2014 09:46 AM)Manifest122 Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) It's always a good idea to have a backup plan. You will need at least an A to do ICT as an A level that is if you plan to get hired for a programming company, freelance is another story.

That's complete bullshit. A "programming company" as you so eloquently put it wouldn't give a shit about A-Levels or even GCSEs.

They'd care about your Uni degree, past experience and current potential.

WZDY - August 21, 2014, 10:19 am

Luckily, my dad is the person who most incourajes me into programming, he is owner of a big company, like as big as Sony for example & he loves to see me doing this programming. What he doesn't like neither does my mom is hackforums because they think I can get banned from some countries and have cautions, pretty much they think making money online is illegal!

Cheers & best of luck with your life, hopefully you'll prove your dad wrong ?

Astral™ - August 21, 2014, 10:19 am

Use this as motivation to get rich and prove him wrong.

labroca - August 21, 2014, 10:22 am

Your dad is technically correct, yes you may be making significant earnings right now, but what happens in thirty years? You can't ewhore for your whole life, programming languages will change, and you will be stuck uneducated.

Nasyr - August 21, 2014, 10:24 am

Well lets be fair here, you are his son and basically from what I gathered he is worried about you, but all you see is him having a go at you.

Visi0n - August 21, 2014, 10:24 am

(Aug 21, 2014 10:22 AM)Sather Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Your dad is technically correct, yes you may be making significant earnings right now, but what happens in thirty years? You can't ewhore for your whole life, programming languages will change, and you will be stuck uneducated.

ewhore? Who said anything about that? I have never done that and never will. As programming languages change, I will change with them. I can't ever see C++ changing though; it's lasted for 41 years and there infinite potential in it.

Bruckster - August 21, 2014, 11:09 am

Move out man, i had to but its not hard with me coding in c++, java,html,sql, and python. I live comfortably at the young age of 17. Rent a 2 bedroom apartment with me and my girl, and make a's with the occasinal b and im in my senior year. Its my dream and my reality for working my ass of in life.

Poppy. - August 21, 2014, 11:11 am

(Aug 21, 2014 10:19 AM)Astral™ Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Use this as motivation to get rich and prove him wrong.

Yeah man,
you need to prove him wrong! ?

??nsomnia™ - August 21, 2014, 11:12 am

You might be some master programmer but no one will hire you if you don't have the education to prove it.

Wafflemonger - August 21, 2014, 11:14 am

Honestly, it's your choice what you do in life, good or bad. You should make your own path as you are 17 years old now, you should have at least some sense of who you are as a person. If you truly are fluent in all those languages, then that's totally awesome and you know WAY MORE than 90% of people out there at the age of 17, great job man. Now convert that skillset into a job and all will be golden. May I recommend working in the Open Source community to build up a profile?

jaisyxxx - August 21, 2014, 11:53 am dawg how much u earning then?

i wanna know haha

geraldososa - August 21, 2014, 2:09 pm

He is just worry about you. What would you do if your child gets an F on every subject and it happens every year of his life, you would tell him that he is not going to be successful.

Visi0n - August 21, 2014, 2:28 pm

(Aug 21, 2014 02:09 PM)geraldososa Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) He is just worry about you. What would you do if your child gets an F on every subject and it happens every year of his life, you would tell him that he is not going to be successful.

I didn't get Fs I got Ds and one C. I hate saying that, even though I don't care lol.

Deany - August 21, 2014, 2:29 pm

Wow that's terrible. He should support you and be proud of you wtf.

drugs - August 21, 2014, 2:36 pm

Your dad didn't grow up in the generation of the internet. The way he grew up as a child is completely different from the way you/we grew up. His perspective on life is completely different than that of ours.

Just do what you said here: "I can guarantee that if I ever do become a millionaire or even richer, he will have none of it"

VYKTOR - August 21, 2014, 2:47 pm

You should do what you wish to.

This thread has made me think about my life too.

I'm studying in a University of my parent's choice & I didn't want to but I just can't disobey them because I love them too much.

I think if sever conditions persist, I'll take the same course as you.

Noiz - August 21, 2014, 2:47 pm

First off, Spanish looks great on a resume. Second off, fuck your dad; don't be successful because he wants you to, do this shit for yourself so YOU can be happy, who the fuck cares what other people think.

Manifest122 - August 22, 2014, 8:28 am

Quote:This is utter nonsense, I got a C in my ICT GCSE and I did A level computing...

How the fuck did you manage to get a C in GCSE ICT?

In my school, to do a subject for A level there is a minimum requirement that you got an A at GCSE.

The Fuhrer - August 22, 2014, 9:01 am

How are you 17 yet got your GCSE results (I assume) yesterday? Did you have to retake maths and English? I was 16 when I got mine..

The Weed Connoisseur - August 22, 2014, 1:02 pm

(Aug 22, 2014 08:28 AM)Manifest122 Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) How the fuck did you manage to get a C in GCSE ICT?

In my school, to do a subject for A level there is a minimum requirement that you got an A at GCSE. At my school people who have just left mostly got A*/A/B, barely any C's, and the college I plan on going to you need 5 C's or above, taking BTEC Computing so it's easier and just focuses on the subject I want.

The Fuhrer - August 22, 2014, 1:15 pm

(Aug 22, 2014 01:02 PM)Weed??? Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) At my school people who have just left mostly got A*/A/B, barely any C's, and the college I plan on going to you need 5 C's or above, taking BTEC Computing so it's easier and just focuses on the subject I want.

BTEC Computing or BTEC IT? I've never heard of BTEC Computing but it sounds better than BTEC IT which i am doing this coming school year.

The Weed Connoisseur - August 22, 2014, 1:20 pm

(Aug 22, 2014 01:15 PM)The Fuhrer Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) BTEC Computing or BTEC IT? I've never heard of BTEC Computing but it sounds better than BTEC IT which i am doing this coming school year. Well it's a bit of both, here;

Matt Bomer ?? - August 22, 2014, 1:29 pm

He's caring, and looking out for you, you went get payed an awful lot in 1 IT related job, at least I don't think.

Anyway good luck and hope you get on w/ your father.

The Fuhrer - August 22, 2014, 3:32 pm

(Aug 22, 2014 01:20 PM)Weed??? Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Well it's a bit of both, here;

Ahh yeah thats what im doing too. Is your 60 or 90 credit?

Cyan - August 22, 2014, 3:36 pm

Dude he's just looking out for you.

He wan't the best for you.

gringo - August 22, 2014, 3:41 pm

Your pops is probably a hackforums member on the slick and is just talking shit, prove him wrong and don't fuck up.

Based God Tyrone - August 22, 2014, 4:02 pm

(Aug 21, 2014 09:41 AM)Visi0n Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) You don't pay for education in England. I could pay for my own bills actually and I alone could pay for the house I am living in right now. I will be moving out as soon as possible.

Actually he does pay for your education and health care through his taxes.

How about you shut the fuck up and show him some respect. You failed 2 GCSE's, I take it either science, English or maths?

No one will employ you unless you passed all 3 of those subjects and now you will have to re-sit them at college so yes, he has a right to be mad you little arrogant shit.

You have NO idea how much it costs to own a house.

He has a mortgage, he pays taxes, he pays for electricity, water and gas on top of insurance and food.

So I suggest you show him respect you little shit and grow up, he pays to provide you with everything you need.

This just shows how immature you are.

xXRippedMasterXx - August 22, 2014, 5:05 pm

You will do just fine with out him telling you that you'll never be anything because you make more money then him by typing on a keyboard then he does digging ditches or whatever he does.

Pred?tor - August 22, 2014, 5:06 pm

Doesn't matter how good of a coder you are, unless you're one of the 1% who actually make it big. The guy with the good grades and degree will get the job before you every time.