Thread: Add account closures to bans.php

Programming - September 2, 2014, 5:39 pm

Whenever I see an account closer, I think "wow, how did they get closed?" and I don't really have a way of finding out since there is no closed accounts on /bans.php

I agree, it has always a habit of mine to be nosy ?

rudeman - September 2, 2014, 5:41 pm

This would be a nice addition, hopefully it gets added!

Would be nice to see I guess. I'm not a big follow of who gets banned though.

Not a bad suggestion, although i havent had much experience on this board, most boards have closed accounts on their bans php.

Even though I can't see it, I still believe it should be added.

You can always read Sir's news too find out. However this is a complicated implication that won't be done.

Only the known people get on that list as someone has to mention it to Sir I believe.

Suggested and denied, sorry OP about that.

This is easy. It's a quick edit in the query to select banned and closed accounts. eg: (AND account_status == 'closed')

I don't feel like waiting every week or two to find out.

VRUMM - September 2, 2014, 5:50 pm

This is kept a secret for a reason. Even to the account that was closed.

Rote - September 2, 2014, 5:52 pm

Well 1st of wish leet could see this hah

But yeah this would be nice sometimes you see people on here than boom there gone I see there account closed and wonder why.

Silent ? - September 2, 2014, 5:53 pm

I like to snoop around in there.. this would be cool except its denied.

cyberducky - September 2, 2014, 5:56 pm

It's a good idea and I support it since I am also curious about people when they get closed.

Aceman - September 2, 2014, 6:49 pm

It's been said that admins close hundreds of accounts from multi accounters and ban evaders every day. It would be an inefficient use of their time to have to give a reason for each one. The fact of the matter is we're lucky to be able to see bans and we really don't need to see closures.
