Out of curiosity, how secure are your servers? As in, If I were to host some pretty confidential info, who would have access apart from myself?

We have a security set up so nobody else on the server can check your data. It's safe.

Marshmallow Man - September 6, 2014, 2:14 pm

So are these accounts on RDPS / dedis or what? Do we get our own personal one?

+Haze - September 6, 2014, 2:15 pm

"My RDP's are the best and most high quality on HF". Such wild claims need proof? Can you provide proof yours is the best?

well then - September 6, 2014, 2:20 pm

These are on dedicated servers and we have rdp's setup on it.
cpu usage is very minimal around 5% most of the time
Server runs 24/7 and has 1gbs

He's asking for proof. You can't just make such a bold statement and not back it up with any proof.

Not home. Will add proof later. New rule. No mining.

Thank you for the fast reply; just a few more questions:

What are the limitations on what can be done on the server? For example, would a certain individual be able to use it for, lets say, another version of Anubis? To infect the server with malicious software?

Do we have a limitation on the upload/download speed?

How many users do you usually have per machine?

You state 32GB of RAM in the OP, is that per machine, or per user? If per user, are we only allowed to use a certain percentage?

Regards;
~Aidan

Please update your thread with that then, as I can see quite a few users being mislead by this.
