Thread: Read this before you make a new thread here.

SysAdmin - September 12, 2014, 2:42 pm

So, with all the beginners

1. Always use the search button for obvious topics, double search it, fuck it, even triple search it with different words, it's that simple to find a topic, and you won't get on most people's nerves. If there are no results, make a new thread and ask.
2. Don't ask us to do "insert thing here" because we won't do it for you. Simple. We're not your personal army, and neither will we ever be, SPECIALLY if you have a single post, and that post is you asking us to DDoS a server cause some guy beat you in a call of duty game.
3. I've said this before, and i'll say it again. DO NOT HACK YOUR SCHOOL WEBSITES. The fact that they're considered government property will bring you to your knees if you get caught, and if you even attempt to hack it, you'll face more security than you actually thought the school had. Read this before you do something stupid: <https://hackforums.net/showthread.php?tid=4094195>

Spoiler (Click to View)It took you 5 minutes to read this, probably even less. Was that so hard?

Or they can read the 100 threads that say the same exact thing as this.

Took me 30 seconds to read it.

OT: This section is designed for people who are new to the site. While it is annoying, I almost expect to see twenty different Personal Army Request threads here.

All are lost somewhere down the millions of threads. But since noone actually bothers to use the search function, this is for a quick update.

Yes this thread is for new members and beginners but it is designed for learning and to ask questions when you get stuck or need direction, not to request hacks within the first post like the OP mentioned.

R?DSPY - September 12, 2014, 3:54 pm

Kicking this thread to keep it running.

This thread's been made, a lot. Unfortunately unless a sticky were to be acquired the amount of threads won't really decrease asking the same generic questions.

Cyber Saint - September 12, 2014, 4:44 pm

This will simply get buried with the rest unfortunately. These things likely won't change.
