Thread: Anti Virus Killer.

IcYSeptember - September 22, 2014, 8:27 am

Just cooked up a tool for a tutorial I wrote. Here it is. This is meant as an educational tool, on how AV killers work, to go along with my tutorial.

Want to read the tutorial? Click here:

<https://hackforums.net/showthread.php?tid=4457569>

This tool targets the antivirus that's installed on the system, and attempts to kill it. Some Antiviruses, like Avast!, guard against this, though.

Please note this tool may take a minute to start up. However, it won't kill your AV until you click the button.

WARNING:

Don't fuck around with the "Custom" option. It could crash your computer, render files unusable, and completely fuck up a computer. IF you HAVE to use it out of curiosity, I may as well warn you about how it works. You feed it a direct path to an EXE file (for example, C:\windows\system32\notepad.exe). It kills the process forcefully, deletes the file forever, and renders it unable to open ever again.

Want to know how to reverse it?

Simply download the beta of my tool, Secur, and run the "Fix AV" option.

You'll more than likely need to unintall and reinstall your AV, however.

This thing is asking me to use admin priviledge, but my school PC doesn't allow it. What do I do to hacker my school?

That's Aura, not Aurora.

Close, though. I get their names mixed up sometimes too.
