Magikarp.pw has easy embed code now.

Visible player

```
<iframe src="http://magikarp.pw/embed.php" width="130" height="30" frameBorder="0" scrolling="no">Browser not compatible.</iframe>
```

Invisible player

```
<iframe src="http://magikarp.pw/embed.php" width="0" height="0" frameBorder="0" scrolling="no">Browser not compatible.</iframe>
```

Thanks for the share. I personally don't embed music players on any sites I create unless the client specifically asks for it... and if he/she does, I don't include it in my portfolio. It's just not professional.

Erm I'm confused. You thanked me for the share then you called it not professional?

Tbh it depends what the site is for.

Erm.. you know HTML5 has tags specifically for this...

You know.. `<audio>`.

I believe that magikarp.pw provides their own specific services which play music as a radio would, rather than a single audio clip.

What he said. The stream is 320kbps btw.

Code <audio controls autoplay>

```
<source src="http://104.128.224.41:8000/;*.nsv" type="audio/mp3" />
</audio>
```

The website is mine yeah. I posted a thread on it a while back. The design and shit is all by me.
