Thread: Looking for a Philosophical/Strategic/Modern Anime.

Proficiency - September 23, 2014, 5:54 pm

Animes I've watched:

Attack on Titan (Loved it)

Full Metal Alchemist (Loved it)

Death Note (Freakin Loved it)

Akame Ga Kill (Sort of like this cause of the action, but the storyline was shitty in my opinion)

Tokyo Ghoul (Loved it)

Soul Eater (Okay)

Log Horizon (Loved it)

Code Geass (My favorite Anime, had everything I'm looking for.)

Sword Art Online (Liked the first 13 episodes, hated it as soon as you know what [Don't want to spoil])

Zankyou no Terror/Terror in Resonance (Loved it, ending had some feels, just the way I like it)

There are some that I know I'm forgetting. Will edit when I remember.
But can someone recommend an Anime for me to watch?

Kouichi - September 23, 2014, 5:56 pm

Try Angel Beats, it has a lot of action.

/Waits for papa eightworks to come and trash all recommendations.

Chips Ahoy McCoy - September 23, 2014, 7:03 pm

Check out Zankyou no Terror. It's the best one this season imo.
Strategy/Psychological.

eight - September 23, 2014, 7:35 pm

Alright, I'm going to give you shit you should watch. If you don't, fuck you and you're missing out.

1. Kill La Kill (you need to shut your brain off)
2. Noragami (10/10 masterpiece, watch first)
3. Samurai Champloo (watch dub)
4. Tengen Toppa Gurren Lagann
5. Aldnoah.Zero (stunning action and all the above of what you're looking for)
6. Bakemonogatari (starts slow, picks up after ep 3 or 4, 10/10 not as action-y though)
7. Welcome to the NHK (I preferred dub, 9/10)

8. Zankyou no Terror

Order you should watch:

Noragami (only 12 eps)

Zankyou no Terror (12 eps)

Aldnoah.Zero (only 12 eps)

Rest is up to you.

Diji - September 23, 2014, 7:38 pm

My top choice for you would be Hamatora The Animation.

Should have all of what you're looking for, especially in the 2nd season.

The 1st season will be a little slower, but it's necessary for the plot and isn't all that bad.

http://myanimelist.net/anime/20689/Hamatora\_The\_Animation

<http://myanimelist.net/anime/23421/Re:%E2%90%A3Hamatora>

My second choice is Zankyou no Terror, as people have been suggesting a lot.

I also recommend Sunday Without God. I'll first note that there's really no reference to religion nor is there any religious type folk who go crazy or anything. It's more about "What would the world be like if God just left". The villages/world has a sort of Attack on Titan vibe in the sense that it's less technological than ours. Otherwise it's not as if humanity is on the brink of extinction like in BlackBullet/Attack on Titan.

There's some bits of action/strategy but not much. But it's still pretty interesting.

http://myanimelist.net/anime/16009/Kamisama\_no\_Inai\_Nichiyoubi

Ergo Proxy. A future society with androids and whatnot. Has an Attack on Titan vibe in the sense that people live in walls and can't explore the outside world. A fairly mysterious anime with some action and fighting too.

http://myanimelist.net/anime/790/Ergo\_Proxy

Mahou Shoujo Madoka?Magica. I quote this one over in SRPP a lot because of its philosophical value. There's also fighting and whatnot.

http://myanimelist.net/anime/9756/Mahou\_Shoujo\_Madoka%E2%98%85Magica

Here's some more... you can searchem on myanimelist yourself.

Psycho Pass

Black Bullet

Eve no Jikan

Steins;Gate

Robotics;Note

Gokukoku no Brynhildr

The "A Certain Magical Index / A Certain Scientific Railgun" series.

Edit: Here's an ordered list of all of my suggestions from best to worst.

Hamatora The Animation + Re: Hamatora
Zankyou no Terror
Sunday Without God

Psycho Pass
Steins;Gate
Ergo Proxy

The "A Certain Magical Index / A Certain Scientific Railgun" series.
Black Bullet
Mahou Shoujo Madoka?Magica

Gokukoku no Brynhildr
Eve no Jikan
Robotics;Note

I can't think of something other than evangelion, but idk, some people like it some people hate it, you choose.

PS: Don't watch KKK that's pleb tier

You always seem to recommend the same shit man. I can get behind all but 2 of these as good shows, but the only ones on that list that actually fit what he's looking for are ZnT and maybe Aldnoah.Zero if we stretch the margin a bit..

I can vouch for this recommendation, it's fucking awesome and has an amazing soundtrack.

I recommend the same shit because most of the people posting here are new to anime and that's what I think they would all like. He said "action" so I threw in some in there with plenty of fight scenes. I recommend better anime in the lounge, anybody that posts a thread for recs are new to anime so I recommend them the same. All I do is literally c+p on every rec thread, they all ask for the same. Gurren Lagann would fit most, same with A.Z since he liked Code Geass. I threw in Samurai Champloo since he seems too like mainstream anime and the dub isn't bad. Welcome to the NHK is pretty philosophical and thought provoking.

I don't know, here OP:

You've barely watched 1k anime episodes, if anything, YOUR opinion would be the one people shouldn't trust. (Not that I'm bragging anyways, just going by the same thought as you did)

I don't update my hummingbird or MAL often enough for you to know what I've seen but it's fine if you think that's relevant. I was basing it on the fact that you can take a show like MN seriously, while calling a show that is clearly meant to be funny "pleb tier". It's an action comedy, a pretty decent one at that.

Kek, judging my tastes? What kind of a dumb human being are you? How can you judge anyone based on their tastes? Tastes are subjective, it has nothing to do with taking an anime "seriously" I don't take any anime seriously, they exist to entertain me and nothing else, who the fuck are you to judge me because I liked something that entertained me?

By saying KKK was pleb tier I was telling you my thoughts but I never judged you for liking it, you never saw me arguing with you or anyone else or saying they have shit taste because they like it.

You are probably too young to even understand basic philosophy.

I don't think you even understand what philosophy is. It's irrelevant to this discussion. Irony is how you're attacking him now.

No it is not irrelevant. When the subjective card is used you're entering philosophic ground.

The fact that he is trying to judge me based on something as subjective as my tastes just means he's far too young to even have basic grasp on philosophy.

But then again, you're trying to defend him when you attack people with cancer jokes like a teenager, nothing unexpected from you.

Prove me wrong. You still can't right?

You haven't given me a single decent reply to even remotely try to prove me wrong, instead you prefer to attack me (and others) with cancer and autism jokes.

I find it awfully ironic you're still hanging on to the autism thing when you openly insulted him right back and take every opportunity to bring it back up in support of your empty accusations on his age or maturity. Clearly the behavior of a grown man with years of advocacy experience under his belt, right?

The better man would choose to ignore barren and meaningless conflict. It seems you only have so much advocacy experience under your own belt, young padawan.

Pulling hollow, baseless accusations is one form of insult, though how efficient it is depends on the receiving party.

You don't honestly expect me to have to show you where you pulled such bullshit.

Again, people reply to me pretending to be right but they can never even formulate a decent reply to back up their statements.

The only accusation I've made about him was that he was probably just a kid or if he was indeed a grown man then his parents just didn't educate him properly or he has good parents but he's too cool for this world.

Call that an insult? I call it reality, because it is. No person with a sane mind would ever insult people with cancer and autism jokes, I and my friends used to do that when we were 12 playing games online, if he's a grown man he should have the decency to at the very least act like one.

You're either new to the internet or are under the misconception this place is ICJ. This is a forumboard, and you're taking it awfully serious. If you expect professionalism, you might not want to do it in a place that enforces anonymity.

Virtue is worthless on the internet, and you know it. You're not applying for a job or conversing with a customer, you're talking about opinions with some fat guy from Kentucky. Seriously, take that stick out of your ass.

There's absolutely nothing subjective about being the better man, not in the sense that you're implying anyway. That you would even try to claim so makes you a hypocrite. It's a simple thing, but you've been trying to make yourself out to be the better man since this whole thing started.

you've been trying to make yourself out to be the better man since this whole thing started.

It has nothing to do with taking this seriously, It's simply childish to insult people with any kind of disease or condition, one thing is trolling which I'm all up for it else I wouldn't visit 4chan (Only god knows how much I've trolled there) but then there's a difference between being childish and trolling, and don't even come to me saying he's trolling because if he is then hes horrible at it to say the least.

Regardless of how much of a friend you can be to him (not that it's bad to defend a friend, I'm all up for it) you know it yourself that it's childish to insult people like he is, being humble is a virtue, sure you don't have to care about what people think of you on the internet nor have to prove anything to anyone but being a childish and disrespectful towards others doesn't really make it any better.

also about the whole "better man" thing, it's subjective, if for you a better man is someone who takes what other people say to him even though he genuinely knows that they aren't completely right, then your definition is different from mine. A better man for me isn't someone who just doesn't give a shit or someone who just doesn't bother to reply being a better man for me is showing the person that he's wrong and that try to correct him/her (correcting as in try to help him behave better or simply tell the person that he/she isn't completely right which is kind of being on the defensive / protecting yourself in a respectful and educated manner.)

But like I said, it's different for each person.

Well for one, I wasn't judging you as a person and I'm quite aware of tastes being subjective. I just don't agree with your particular taste in anime, deal with it.

Trolling and "acting childish" is directly related. People act "childish" on the internet for the exact same reason people troll, and both boil down to the same root which is anonymity. His initial post wasn't even a part of our argument and could have easily been ignored. There was literally nothing in the content of his post that would make you the better man by correcting. Out of the first four posts you exchanged between each other, I can see a similar amount of maturity on either sides. I recognize what you're saying about being childish and disrespectful doesn't make things better, but it's still the internet. You see people using diseases, conditions, skin color, disorders, sexuality and you name it as insults practically everywhere you go. What do you do? Well unless you're suicidal, you ignore it.

And don't get me wrong, I don't give a fuck about that guy. We've had like two conversations before.

Edit: You still haven't enlightened me about the philosophical entrails of your argument. Get on it.

Sorry you're right you didn't judge me as a person, I stand corrected in that one, my bad, probably read your reply wrong at that moment.

but lets say I gave MN a 10/10 but then I also gave 5 other anime the exact same result as you did, would you still say that you didn't agree with my taste in anime even though we have such a high matching stats in terms of rating?

You're basing your opinion on a single anime rating, we all have favorites and I vote based on my personal enjoyment whereas I voted MN a 10/10 because it was to this date the anime that has entertained me the most regardless of how many plot holes it has (which it does have, I'm not denying it) but that doesn't mean that my taste is "shit" as most people refer it to nowadays, I mean, if you saw my MAL then yea it would be fine if you said you didn't agree with my taste and I'd be fine with that too, but being "aggressive" to me because I gave MN a 10/10 even though you haven't seen me rate any other anime is kind of.. I don't know what to call, maybe just wrong?

(Sep 25, 2014 12:44 PM)Rakshasa Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Trolling and "acting childish" is directly related. People act "childish" on the internet for the exact same reason people troll, and both boil down to the same root which is anonymity. His initial post wasn't even a part of our argument and could have easily been ignored. There was literally nothing in the content of his post that would make you the better man by correcting. Out of the first four posts you exchanged between each other, I can see a similar amount of maturity on either sides. I recognize what you're saying about being childish and disrespectful doesn't make things better, but it's still the internet. You see people using diseases, conditions, skin color, disorders, sexuality and you name it as insults practically everywhere you go.

What do you do? Well unless you're suicidal, you ignore it.

And don't get me wrong, I don't give a fuck about that guy. We've had like two conversations before. There's a time for this and there's a time for that, it's what I'm trying to get you to understand though, I'm fine if he was trolling me in the proper time, I myself troll quite frequently both here and in 4chan but there's times where trolling just doesn't fit and shouldn't even be "used" if you know what I mean, wasn't sure what to call it.

If he's having a serious discussion with me it's no place to troll or act childish (they are connect but one thing isn't necessarily the other) which is the reason why I'm saying it's bad for him to insult people like that.

Of course I ignore these comments, sometimes I even laugh about them (hey, although they are morally wrong, they are still funny sometimes) but being like that ALL the time is just wrong, but then again IT'S my opinion, perhaps it's fine with you that he trolls all the time, and I'm fine with you telling me that, if you told me that you're fine with his behavior then I'm not gonna turn on you and call you out on him, but don't expect me to not call him out on being childish / "trolling" all the time.

Perhaps it could be wrong, but let me be more specific on this being based off of two particular anime. One being MN, the other KLK. We have complete opposite opinions on the two it appears, which is fine by me but remember this is a thread in relation to OP. We should be focusing on what he might be interested in, our tastes aside.

YES MAN, FUCKING CODE GEASS, NOTHING CAN COMPARE TO IT, unfortunately after that anime ended ( after i finished it) I haven't really watched much after.

But I heard yu yu hakusho is pretty good, aswell as full metal alchemist brotherhood, im guessing it does not fall under full metal alchemist xD

So I finished watching Zankyou no Terror (Terror in Resonance), and I must say, kudo's to everyone who recommended it to me.

I figured that I should edit the title a bit, as I'm looking for anime's revolving more around the Philosophical & Strategic theme. To be more specific, I like anime where geniuses are going against each other (Like Death Note), or at least the main character having to solve problems by thinking, rather than showing off their Overpowered roars & punches. I don't like too much love dovey stuff, but it's acceptable I guess, and I would prefer for it to be closer to modern age. Not all samurai age or ninja era. Hope I'm not too picky.
