Realism is the best way to go, if you set yourself impossible targets, you won't reach them.

@NadeFame - October 4, 2014, 7:48 pm

I see myself dying on the inside but playing it as if I'm actually happy. Living alone or with someone that I can find that likes me for who I am. I'll be playing video games and making a stable income but I still won't be happy.

tired- - October 4, 2014, 7:51 pm

Laziness will slowly catch up with me and I'll die a sad, meaningless death.

Working for a tech firm as a network admin or security consultant and living in small bachelor apartment because I will be spending most of my money on my car. That's a sweet 10 year plan right there.

I will be living up north deep in the woods in a decent size house secluded by trees for miles. I will be a psychologist for high risk patients either online or in person. I will have a giant green house to grow all sorts of plants, herbs, and veggies. I will travel to the 9 main places I've always wanted to visit. I will have my masters in psychology and Advanced Studies of the Mind.
