Thread: RealTalkForums - Debate, Discuss and have fun!

Chappie - October 6, 2014, 12:07 pm

RealTalkForums is a forum built upon the idea that you have the freedom to express who you are and say what you feel. All opinions, views, stances and religious beliefs are accepted no matter how controversial they may seem. Although forums are a great place to congregate people of similar interests I feel it is too often these interests always have to be based on one side of the coin. The only thing this forum conforms to is Religious, Scientific, Philosophical and Political content. This isn't a "Liberal", "Conservative", "Libertarian", "Atheist", "Christian" forum. However we welcome all who are of those foundations. Everyone is free to voice their mind and no one not even forum staff can tell you otherwise(Unless it violates code of conduct of course). We are not solely based on this though. We encourage a gaming community, Tech community, Readers, Writers and more. We hope our forum to grow broader than just Religious and political discussion - Come help us make that happen!

What I am trying to sell to you is this. We aim to be a family of people and learn to live together not the same. I am not looking to fill our forum up with a bunch of intellectuals who sit behind their keyboard mastering rhetoric(Although if that is you, it's not discouraged). I want it to be a place the average person can get involved in discussions that effect the world around us, or just want to engage in playful debates. ?

We are starting to do weekly Google Hangouts on Air. Where we engage in playful and serious discussion. Don't judge too harshly on our first one. This was basically a "wing it" hangout to experiment with what we like and don't like.

Upcoming plansWeekly group video/audio discussions in Google Hangouts

We will be having group discussions on various topics and happenings in the world. I plan on this to be a weekly thing once I figure out and adjust to the member bases availability.

Community Blog (Members submit their content)

Members who enjoy writing will be encouraged to help contribute to the forums blogs. Whether you are a communist, capitalist, liberal or conservative we want you participation.

Community Inclusion on Social media

In order to ensure the forum does not confine to one identity I plan to allow all members to contribute to the forums social media accounts. Where your ideas and thoughts can be echoed through the internet.

The Community

Although since we are a new forum the community is small, that doesn't stop our activity. Currently our community is very social for its numbers, strange, but social? I doubt you will be unable to make a friend here and I can promise you may make an enemy? Jokes aside we are a very serious forum as well and can be very passionate about the topics we discuss. This community is designed to hopefully be a place of productive conversation as well as an actively social one. I want this the be a forum that is like a "Family" not just an emotionless debate forum.

Activity

I can promise you activity on any thread you make. The current community is very talkative and opinionated. I can guarantee you will have productive and interesting discussion with people on this forum. There's not a single thing you could post about that they won't have a say in.?

A Community Built By The Community

I really want to stick with the notion of having a community designed by the community. I don't want to go through and make executive decisions altering the forum and destroying the things people love about it. I also am very active when it comes to implementing things members want to see. I am actively in the suggestions section and I am willing to make changes based on what the community would be interested in. I don't want to strictly look at RealTalkForums as mine, but as ours. I say this is the least cliché way possible.

The SRPP forum here is a place for all views & opinions anyway?

Nonetheless, goodluck with your forum.

I just don't see the point in forums when HF has every forum you could need.

You are absolutely right. Hack Forums is a wonderful place, especially for the typical computer junkie because it has every interesting category possible. However, to me and I think some others it is nice to separate yourself. Occasionally here in the SRPP you get flooded with the 14 year olds who joined HF to follow RAT tutorials and come in here to voice an un-educated rant and rave while using big words and auto-correct to camouflage their discussion as an intelligent one. Which is expected with a forum with such a large diverse community. By diverse I mean people who joined here originally for different interest.

However some people find it peaceful to surround yourself with people equally interested in deep thinking to the extent you are. People dedicated to the topics enough to join a forum strictly for that discussion.

All in all it's not about the having a board to discuss these topics on but rather to form a community dedicated to these particular topics. It is not anything intended to replace HF SRPP, because I myself could never trade this section for any site. Like I said though, sometimes it is nice to discuss things with people equally dedicated to the topics.

As far as the "Place for all views & opinions", yes HF SRPP is that also. This is due to Omni being a excellent administrator on this forum and others. The fact of me stating that in the title was to avoid confusion of this forum being a place for specific views.

I hope that cleared the air. Also thanks for the good luck!

Or, more likely, a bunch of people with relatively similar views will join and proceed to circlejerk their shitty opinions.

Not the goal at all. We simply aim for people who enjoy these kinds of discussions. Although the risk exists, I will do my best to prevent any formation of a majority rule circle jerk.

Understandable. Yes there are similar forums, however most of my knowledge have an extreme bias and a member base that encourages circle jerks. With this forum I hope to prevent that.

Don't have a ton of time, but if you are looking for people on the left I'm a democratic socialist- in general, but have different views on different subjects; I love to argue politics but don't take it to a personal level. I sort of need some sleep now but am bookmarking this.

Nice forum,made a few posts there. Part of me would sort of like to keep the politics to another forum- I come to HF for help with tech related issues and some people take politics very personally....

Does need a little more traffic though. But it is very nicely designed and so far it seems there have been nothing but discussions (not personal flame wars) which is good for a political forum. Hopefully it stays that way....

I'm doing my best to keep traffic up. Actually investing money into popularizing a Facebook page, then hopefully once it gets to where I want it, start advertising the forum on there. As far as the flame wars, I hope those stay at a minimum too. However, I do personally enjoy seeing heated discussions? As long as people understand not to take it too personally. After all, this forum is aimed to be a place that is unfiltered. A community with raw and honest discussion where anyone can express their thoughts in which ever form they desire. I do hope educated discussion is the majority however.

(Nov 2, 2014 11:02 AM)Silent Infiltrator Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) How are you guys advertising this? Forums like this are much better if there are more members.

Especially these days, forums don't happen over night. Any forum is better with more members, because the experience of it is based on them. Like I stated in the thread(Might have removed it in a edit, if so I apologize). The goal I have right now, is to build a community that is interested in building a forum together. Most forums actually create a bunch of fake accounts and just copy and paste a shit ton of threads to try and inflate the illusion of activity. I do not plan on doing that. I prefer a more organic approach. Since I prefer the organic approach, yes it is going to be very slow. However given time, and given dedicated members who want to see this forum grow as much as I do, the forum will inevitably reach more activity. So for now I am seeking dedicated members as well as people interested in these social contexts. If you want a super duper popular forum, then as of right now unfortunately my forum might not be for you. I am advertising through things like Twitter(Need to work on this one more), Facebook(Getting promising activity for how new it is imo) and other web forums.

The forum is not aimed at people who want to feel coddled and secure. If you can't handle how people truly are, then unfortunately this may not be the forum for you. My goal for wanting members isn't because I want a popular forum(Though that would be nice). My goal is to aim for a community of people who can dish out their shit as well as receive it.

If you don't feel respected then I am sorry. However, I am not going to tell members how to speak their mind, because it is just that... theirs. The only behavior that will be punishable is overly aggressive and threatening ones.

I don't find that very fair. Hackforums is a wonderful place and every forum has their fair share of skids. In fact, if it weren't for HF I wouldn't have the knowledge of creating a forum, promoting a forum and I definitely wouldn't have the knowledge or interest in RSPP without the section existing on the forum with all of its active intelligent members. I'm with you, dude. Can't go a day without getting straight up gutted by the HF bullies. Gets exhausting, ya know?

I can't promise you no one will hound on you, but what I can promise is that you will also find people you get along with. As of now though our community is fairly friendly. I hope to see you join!

Seems cool. Maybe I'll try it out. Though in my opinion, people already have too many opinions. (See what I did there with contradicting myself?)

Well I hope you do!

Well, I am sorry you guys feel that way. I refuse to deny anyone the ability to speak their mind otherwise it negates the whole purpose of my forum. It is quite easy to ignore people, so I don't see the issue. I am confident you will find people there you enjoy, I'm sorry one person turns you away.

Thank you for at least giving it consideration. I hope you reconsider in the future.

However thank you for at least giving it consideration. I hope you reconsider in the future. I do have an account and I have posted a few times.

I just think Prefix is a child who doesn't understand reason. I honestly think he just trolls.

I'll definitely lurk and post on things. I just won't be interacting with him.

I understand frustrations with his view points. At the same time though I believe you can learn something from everyone. Sometimes when you put aside emotions like frustration and irritation you can find something in common with anyone.

I thank you for joining and I hope you enjoy it there. We have many other members who should make you feel welcome and involved. ?

If you are interested in joining a private user group you should contact the leaders of the Atheist and Theist groups. They are always looking for members.

Also, introduce yourself!

Prefix is the only reason I won't join this forum. Sure you can learn something from everyone but there's no point in debating with someone who won't listen to basic logic and reasoning.

As I said before mybb does have an ignore function. I am sure you will find many people who you will enjoy debating with.

I'm sorry you feel that way but I must stick to my principles. Just as you are free to speak your mind to the fullest extent, so are others, and I must not compromise that. It's unfortunate because I would love to see you on the forum, sincerely. I hope you reconsider in the future, you would be an asset to the forum.

All I gotta say is that is pretty weak. "This guy doesn't agree with me, and chaps my ass in every debate, therefore I refuse to join this forum."

Sorry total tolerance is too much for ya.

There are some things I would love debating with you, but if you prefer your echo chamber that's fine.

We do weekly podcasts/hangouts. If anyone here is interested to participate in the next one let me know!

I've been looking through the 'Website Showcase' forum for about 20 minutes, I have seen very few sites that has shown great impressions and has a good future.

RealTalk Forums has a really good first impression especially with the great leadership & very spirited team workers.

I might signup shortly once I get the time! ^-^

Updated thread with all 5 of our podcast hangouts.

The forum is quiet lately but only because our active and loyal community contributes in many ways outside the forum as well. We have been perusing expansion in other areas recently. We are always loving to have more people participating, let me know if you are interested!
