Thread: HTML Tutorials - The Basics - html, body, head, paragraph, and header tags

t0rch - October 14, 2014, 1:54 am

Hello Hackforums,

I've recently made a video of me quickly going over the extreme basics of HTML. I'm advertising this video here not so much to spread this knowledge but to look for peoples opinions on what to improve on my videos. I'm looking for constructive criticism.

Huh? Wait...you don't like CSS?

Dude...remember when everything was inside of tables and never looked the same on every device (plus the site looked like shit)?

I don't like CSS? I dont' remember saying that in teh video ?

But if I did it wouldn't be entirely inaccurate. I don't like trying to use it. I'm a css n00b. I like CSS and what some people can do with it. But eh I'm a noob.

There will be some CSS tutorials eventually though.

I know that a website without css looks dog shit. Just that css is so extra time waster but it dotn take long codes

```
#fucktable{
font: Arial;

}

Well I wouldn't call it a time waster since you're working towards the overall website... that's like saying that coding the page in the first place is a time waster.

To some it might be. But oh well.

Why would someone hate css. It really adds upto code minimalism.

```
Really dude its like #titanic{
    float: none;
}
```

It really adds up to the display rather than using tables.
