Thread: [PHONE UNLOCKING \[HOT\] \(CHEAP\) \[SAMSUNG & IPHONE\] + LG AND MORE!](#)

well then - October 14, 2014, 6:45 pm

I am starting a phone unlocking service. I'd like to see how far it gets before I make a thread design.

Samsung:

Samsung USA Phones 2009-2013 models: $35, done within 24-48 hours.

Worldwide Express for all Samsung phones: $50 Done within 24 hours depending queue

Customers with specific carriers can contact me, and we can negotiate a deal for your phone and timeframe of order.

iPhone:

Doing iPhones, please message me your phone with carrier and i will quote you.

Paypal only.

Other Brands can be requested, and I can quote you depending on your phone and timeframe.

Last I checked, phones come unlocked anyway.

I just installed a Cricket SIM into my brothers Verizon branded Galaxy S4. It worked fine without unlocking it from Verizon. Same for my Galaxy Note 2.

Are your samsung devices flashed?

I've never been under this impression, maybe both phones happened to be unlocked? I can't imagine why you'd have been able to do that.

I can't say about worldwide, but it's advertised that I can do so without any problems.

My phone is 100% stock from Verizon. Same goes for my brothers phone.

I am under the impression that you had gotten your phone unlocked. That wouldn't be possible.

Mm, maybe Cricket in particular works with Verizon devices?

No idea why that would be true though

Doodlebob™ - October 14, 2014, 7:01 pm

Will unlocking ever be possible for the OnePlus One? I want it, but my carrier doesn't support it >_>

Tyler the Creator???????? - October 14, 2014, 7:10 pm

Please let me know when you can do Iphone 5C! :D Thanks! :)

Nope. I didn't unlock my device via Verizon or from anyone. It worked just fine.

As far as I know phones are unlocked. All 4 phones on my Verizon account have been unlocked the entire time and none of us have made an effort to do so.

it just worked. All I did was add an APN for data.

Verizon phones (any) are only locked in the United States. If you take it for use anywhere else in the world, it'll act as if it were unlocked. However, if you're in the United States, it will only function on the Verizon bands.

That or you're lucky.

This may be the case. Thanks for clearing some misconceptions.

I'm not lucky...it's very possible to do what I did. Just look around. How do you think I figured out how to do it? I looked on Google and found the steps to use another providers SIM in a Verizon phone. They're unlocked as far as I know is all I'm saying.

I just installed a Cricket SIM into my brothers Verizon branded Galaxy S4. It worked fine without unlocking it from Verizon. Same for my Galaxy Note 2. Most mobile phones come unlocked but the first sim that is entered into the phone, it then gets locked to that carrier.

My brothers phone was an active Verizon phone before I put his Cricket SIM into it.
