I sold this project to tyisobred. GLWS.

Income. - October 22, 2014, 3:35 pm

I was offered to test the VPN and there's nothing to complain about it.

Good luck with sales!

zSerity - October 22, 2014, 8:53 pm

Vouch for this VPN, I'm currently running support for it so you can rest assured any questions you have will be answered promptly, just simply submit a ticket!

As for the VPN and servers itself they couldn't be better!

Regulus - October 23, 2014, 7:38 am

I can for sure say that this VPN totally has my vouch. Do not hesitate to buy it and good luck with sales :)

Carl Elias - October 23, 2014, 10:46 am

Sorry for the slight issue. I forgot to add the dll needed to the folder. The client has been updated and it should work now.

Also thanks for the vouches!

I just bought this for a month. However I'm having some difficulties setting it up.

On my vmwares, I have installed WinXP 32 version and it doesn't seem to install.

On my normal PC, which is 64bit it doesn't install either.

I've checked your knowledge base but nothing is there; suggestions?

Sorry the knowledgebase is on going. Unfortunately our client requires the 4.5 framework which is not available for XP. You can still use the normal OpenVPN client as well. Just download the configs from the website.

Any more questions please PM me.

Btw the menu is so cleeean
Also the servers are extremely fast too

Carl Elias - October 30, 2014, 7:52 am

Thanks for the vouch, really appreciate it!

Also a note to all current and new users, we do send out emails to notify of tickets being replied to. The issue I am having is most email providers mark it as spam. Make sure to go and add us to your safe sender list so you get any important notifications!!

We are getting a good number of people buying every day, but no one is leaving feedback. I would appreciate it if I get some! It helps not only me, but others. I won't know of any bugs unless I find them or I am told. Also what servers would you like to see more of, as I am looking for more

-Ty

Carl Elias - November 4, 2014, 7:24 pm

Fixed an issue with our payment processing system. It was a minor bug but no accounts or payments were affected.

Also, prices might go back up soon, not solid but it might stay, or it might go back up.

Portforwarding is in the works as we speak. Design might get tweaked, but I just needed to get a rough sketch for now. All that is left is the API and making it work. But it is coming. Give me two weeks max for a release!!

It will automatically grab your IP, and add and forward to the correct IP. I might also have it check if the IP has changed, and if so change the IP it is forwarded to. It will also show all open ports and you will be able to open/close them. I should be done before the 28th of November

Would've purchased but ouch; This information will be stored on our servers for a maximum of thirty (30) days except for rare circumstances. We may store these logs for longer than the 30 day period if required to do so by U.S. law, in the event of fraud, violations of these terms or our AUP, and resolving payment disputes or conflicts.

This is a common question. Atlr does not keep logs in any form. This notice is because USA law requires datacenters to keep logs on all servers. It is out of our control with those. If this is an issue we have other servers from countries that don't have a log law.

Update:Portforwarding is making some progress. Just need a few more finishing touches on the system to make sure there are not multiple people on the same port then we will be working on actually forwarding the port.

We believe we fixed the issue with disconnecting after 1 hour. We ed the re-authentication a few hours so this should not be as much of an issue for the common user. If we see a need to, we will it further, but for now it is set where it is.

Also I would like to hint, we have some MAJOR holiday sales on the way ;)

Edit:

Update:Portforwarding is nearing completion. API is complete, and all that is left is for the client to communicate. It should be done in 48 hours or less.

-Ty

Carl Elias - November 27, 2014, 6:41 pm

Special sale starting today! Incremental sale on all plans from now until Cyber Monday!! Jump on these deals now as we probably will not go this low again for a long time!

Also an update with the portforwarding, we hit a snag but the API for it is complete. Now we only have to finish completing the client and it will be released. If you have a 1 Year plan and would like to help beta test it please let me know!

Thanks for choosing AtIirVPN! Really appreciated

An update for all that I am very glad to announce!! The client is complete and now includes portforwarding capabilities!! It should be released in the next 48 hours, 72 at most. I just need to test it and make sure there are not any major bugs. And for those who wish to help, the client is Open Source so please feel free to look over my code and let me know if you see any possible issues.

-Ty

Carl Elias - December 1, 2014, 2:50 pm

UPDATE

I am really happy to announce two things. First off we now have Port Forwarding enabled on ALL servers. It took a little longer than expected, but it is now working!

Secondly, we have a client update! This update is just a big edit for the Port Forwarding, and also a fix for the issue of users being disconnected after an hour which was a major issue for many.

I really hope this makes users as happy as I am for it. On another note, the current deal ends tonight before I go to bed, then we move on to next weeks deal. I will note now, this next deal might not be as much as the previous, so if you want a great steal, better act fast

Looks like exactly what I need!

However, I need to use this for a game that uses HackShield. It runs in the background and will not let the game start if it detects software that I am not supposed to use. I have purchased a VPN before that prevented the game from running. If this is the same case would I be entitled to a refund?

We do not give out refunds. These are the situations we have the day trial. Chances are it might be detected, but I might know of a way you could trick it.

Thanks for the vouch, and glad issues were resolved.

Some new features are being adding as I post this post! I am sure most will like this feature!!

Also thanks for all that took part in the holiday sales! We will most likely do it again because of the good feedback.

-Ty

Feature was added! At this point in time it is added but I am not posting on the thread. The feature is going into effect tonight hopefully, and will require no action other than to redownload the configs. If you use our client, please add this value to the Client Config Settings

Code allow-pull-fqdn

If you do not like the feature (although I feel many will because I have been asked it a few times), leaving this out will stop it from working and throw an error. Again this will be deployed on all servers tonight when our servers go through the daily cleaning process

Unfortunately, couldn't buy a year plan cause i didn't have enough to cover the expenses. Did buy the 3 Month One.

So, overall the GUI for the VPN looks really nice, it is very well made with an easy interface for beginners.

The fact that it enables portforwarding is a dream.

Multiple servers to choose from is also a very good thing.

I'm going to use this for a while, see how it turns out and reply to this topic soon.

Vouch for OP!

I dont get it when i go to a IP viewing website it says I still have my own IP?

EDIT: Fixed previous issue how do I PF now I dont see a tab in the GUI

Carl Elias - January 10, 2015, 7:47 am

The portforwarding is only available in the newest update. It should have asked to update a while ago. Just update the client

-Ty

Carl Elias - January 12, 2015, 12:17 pm

For those with issue of the concurrent connections not updating correctly, we are working on a fix. We believe we know the issue, but for now while we work, we have changed how it works. If it is not updating, and you can wait, it should reset after 24 hours of the initial connection. If it does not or you need an immediate reset, please submit a ticket

Will try and use it again this week. First and Last time I used it, I think first week of January or before I can't seem to connect to any website even though the VPN is connected and I've tried using other IPs. Hopefully it was just that time and it'll be good the next time I use it.

Sorry for the delay having computer issues and had a family day today. I replied to your pm. As for the support, I might get one or two but it's not high on my list because I usually reply to all tickets in under 12 hours unless something is up and we get only a few a day.

Also for everyone else, expect an update in the client this weekend or early in the week. Modifying the configs and fixing a few bugs.

Update:

Working on a few things this week and the next few.

First off I am working on the connection issue. We will probably add a link so users can reset themselves. This is the most likely fix we will be providing for the time being.

Secondly, we are looking into adding a new feature that no other VPN on HF has, and very few actually have. It will be a test run, but I have a feeling you will like it

Finally, the client update will be out in a few more days. Finals are getting to me

Here is an update for those with the connection issues!

We have created a new limit. It is not going to be released publicly but it has been increased, so the connection limit shouldn't be much more of an issue. I have been searching and I could not find the common factor that caused it, and I tried myself multiple times and could never recreate the issue.

I don't know if you forgot to review last month's usage or this current months, the VPN servers have been down constantly daily with zero uptime. I bought a year with faith the network managers would be able to maintain the servers but I guess I was wrong.

Like I said before the attacks keep continuing, if it's a server attack you need to block the incoming connection on your VPS and reroute them. If it's a DDoS you can install extensions to help do the work for you. If you're busy hire a network administrator to manage the servers for you.

If you can could you post an immediate update in this thread when everything back up, I'm sure anyone else who has purchased is expecting the same thing. Best of luck.

I just wanted to clear up a few things, first off we have been back up for a while now and the site uptime is fairly good. Yes this attack was fairly strong and we were not prepared for such a large attack, but we should be good now. Even with this attack, we still maintain a 94% Uptime on the website.

Secondly, most of our servers have 99% uptime! Yes, I won't lie and say all of them are always up, but we have never gone under 13 servers up at one time, but overall most servers rarely go down, or only do for no more than a few minutes.

And just to show I am not trying to lie about the information, below is some stats about the websites uptime over the past month:

Umm make sure Microsoft framework 4.5 is installed and that all the dependencies are installed. Also make sure that you are not already running it as it can also cause the error.

-Ty

Finally made some progress on the client today. I have been really busy and the servers should be up soon! Just have a huge backlog of work to do along with school work.

I have decided not to push an update as it is really minor right now, and I want to wait for more to be done before I push it out. You can however compile it yourself from the source code found HERE <https://github.com/AtlirCO/OpenVPNClient>

The update is simply a fix for the blocked sites being buggy, and for those who do not know how it works or what it does, it will create a route so that when on a website it shows as your IP and not the VPN.

Currently we are not using TCP if I remember correctly (a little tired), but could be something we add in the future, we might be able to work something out with you though.

It works now. At this time until I can get it working on the portable (it was buggy and still working on fixing it), you must use the Atlir Installer Client to forward a port. Use our knowledgebase for more information, or submit a ticket for further responses!

-Ty

CacheMoney - March 24, 2015, 7:10 pm

Last thing before I submit a ticket. I put in the port and select the server I am currently connect to and click port, and nothing comes up nothing happens. Nothing shows in the log or nothing really happens in general.

This is on the client not portable.

- Will submit a ticket but just letting you know.

We have a few down, a hand full of them are down due to users torrenting and the servers being reported, others because of unknown bugs. I am working to get them all back up

-Ty

We are sorry for the servers that go offline. Many of them we try to bring back up but some are impossible. The cause of 2 out of 3 servers being removed or off line for periods of time are users torrenting and having a tracker that logs activity and gets our servers reported.

Also a tip for using VPNs with bots, do not use the ip but set up a DNS name so that if the VPN server was to go down or the IP changed, your boys are not lost.

We have a small work around for this. Hackforums blocks almost all VPN networks, but with AtlirVPN we have it set so that when visiting Hackforums, you will be automatically switched to your home connection only for the one site.

On the server page when you log in, to the right, there are two buttons. One goes to speed test, the other downloads the config.

The client is in the top, where it says client, click it then download.

Our most current list of servers can be found on the site buy clicking the server header in this thread. Most of our North America servers go down frequently because of people torrenting and our providers not supplying us with more service forcing us to find new providers.

I can not say for sure if one of the two will return but I will continue to look into it.

Never was connected.

Trying to portforward?

Nope. Doesn't add or do anything.

dopepizza - October 2, 2015, 9:16 am

I have purchased this VPN because it can port-forward, and i have to say that this works perfectly.

Support

I had some problems with the auto-buy, i just PM'd Ty and got an almost instant pm back, this guy helped me.

Now the VPN works great.

The VPN

The VPN is so fast, it is like i am browsing with normal speed of my own IP.

I can play games without a single sign of lag, this is a VPN i will purchase again and again.

Port-Forward feature

I was thinking it was really hard but port forwarding is easy as fuck.

You can do it within the client, you need to select a port, then select a server, then click on add port, it is that easy.

Thanks for this amazing VPN.

Carl Elias - October 8, 2015, 9:44 am

Hello everyone,

Today I bring some sad news. I started AtIir hoping to keep it running as long as possible about a year ago. That was in high school, and this year with college is just proving to be too difficult to manage both school, my job, and AtIir all at the same time. I have let the quality of service for the price fall way too low. As a result I am deciding to discontinue our service, at least by me.

Some good news is I was looking, and an older friend of mine has offered to take in all users who already have a plan with AtIir. So because of this, ALL active plans will be moved over to RA4WVPN in the next week or two. I feel he will be here much longer than the others, and I did not want to leave all my users hanging. Not to mention he is even adding a iOS App some time. If this is an issue, such as you already have a plan/account on RA4WVPN, please kindly send me a PM. If you already have a plan on RA4WVPN, we will add the two plans together.

Expect in the next few days an email with a link to link your account to RA4WVPN.

I will be creating an auction for the site and source also in the next few days.

I for now am going to close this thread, but I will keep updating it as more details follow.

And again, I am very sorry that we have to come to an end, but it was a great journey and experience for me! I hope everyone feels the same way!

-Ty

Carl Elias - October 14, 2015, 8:57 am

<https://hackforums.net/showthread.php?tid=5021874>

Our Auction has started!

I will this weekend start working on the moving over to RA4WVPN! Please keep an eye out for an email giving you a link to connect your AtIirVPN account to RA4WVPN! It will be in the next week or two.

Any questions please PM Me!

wurklash - October 28, 2015, 3:39 pm

Any idea when we get moved over?
