Thread: Which anime just seems to hit you in the feels?

Nevieth - October 25, 2014, 8:00 am

I just recently finished watching Zankyou no Terror, and realized how much of an emotional bitch I am. I felt so bad for the ending (No spoilers), but I woke up like 6 hours early and realized I was just having a dream about the ending, and it actually made me connect the show to my own life.

Don't open for spoilers.

Spoiler (Click to View) At the end of Zankyou no Terror, the character Twelve is shot dead, I immediately felt bad for Twelve, as he seemed so kind and innocent... and could of lived a peaceful life with Lisa... but was shot directly threw the heart, such a sad fate.

So basically I woke up with literal water in my eyes and for some reason in my dream, it had been like I'd lost a brother...

DAMN YOU ANIME AND ALL YOUR FEELS.

What shows have you gotten extremely emotional for, and which ones seem to leave an imprint with you?

Oh I know, however I go off the assumption that Lelouch is still alive and living in the country side with C.C. So I don't get as saddened by that, however with ZNT it's just so sad lol.

Nothing hit me in the feels quite like Anohana. The only thing that came close was White Album 2 and Ano Natsu de Matteru.

Yandere - October 25, 2014, 8:46 am

For me I'd have to say Clannad, Mirai Nikki since they both hit me right in the feels.

And now I'm about to start watching Zankyou no Terror. So hopefully it's not as sad as you make it seem OP. ;-;

Don't get me wrong, Zankyou no Terror is an amazing anime, but can be very emotional.

Well I started watching Death Note and when L died, Oh my fucking GOD I couldn't take it.I couldn't think straight for 2 days ;_;

And when he says that he could hear bells ringing..and atonement for his sins ;_;

Why do the writers always have to do that ;_;

Oh my yeah was pretty intense when L died, I love shows where the main protagonist is an anti hero, pretty awesome.

I would say Zankyou no Terror (ending) and Angel Beats. Currently watching WA2 and I heard the ending is sad so I should get hit in the feels from it too.

I feel the same way for a few series, like Zankyou no Terror, Code Geass, and Death Note... and of course a few others which I can't think of at the time.

I'm more of a wimp, I like the more disney ending, where everyone gets what they want and live happily ever after... that's why to me FMAB had such a great ending... I always get so emotional when shows are ended by killing off some main protagonists or making them blind like in some show...cough Guilty Crown... cough.

Alright, I just finished up Noragami, and I have to say I enjoyed it a lot more than I expected myself too, it's sadly only a 12 part series but I may get into the manga due to loving the characters so much. There isn't much progression for characters except for Yukine, who died at a young age (14 or so) due to mysterious circumstances... it's assumed that his parents separated/divorced and he was left to his father while his mom took his sister with her. It is implied that he was abused by his alcoholic father and this explains the part why Yukine, as Sekki, has that bandage in the handle.

Additionally, Yato saw him near a post box and one would think that he met his end there. Though why was he near the post box? Many think that he was still communicating with his sister via snail mail after their separation. It's so sad and I absolutely fell in love with the character.

Haha I know that feeling... for some I get so attached to anime while for live action television I merely laugh at for being so extreme.

Even if I don't understand Japanese, I still find the character development and emotions to be excellent. Still can't get over how awesome Yukine (Noragami) is.

Chad ThunderCock - October 26, 2014, 5:04 pm

Spice and Wolf really hit dem feels.

Kind of spoilerish don't open if you haven't watched or if you mind about spoilers.

Spoiler (Click to View)

The season 2 near the end focus so much on their relationship and how Holo is scared of falling in love with him only to see him die 30-40 years from now and be left alone all over again and having to bear for hundreds of years the pain in her heart of her loved one dying and she not being able to do anything about it.

Not only that but although the anime doesn't portray it as well as the Light novels did, which is the reason why the LNs are so fucking awesome, in episode 10(11 if you count OVA 0) when they are in the room speaking Holo and Lawrence speak about how they wish things would go back to how they were the moment they met, when Lawrence would get flustered over basic stuff, how he would get scared and such, and they speak of how people change with time and regardless of how much you love the person, you'll get used to the person and sooner or later, what could be extremely fun for you a few years ago can now be your daily life and the joy is no longer there, and all that will be left is the sadness of you thinking about how awesome and fun these days were when they first met.

It's so fucking sad that it made cry a bit when reading the light novels because no matter how hard you think about it, even in real life, they are absolutely right..

Mikoto Urabe - October 26, 2014, 7:06 pm

Hmm... where do I start

Clannad... no explanation needed there, I think I shed about 10% of my body weight in tears once I finished After Story, shit had me depressed as fuck for no less than three days.

Angel Beats was rather depressing, I blame it on the damn music.

Elfen Lied was pretty depressing, nothing too bad though.

I hated Gunslinger Girl's ending, because I actually really liked Pinocchio. I think I forced myself to cry at the ending, in order to vent all of my built up emotions.

Guilty Crown was also rather depressing... sniff sniff Hare ?

I don't know why (I guess I'm a little bitch) but I cried at the ending of Rosario + Vampire (I'm not sure if the tears were genuine or if I forced myself).

There's a lot of series that I get feels from, just not as drastically as the others mentioned.

There's the ending of FLCL which was a little melancholic because of the homeless chick and how the boy's life changed.

Ga-Rei: Zero had a bittersweet ending; likewise with Samurai Champloo.

And I feel the same way about romance anime. Don't really seek those out, but it's nice to watch a really good one to change things up a bit.

Spoiler (Click to View) Agreed, but he was shot through the heart, which is extremely sad because he loved Lisa and was actually quite innocent through all of this, he mostly is the reason Nine wasn't killing people... Nine seems a lot colder and darker than Twelve was. I feel like Twelve was Nine's human side, a friend who helped him out of those scary dark corners. He didn't even get to say goodbye to Nine, or Lisa.

Haha of course I've seen that, I've seen Code Geass twice thus far... once in dub and two in subbed. I love how open the ending is, she could of been talking to LeLouch like she did his mother, she could of been talking to the sky as if he was dead, or she was talking to the man with the hat on.

It's obvious he's alive, and anyone who says he's dead is in denial.

The way I watch anime is like this, watch what you personally enjoy... you're watching it for yourself... not your friends or for strangers on the internet. No, I only watch shows I enjoy... I've seen (off the top of my head) Noragami, Code Geass, FMA, FMA:B, Guilty Crown, Demon King Daimao, Naruto, Bleach, Zankyou no Terror, Steins; Gate, SAO, Psycho-Pass, Baccano!, Eden of the East, The Devil is a Part Timer, Attack on Titan, Death Note, etc.

I cheated, I looked at my Hummingbird page, but my point is I only watch shows if I like them, I tend to ignore the communities until I've finished the show. I don't get easily offended or bothered by internet people, in fact for Naruto I've had more problems with people who dislike and insult the show rather than those who actually like it.

I don't mind that it's ending, I'm glad they managed to milk like 600 episodes out of the series and will no doubt in like 30 years go back and watch it all over again.

I'll probably just move on to something else, I need to watch Soul Eater because apparently it fits perfectly into the genre I like, I hope they release a second season for Noragami though, probably my favorite anime yet, fell in love with Yukine. :P

Anyway, to stay on topic: PMMM Rebellion hit me the hardest by far, aside from that Golden Time, Angel Beats and (hate to admit it since I rather dislike the anime as a whole) Clannad AS come to mind. I'm pretty sure the first one was Elfen Lied though as I was 13 or so at the time and the puppy scene, along with a couple others, completely wrecked me.

How can I rewatch shows/ anime that I've already seen? What I do is I wait about a month or two after finishing it, and go back over it to catch things I didn't before. For anime I also tend to swap back and forth between subtitled and dubbed, so it's not the exact same thing over and over.

Well my opinion on the whole LeLouch thing is;

Spoiler \(Click to View\)

LeLouch became immortal the moment he used his geass to kill Emperor Charles.

Just think about it, Charles used his geass to kill his own brother VV (V2), who was immortal up until that point.

To kill an immortal being using the code can only be accomplished through using a powerful geass, and as shown with CC when she killed that one nun, she took her immortality... just like Charles did with VV.

So my opinion on that situation is LeLouch vi Britannia (The demon prince) is dead, while LeLouch himself is still alive in hiding with CC, living a happy more peaceful life.

Remember to keep all spoilers in the spoiler tag just in case someone hasn't seen the whole anime.

So now you are also a part of the feel-bad-for-Kaneki.

If you happen to read the manga, then you'll see that Kaneki says that if you were to make a movie with him as the protagonist then it will surely be a tragedy.

Quote:Synopsis

Ganta is the only survivor after a mysterious man in red slaughters a classroom full of teenagers. He's framed for the carnage, sentenced to die, and locked away in the most twisted prison ever built: Deadman Wonderland. And then it gets worse.

At Deadman Wonderland, convicts are forced into brutal deathmatches for the amusement of the masses, the cheers of the crowd drowning out the screams of the dismembered. Even when Ganta befriends Shiro, an unusual female inmate, his dark fate crushes all hope —until he discovers the strange ability to wield his spilled blood as a weapon. Ganta learns his new skill might be related to the murderous man in red and uncovers disturbing secrets that could expose those who stole his freedom. He's determined to see justice served —but first he'll have to fight for his life in a prison that holds a million ways to die.

Also, the ending of Kotaru-san, because of when she...

Spoiler (Click to View)

Finally, understood her mother's weak heart, and was still able to find the courage to forgive her.

As unrealistic as the whole ESP plot design was; It really drove home the feeling that anybody gets when they've been abandoned by a parent.

That feeling to love them unconditionally. It left me feeling joyous and yet sad, because Kotaru's mother will never be the same.

I really enjoy anime that delivers a dynamic character development. I'm always up for a serious action anime, but I especially enjoy settling down, and watching a perky romantic comedy.

The only problem I have with Clannad is that the first season is pretty bad/boring. There's some comedy involved but it's really bland. That's really the only reason I don't recommend it to people is because you kind of have to watch Clannad to watch After Story which is significantly better.

Clannad: After Story

First one was like "ok sure a few holes in my heart but that's fine." After Story was the definition of no mercy. I cried at least 3 times per episode, the holes in my heart were torn to shreds and I could do nothing but keep on watching, hoping that it would get better, and just seeing it hit the fan even harder.

Minato Namikaze - February 21, 2015, 6:31 pm

Naruto

Naruto:Shippuden

Pokemon (The movies/show when I was a kid.)

Fairy Tail

Besides this not much , then again I need to watch more anime ?

The Blue Mongoose - February 22, 2015, 2:17 am

Mirai Nikki, Chobits and Sword Art Online made me cry like a little baby...

Proficiency - February 23, 2015, 1:14 pm

I just watched an anime on CrunchyRoll called 'No.6'. The ending when [See Spoiler, It's a Spoiler] hit me with some feels.

Spoiler (Click to View)

When Sion 'was' dead and Rat was singing to him while the building was falling. Shit was rough to watch lol. But Safu saved them which seemed sort of cheesy, I think it would have been a better ending if Sion and Rat died (As brutal as that seems).

Orkd - February 23, 2015, 5:50 pm

Honestly I would say Miyazaki's "The Wind Rises"

Spoiler (Click to View)

The end was just so bittersweet. Her death was obviously going to happen, I just got attached to them as a couple and being happy together. When he would work beside her because she couldn't get out of bed, just their whole story. I'm not good at dealing with sad stuff so I tend not to watch it. Great movie, made me sad though.

back when i was new with anime one piece was the one to hit me in the feels! the storys was so well made and they made you to be with luffy side everytime. after that Mirai Nikki was sad as hell.Also Stains&Gates was the only anime that made me cry a little..(why dont they make anime like this now :(?)

deadhippies - February 24, 2015, 3:25 am

If we're being honest, any anime that has a good ass story with some shit i could actually learn from, will make me emotional. If a character i like dies, i'll just use Naruto for example, my nigga Neji, boy, that heart broke. Im an emotional nigga.

And when he says that he could hear bells ringing..and atonement for his sins ;_;
Why do the writers always have to do that ;_;
Damn bro you just hit my feelings again. I gotta say Death Note was fucking awesome and L was perfect imo.
Really his death made me way too emotional. While Light was holding him at the moment of his death I couldn't look into L's eyes it nearly made me cry bro.

L was awesome.

Binged 14 EPs of NHK today.. Got feels-choked quite a bit. I'm scared that I'm going to cry. Especially since Tragedy is a genre associated with it.

Is it really that good??
I might give it a try if it's nice.
I like tragedy anime in general.

Nevieth - February 24, 2015, 9:41 am

Just finished HxH recently, and the stuff with Gon and Killua made me legitimately tear up, plus when Gon was in critical condition you could just see the frustration and worry his friends were feeling.

I love how Spoiler \(Click to View\)Leorio almost became chairman merely by mentioning he wants to save Gon, what a great guy.

XeClutch - February 24, 2015, 12:12 pm

Dragonball Z hits me right in the fucking feels omg it's sooo good. GT is really good too, just not crazy about the ending.

I actually just ordered Xenoverse for my One :P

Deadbyte - February 24, 2015, 1:44 pm

I would have to say Samurai Champloo.

firefoks - February 24, 2015, 4:48 pm

Clannad Afterstory sure got me down hard, not sure if I'll ever re-watch it again since I became pretty depressed after that.

Dude, like, oh my god. I never thought it would be this good. The first three/four episodes are pretty much pure comedy but after that you start getting to the good parts and it just wrecks your emotions at some points. I'm going to finish the rest soon.

Also, I love this op.

Totally agree ^^ also .. that moment when Gon couldn't use his Nen for 30 days and when he felt that he was so helpless and that was when Killua kept helping him getting over that phase... Damn these moments. ^^

Also it is worth mentioning that i've seen some awesome fights where Zeno and Silva were fighting Kuro seriously i've never seen such an EPIC fights and that moment when Netero ... ? started the "Human attack on the ants".

'Fox - February 25, 2015, 1:42 am

Akame la kill was probably the saddest anime I've watched.

halucination - February 25, 2015, 2:56 am

I was coping up with Naruto Shippuden.

Spoiler (Click to View)

Neji died, I paused the episode, cried like a baby. My friend was sitting beside me. I went to washroom cried for another 10 mins and came back.

ViBe Lion - February 25, 2015, 10:03 am

I cried at the ending of Death Note ;,;

I guess I was too attached to the characters

ryudragon14 - February 25, 2015, 11:38 am

One Piece hits me in the feels so hard, cuz' I watching it since i'm a child and everytime if I watch sad moments i'm crying like a girl. >.<

Au Jus Demon - February 25, 2015, 11:57 am

Just finished Eureka Seven and damn was it good and sad and happy.

Just recently, Shigatsu wa Kimi no Uso is hitting me with pretty much every episode out.

Its easily winning a spot on my top 3, something an anime hasn't achieved in 5 years I think.

stevengms - February 25, 2015, 7:39 pm

White album 2. Although it is of the romance genre I feel like it is very good in that aspect and that it feels real, not one of those anime where everyone gets a happy ending, but a real ending.

Nevieth - April 12, 2015, 1:21 pm

Bringing this thread back to life, I've been watching Junjou Romantica recently, and oh my god I love their ships. (Not actual ships... more like partners/ relationships.)

It is a yaoi, so if you go to watch it keep that in mind.

Misaki and Usami are just too cute.

Blue Moon - April 12, 2015, 1:22 pm

I teared up at the end Eureka 7 and at the end of Cowboy Bebop.

Don't tell anyone though...

Observer - April 12, 2015, 1:31 pm

Death Note, really sad story about a boy whose dreams never came true. I cried, R.I.P. Light! :(

Daxos19 - April 12, 2015, 2:00 pm

Man Trigun nailed me. Looking at Vash going from such a peaceful person and having to deal with so much shit thrown his way from his brother. That's just rough. +his gf dies.

Sadly, it was a mainstream anime for some add reason.

SAO, the first time I watched it, really was relating to my IRL life way to well. It almost felt like the show was about me. I just broke up with my gf and then began to watch this anime.

Watching Kirito fall in love with Asuna was just so fucking reminding of the way my ex and I connected. Who knows.

Mikasa Ackerman - April 13, 2015, 7:12 pm
