

Forum: Hack Forums

Thread: [\[WTF\]Death Row inmate\[WTF\]](#)

Perfect - October 29, 2014, 6:33 pm

[img]http://images.craigslist.org/00505_9tWvXNvIQ3h_600x450.jpg[/img]

Death Row Inmate Asks For A Child As His Last Meal, Texas DOC Plan To (Grant Request)

ABILENE, TX--Stephen K. Walker, French M. Robertson Unit inmate in Abilene, Texas, is on death row for murder and cannibalism of the 2006 case that sentenced him to death.

When asked what he would want his final meal to be, he said with no hesitation, "A little boy."

The Department of Corrections are supposed to accept all the demands of any kind. So it was initially thought that they were buying a corpse in a morgue to satisfy the desires of Stephen Walker.

But tables turned when it was said that they were trying to find a toddler from a third world country and buy him/her alive within a budget of $25,000.

State representative Michael Rath talked to the media briefly with words that he thought would clear the situation some:

"We live in a country where we have laws in place and morals, and we will look to grant Mr. Walker his request under certain circumstances that we have yet to agree to." He stated.

As far as the 'circumstances,' it is rumored that the child would have to suffer from some type of degenerative disease, with a few years to live. And by honoring Walkers request it saves the child from years of suffering.

We will see how this plays out. Walker will be executed next Saturday.

And just for comparison here are some last meal requests from prior death row inmates:

John Wayne Gacy was executed by the State of Illinois on May 10, 1994 for the rape and murders of 33 young men and boys from 1972 to 1978. The "Killer Clown's" last meal was: a dozen deep-fried shrimp, a bucket of original recipe chicken from KFC, French fries, and a pound of strawberries.

Serial killer Ted Bundy was executed by the State of Florida on January 24, 1989. His last meal was: nothing. He made no special requests and was given the traditional meal of steak and eggs... but he didn't eat it.

Timothy McVeigh was executed on June 11, 2001. His last meal was: two pints of mint chocolate chip ice cream.

Ronnie Lee Gardner was executed June 18 2010 by firing squad in Utah. His last meal was: steak, lobster tail, apple pie, vanilla ice cream and 7-up for his last meal... which he ate while watching the "Lord of the Rings" trilogy.

Seeing this made me fucking sick to my stomach...

DISCUSS THIS FAKE SHIT

LINK: <http://boston.craigslist.org/sob/rnr/4723589172.html>

Fish - October 29, 2014, 6:34 pm

#1 tip change the font because that shit is hard to read. at least remove the bold

Perfect - October 29, 2014, 6:35 pm

(Oct 29, 2014 06:34 PM)?Fish Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) #1 tip change the font because that shit is hard to read.
at least remove the bold updated post with easier to see fonts, sorry for that bud

iMew - October 29, 2014, 6:36 pm

I'd like to actually see a trustworthy source for this.

Fish - October 29, 2014, 6:36 pm

wow i just went to the link and i think he wants the kid because he wants to eat it

Liamche - October 29, 2014, 6:37 pm

I can't believe that he actually asked for a child, and he is getting one!

DotPSD - October 29, 2014, 6:38 pm

<http://www.snopes.com/inboxer/hoaxes/lastmeal.asp>

Just saying, it's fake.

Although this shit sounded real for a bit.

W00dL3cs - October 29, 2014, 6:40 pm

This story actually had 0% probability to be true.

Perfect - October 29, 2014, 6:41 pm

I have tried to find a trust worthy source, its a 'rumor'

interesting shit to read tho

Kenpachi - October 29, 2014, 6:41 pm

<http://www.mysanantonio.com/news/local/article/French-website-Texas-bought-African-child-for-5852806.php>

What my local news site has to say about this. Apparently fake. Imao

DeJaVu - October 29, 2014, 6:43 pm

If you really didn't catch on that this was fake 5 seconds into reading, you probably came from a vast family full of potatoes.

Perfect - October 29, 2014, 6:44 pm

(Oct 29, 2014 06:41 PM)Kenpachi- Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#)
<http://www.mysanantonio.com/news/local/article/French-website-Texas-bought-African-child-for-5852806.php>

What my local news site has to say about this. Apparently fake. Imao

These are 2 completely different people no??

KING - October 29, 2014, 6:45 pm

This is the third time i have heard this in a week and it is a different person each time lmao. 1st time was a huge fat guy, so yea fake as fuck but interested me at first.

Kenpachi- - October 29, 2014, 6:46 pm

(Oct 29, 2014 06:44 PM)Perfec?t Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) These are 2 completely different people no??
Oh, I'm sorry. I didn't read the story at all. ? My bad frisco - October 29, 2014, 7:08 pm

It would be fun, if only it was true... Well too bad... Don't mind me, some men just want to watch the world burn, that's all.

nique ta mere - October 29, 2014, 7:13 pm

What they said ^ this is obviously fake :P

Pain - October 29, 2014, 7:15 pm

(Oct 29, 2014 06:43 PM)Kosher Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) If you really didn't catch on that this was fake 5 seconds into reading, you probably came from a vast family full of potatoes.
What if your Irish. ... Irish people invented potatoes.

Stoned AF - October 29, 2014, 7:35 pm

(Oct 29, 2014 06:33 PM)Perfec?t Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Ronnie Lee Gardner was executed June 18 2010 by firing squad in Utah. His last meal was: steak, lobster tail, apple pie, vanilla ice cream and 7-up for his last meal... which he ate while watching the "Lord of the Rings" trilogy.
I admire his movie taste lol.

Atleast he got to watch the trilogy before his death. And damn, he had a good last meal.

Shlazam - October 29, 2014, 7:43 pm

The article is 100% fake.

They would never let such a thing happen. Last request or not.