

Forum: Hack Forums

Thread: Thread copied word for word?

carlos matos - October 30, 2014, 8:05 pm

Is there anything I can do if someone copies my thread word for word and creates their own thread with no changes at all to my original wording?

A user just saw my thread, posted that he would also be selling X and to PM him to purchase (on my sales thread!) and then copied my thread and just pasted it.

Proof:

Titles

Spoiler \(Click to View\)

My thread: Spoiler \(Click to View\)

His thread: Spoiler \(Click to View\)

My thread link: <https://hackforums.net/showthread.php?tid=4515370>

His post on my thread:

<https://hackforums.net/showthread.php?tid=4515370&pid=43104659#pid43104659>

His thread: <https://hackforums.net/showthread.php?tid=4515397>

Anything I can do?

$lick - October 30, 2014, 8:16 pm

Report for "leached post"

He can just set it back up and sell cheaper with different wording, him posting on your thread was a real dick move though.

P.s. His comment may also fall under "sales trashing"

Hexicidal - October 30, 2014, 9:41 pm

To be fair, both threads follow the same template and are selling the same product.

Just chill out.

$lick - October 30, 2014, 9:51 pm

(Oct 30, 2014 09:41 PM)Hexicidal Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) To be fair, both threads follow the same template and are selling the same product.

Just chill out.

Wow slow down there Hexicidal... did you just tell the OP to calm down?

How fucking dare you.

Mr Kewl - October 30, 2014, 9:57 pm

You need to use the layout to post in that section, he just changed the date.

Its not a big deal, as Hex said "same product, same template."

Not really unique content now is it?