

Forum: Hack Forums

Thread: [>>> Money Making eBooks will "die" soon. \[MY THOUGHTS ABOUT MONEY MAKING EBOOKS\]](#)

Tyween - November 8, 2014, 5:02 am

Hello world, it's Relja.

Before you start reading this thread, take a look at this video:

This video perfectly shows how you're wasting your money on those eBooks. Just imagine this, Vet is seller and the dog is your money.

[Video: <http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=R1RpLoLyi6c>]

Opinion:

I'm here to tell you my honest opinion about current money-making eBooks on market and my thoughts about their future. So yeah, money-making eBooks are basically a .pdf file with a method to make money online. I read a lot of them and I never earned a dime. Why? I don't really know, probably because method was boring AF or because I didn't feel like it was a working method. You must be retarded not to know that those eBooks are made so just seller can profit. If you have enough vouches from your friends and enough replies on your thread, you will start getting sales. It's all fine, you're earning $100 daily from your sales but problem comes when there's an unsatisfied customer. You haven't gave him refund because your eBook didn't work? You haven't provided him support because he didn't get the method? All these things are something eBook sellers are faced with. You promise them everything and what do they get? Nothing. They get only your shitty method that doesn't work and YOU KNOW that you never actually tried it. You want to prove your earnings? You show us some dumb inspect-elemented PP screenshot or you even screenshare your PP? Of course, we know that money on your PP is from sales, not method. My honest opinion about eBook is:

They're all fake

You won't earn anything

You won't get refund

You will get some support only because seller wants to get rid of you

Future?

Future of the money-making eBooks? Nope, there's no future in them. Soon enough, people will understand that HF's money making eBooks are fake. Of course that there will always be some sales from newbies that just joined a forum wanting to make some money online, but let's be real, people who bought money-making eBooks once won't do it again (If they're smart enough). C'mon people, it's time for you to understand that all "NEW, EXCLUSIVE" methods that are being sold at this very moment are probably public methods modified with different sites or something else. EBOOKS ARE MADE so only seller can profit, keep that in mind. There are probably some nice methods out there, but who knows what methods exactly? Don't trust stickied threads, don't trust threads with a lot of replies, DON'T TRUST ANYONE who sells eBooks at all. Find a job or something and start getting a nice income. Don't expect to get rich at home just because you read some eBook made by a 16 years old. Yes, you can get rich with internet, but not with money-making eBooks. ALL THESE PEOPLE with all these beautiful donator awards didn't get rich overnight, they worked, they studied, they were persistent to EARN something and make profit from it. Don't be stupid and buy another eBook, you should rather look up what your talents are; Coding? Graphics? Writing? C'mon, if you have any talents at all (Which I strongly believe you do), try to monetize them in any way, JUST DON'T WASTE ANOTHER DIME ON MONEY-MAKING EBOOKS.

So yeah, this was my honest opinion, I'm sorry if I was being too harsh on sellers so I apologize. ?

milkywaythegodfather - November 8, 2014, 6:30 am

WOW.

You're obviously so smart and the first to ever post a fucking thread about ebooks.

I love your opinion so much more than everyone else's.

Mad props to you man.

8)

Tyween - November 8, 2014, 6:39 am

(Nov 8, 2014 07:30 AM)-Hex Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) WOW.

You're obviously so smart and the first to ever post a fucking thread about ebooks.

I love your opinion so much more than everyone else's.

Mad props to you man.

I know there are a lot of threads like this one, but I just wanted to state my own opinion.

Annnnd, I think people should be aware of this.

????II?I - November 8, 2014, 7:49 am

People ARE already aware of this dude.

Re-creating threads won't make them more aware?

Autononymous - November 8, 2014, 7:51 am

(Nov 8, 2014 08:49 AM)????II?I Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) People ARE already aware of this dude.

Re-creating threads won't make them more aware?Tell me why people are still buying them?

????II?I - November 8, 2014, 8:36 am

(Nov 8, 2014 08:51 AM)Autononymous Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Tell me why people are still buying them?

The ones we're talking about are newbies. The ones who just joined etc.

Those are the only buyers, except those these 'HQ' members try to trap almost anybody.

BitzDefender - November 8, 2014, 12:05 pm

(Nov 8, 2014 06:02 AM)AnthonyX Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I read a lot of them and I never earned a dime.

Why? I don't really know, probably because method was boring AF or because I didn't feel like it was a working method.

Your whole argument falls apart with this line. You basically admitted to never even trying the methods that you are trying to discredit. How can you even take a stance on this topic?

Truzzie - November 8, 2014, 12:11 pm

I would say you are wrong, there's not only new members who buys them.

I'm gonna go ahead and defend my e-book against your assumptions as I have several long time ub3r members who have never bought e-books because of their reputation on hf as customers.

And I can tell you that they were surprised when they actually tried, well my e-book isn't directly one of those "money" e-books, but more about steam items.

There's probably a reason why you say all e-books are scams, but not all are.

I agree that most e-books here is a scam and can easily be googled to be found online.

Also sounds like it is your fault for not trying.

Tyween - November 8, 2014, 12:18 pm

I didn't say I haven't read the method, I just read some parts of it and found out I already knew about it or I simply knew that method won't make me a promised income.

Evil - November 8, 2014, 4:26 pm

They will never die. Here is my argument: as long as money exists and people continue to procreate, more ill-minded children and young adults will search online for "money making methods" and one way or another end up here. Just like every 13-16 year old will learn how to boot others off xbox live and end up here. It is a never ending cycle because it is a market that will never diminish. People will always look to make money and empty promises such as these ebooks have the flashy font and thread designs to draw them into buying their methods. They will never die and anyone who thinks otherwise are oblivious to human nature. These methods have always existed... As long as gambling thrives so will these get rich quick schemes. The lottery has a one in 175 million chance for you to be the winner, yet people still pay the few dollars out of their pocket to get a chance at winning. Think of these ebooks as the lottery. The method may or may not present results, but there is no way of knowing unless you try it out — this is the premise of the gambling industry a never diminishing business. Whether or not the ebook 'fad' itself dies down may be true, but these money making tutorials will always persist in some form. Maybe it is another ponzi scheme or a fake charity that randomly pops up and robs people of all their money. Either way, the idea behind getting rich quick will never die, and sure people will learn their lesson after purchasing one or two then realize that they don't work. In the mean time new people are being born, and will eventually replace those fellows that learned their lesson.

-I'm fairly tired, please mind my grammar and syntax. By the way I love the video OP, even though its correlation is lack luster.

Spookin - November 9, 2014, 1:14 am

I agree that most of the e-books are just a waste of time and money, yet some of the e-books won't necessary give you money as they claim to, they will give you ideas .

Raddify - November 9, 2014, 6:30 am

(Nov 8, 2014 05:26 PM)Ev?I Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) They will never die. Here is my argument: as long as money exists and people continue to procreate, more ill-minded children and young adults will search online for "money making methods" and one way or another end up here. Just like every 13-16 year old will learn how to boot others off xbox live and end up here. It is a never ending cycle because it is a market that will never diminish. People will always look to make money and empty promises such as these ebooks have the flashy font and thread designs to draw them into buying their methods. They will never die and anyone who thinks otherwise are oblivious to human nature. These methods have always existed... As long as gambling thrives so will these get rich quick schemes. The lottery has a one in 175 million chance for you to be the winner, yet people still pay the few dollars out of their pocket to get a chance at winning. Think of these ebooks as the lottery. The method may or may not present results, but there is no way of knowing unless you try it out — this is the premise of the gambling industry a never diminishing business. Whether or not the ebook 'fad' itself dies down may be true, but these money making tutorials will always persist in some form. Maybe it is another ponzi scheme or a fake charity that randomly pops up and robs people of all their money. Either way, the idea behind getting rich quick will never die, and sure people will learn their lesson after purchasing one or two then realize that they don't work. In the mean time new people are being born, and will eventually replace those fellows that learned their lesson.

-I'm fairly tired, please mind my grammar and syntax. By the way I love the video OP, even though its correlation is lack luster.

I agree with what this user said.

The method to making online money, steal someones method, change it a little, open it up, make money from the money. Someone should make an eBook on it.

Rooter - November 9, 2014, 8:48 am

They will never die out because there are tons of people who think that money making e-books can help you make $1000 a day with little to no effort.

CPA Exposé - November 9, 2014, 1:29 pm

Not sure why you spent the time to post this considering there are a few threads about the same subject made almost daily. Wasn't necessary.

Also, these ebooks will never go away.

As long as people want to make money, there will be someone trying to sell them the dream.

You have not tried every single ebook on the market.