

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: How to learn day trading

CEZ-R - November 14, 2014, 2:38 am

I'm thinking on investing some savings in to day trading, I've heard so much about it but I'm not looking to gamble but to make a steady profit also I'm in no way expecting to become rich over night but a reasonable income that could contribute to my bank account would be more than helpful, I was hoping you guys could suggest me any books or video lectures (would be more helpful because of the visual representations), from which i could learn how to make some money.

Thank you
CEZ-R

TTRS23 - November 16, 2014, 4:57 pm

Hey man , try youtube .. i learned a lot from the vids there ^^

killa-007 - November 21, 2014, 12:10 am

i just lost money with binary system. i am bad :/

Darkcoil - November 22, 2014, 5:39 pm

sorry to hear that killa, have you used 5% maximum per trade? which "Binary System" did you use? In BO you have the judgement to invest/bet how much you're willing to lose at worst, I'd recommend to demo for 1-2 months before going real money and after that use 2-5% per trade and should be safe and avoid emotional trading. Safe trades :)

KwikTrip - November 22, 2014, 11:01 pm

If you want to day trade forex look at websites;
babypips&forexfactory. Both have a lot of traders and their ideas/methods for trading.

mourad1969 - December 12, 2014, 10:53 am

day trading is not easy. you must learn all . its a lot of work. if you can do that ok. if not forget it. for the course(baby pips, also nials forex). look also forex factory and investing for the news(very important). good luck and finally avoid signals systems, forex systems because they fail in the long term

hope that help

Eagerkid - December 12, 2014, 12:43 pm

I would do alot of research before day trading and using your own money as it can be alittle tricky. Try playing <http://www.marketwatch.com/> (its a investing game, which will help you alot) and try by reading some articles on <http://www.investopedia.com/>

mourad1969 - December 13, 2014, 3:12 am

study and pratice is the success key in day trading