Scammer Profile : <https://hackforums.net/member.php?action=profile&uid=298796>

Thread Purchased From : <https://hackforums.net/showthread.php?tid=4268629>

Price : £39.99/$60

What happend : He purchased the standard edition of Naked Riches, which clearly states there are no refunds. Yet, without even bothering to contact me, He has charged back.

Side Note/Warning: User has Multiple Paypal accounts.

Chargeback

The only person that paid for the normal version of the book that day, was Sasuke.

If you google the email address :

It comes up with the user 'DashingKid'.

So, for further confirmation, I pm'ed him, asking for his Paypal email address. In typical skid fashion, he thought he could outsmart me by providing another Paypal, and Not the one he charged back from.

Oh. what do you know, DashingKid!

EDIT: This kid is funny. He thinks its perfectly acceptable. Pfft. I Also find it hilarious he is claiming to be 20 years old on his profile, yet takes orders from his parents on what to buy with 'his own money'.

Very sketchy user, So beaware guys when dealing with him. Currently fighting the dispute/chargeback. Ill update this thread with the outcome.

Don't post personal information not related to the deal dispute. - Staff.

This is seems legit... Sorry for the loss op... I would hate to lose money for something that the buyer received like an ebook, and you cant even take it away from him!

So yes, there you have it. That transaction was charged back, but not by me.

Cheers.

So you used your dads PayPal so basically you've committed fraud by paying for something in his name and not having his permission to do so?

Hes also playing the 'minor' card now and other shit. My Tos and FAQ Clearly state :
That there are no refunds or chargebacks allowed under any circumstance.
and that :

Q. Im X Age and Live in X Country, Will this work for me?

A. Yes, Works worldwide, and as this is adult related, you should be of legal age to view adult content.

Ive just called Paypal anywho, and told them that the buyer has admitted to fraudulently using his dads paypal account, but he had received the non-tangible digital item. They are investigating further, but they said that paypal doesnt cover unauthorized use by a family member, Nor do they cover non-tangible items. So Im fine - Only thing that may happen is that his Paypal is closed permanently.

ItsFlaNky - November 23, 2014, 5:56 pm

Either way, he either used his dads account without permission and then chargebacked so he's committing not only fraud but theft aswell as hijacking his dads account meaning the account is not safe - paypal can close it for that reason alone.

On that note, he's most likely under the age of 18 which will make his dad responsible so if he chargebacks and any further action(legal) is taken then it's most likely his "dad" that'll take the heat.

Doesn't matter what your ToS says... It's adult rated, and a minor has still bought it. You knowingly sold it to me even though I am a minor. You're right, PayPal doesn't cover family members using PayPal, but you failed to realize that it DOES protect against underage people purchasing illegal content (to anyone under 18 of course). If anything, you're the one in trouble here for knowingly selling adult content to a minor.

Fml, This kid. . .

1. The ebook does not contain adult content, It merely links to adult content.
2. You have to be over 18 years old to use Paypal anyways.
3. If its your 'dads' account, then he is the one purchasing you [a Minor] adult content, So he'd take the rap for that one. But you've already admitted to fraud by accessing his account illegally. . . So. . .

lol, my dox is already public, so go right ahead. Also, where did he post criminal records or anything of real value? You are RETARDED. oOoOo your name is out there. Not hard to look up someones IGN or whatever and dig deeper into information. You are on a hacking forum. If you do not know what DoXing is, then I think we all would be glad for you to get off of said Hacking Forum.

Majestic12 - November 24, 2014, 7:37 pm

Trust me, No point even arguing with this Skid. He has no clue about any aspect of life. I havent posted his phone number, medical or criminal history. Nor did I create another facebook of him? Lmao. This kid. . . Every post he makes, Im thinking thats the limit, theres no way he could post something even more ridiclous than that. Then boom, next post, He does it and breaks the record once again.

P.S Your caught out lying again. I never said I created it, nor 18 Minutes ago? :S

I was simply stating that there is another facebook account, then you reply with even more nonsensical bullshit.

Yeah, my name is out there, but nobody else would have known who I am if it wasn't for the OP posting my buyer information from PayPal. Maybe it's not against HF rules, but it is against the law, is it not?

It is prohibited to leak personal information to public without written permission.

(Nov 23, 2014 06:48 PM)?Sasuke Wrote: (CITE) If only he would have posted the actual chargeback reason to PayPal. I can't control what my parents do, after all, it is my dads account, making it an unauthorized transaction. I could care a less what happens to my forum account.. He's solicited adult rated content to a minor, solicited without authorization, my dad's personal details, which is illegal, punishable by prison, and quite a hefty fine. As far as dashinggkidd@yahoo.com being a PayPal email, it's not. Just shows how dumb the seller really is. It's a very shitty ebook by the way. I wouldn't recommend buying it.

So yes, there you have it. That transaction was charged back, but not by me.

Cheer

Please note that the following do not qualify as unauthorised transactions:

- I) A payment made by a family member who has access to the account.
- II) A payment you would like to dispute because of a problem with the item received.

Source: PayPal

(Nov 23, 2014 07:00 PM)?Sasuke Wrote: (CITE) Doesn't matter what your ToS says... It's adult rated, and a minor has still bought it. You knowingly sold it to me even though I am a minor. You're right, PayPal doesn't cover family members using PayPal, but you failed to realize that it DOES protect against underage people purchasing illegal content (to anyone under 18 of course). If anything, you're the one in trouble here for knowingly selling adult content to a minor.

I could cancel the dispute, but what's the sense? My dad will just make another dispute I'm sure. As far as money goes, he hasn't lost any money at all.

The purchase was made online with a non-disclosed identity. OP is not held responsible for any 3rd-party (buyer) actions including but not limited to purchasing an e-Book.

The e-Book that he has sold to you is not illegal and because he doesn't know your real age (you haven't disclosed your real details - photo ID) he is not held responsible.

However, you are less fortunate in this case since you knowingly purchased an e-Book that might contain adult content. By purchasing it, you claimed to be over the age of 18.

A similar concept would be entering a porn site by clicking "I am over 18 years old". Instead, in this case the button text is "Buy now - Read Terms & Conditions".

(Nov 23, 2014 07:23 PM)?Sasuke Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) It was purchased without his authorization, and I guessed his password. Need I say more? Unauthorized transaction. Like I said in the PM, only my dad can take legal actions against me, not you or PayPal.

Once again, you are less fortunate in this case. You have intentionally breached the account to perform an illegal transaction without your parents' or guardian's authorisation.

(Nov 23, 2014 08:21 PM)?Sasuke Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Seller is a dumb ass. I cancel the dispute, and he says I didn't. Then threatens/harrasses me saying "someone will be at your house in the next few weeks to collect my money"

Seller is also a dumbass because while I PayPal dispute is open, NO ONE has the money UNTIL the claim is over. Dumb ass.

From my experience, usually, once you close a dispute, the seller will instantly receive his funds back. On rare occasions, the transaction will be under investigation for up to 10 business days. In order to speed up the process, either one of you must call PayPal so that they can resolve the issue. (As long as the picture provided above and Sasuke's claim is real)

(Nov 24, 2014 05:19 AM)?Sasuke Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I never lied about scamming, dumbass.

He makes "$1000's" of dollars every day... Trust me, this isn't a loss for him.

He has my name from PayPal... Lol I didn't know it was hard to Google someone's name and find their Facebook/Myspace/Twitter/Youtube/whatever the fuck else.

But yes, I'm glad we have an internet stalker that was already reported to the IC3.

1. The first sentence implies that you scammed.

Never lied about scamming. -> I told the truth that I scammed.

2. This is hypothetical. However, keep in mind that every time he earns £39.99 (profit) and somebody takes that money back -£39.99 (loss), it's considered as a loss. Morally, you imply that he is a rich bitch and it's hardly a considerable amount to lose. The point is that every time he is losing money from profits, that's called loss of profits.

3. According to your previous claims, the account was not yours but your father's. Now you claim that it is your name.

(Nov 24, 2014 02:38 PM)?Sasuke Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Wrong.
You can call them or email them to close the case.

FYI the first time I went to cancel, it said I had canceled successfully, the second and every time after that, it gave me errors.

Which by the way, I just emailed them.

Do you have sufficient evidence to back up your claim? What kind of errors appeared on your screen? For your information, once you successfully close the dispute, you cannot close it again. If you try to do that by moving back to the previous page, the session will already have been expired.

(Nov 24, 2014 07:39 PM)?Sasuke Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Says the one humiliating, harassing, threatening, disbursing personal information on a hacking site. Yep, I'm the prime example on how not to handle a deal dispute. You've broken so many forum rules, as well as laws. :)

No comment. Immaturity to its full extent.

He's the only one that has my address, and he literally sent me a PM showing me a link that was made 18 minutes ago at the time.

First, you accuse him of harassing you and threatening you to disclose your personal information without your permission to public. Now, you threaten him to reveal his criminal records, phone number and residence address. Can you see the irony?

(Nov 24, 2014 08:43 PM)?Sasuke Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Yeah, my name is out there, but nobody else would have known who I am if it wasn't for the OP posting my buyer information from PayPal. Maybe it's not against HF rules, but it is against the law, is it not?

Well, you claimed that PayPal was under your father's ownership. Once again you prove that the account belongs to you and the very first claims you made about the account not being in your possession are invalid.

I believe that Sasuke was disappointed in the method that he purchased. He decided to get his money back by charging back and coming up with a cheap baseless story. When he found out that he was trapped in his own lie, he decided to cancel the unauthorised claim.

The problem with Sasuke is that he doesn't know how to professionally handle a scam report and resolve the issue. However, I am not quite sure that his intention was to resolve the issue. I believe that his intention was to come out of this clean and with his money back in the pockets.

Rest assured, the immaturity and the overconfidence of getting back the money without issue made him careless. In the end of the day, the one who lost from this is Majestic, unfortunately.

Thank you.
