Thread: [\[Tutorial\] The Basics Monetizing Techniques \[Beginners Guide\]](#)

Buffalo - November 26, 2014, 12:45 pm

Firstly, thanks for taking a look at my post. I will gradually be adding more detail to this post, with no further notice lets get stuck in!

What are Monetizing Techniques?

Monetizing Techniques are methods shared within this section and mostly sold to the HF Member base for them to earn a bit of money, in exchange to share their unique money making method. Most methods are not saturated, but like most things after a while they will become saturated. This tends to become a problem for the top selling methods as more and more people are using them each day.

Why Not Keep The Techniques Private?

You may be asking yourself this question, well most people will always be looking to make a bit more extra cash and usually the people that thought of these methods used them to an extent where they know it's stable and legitimate enough to actually sell on Hack Forums.

Some sellers will actually make more profit selling their method than using it privately, most likely due to restrictions set on their method or the amount of time needed into making the money.

I'm Afraid The Technique Isn't Real

Most of the methods here on Hack Forums are vouched for and are legitimate, high quality and money promising.

If it looks real, then usually it will be. Like always when you find a pro there'll be a con.

You can take precautions and be extra safe by only purchasing the eBooks that are sticky'd or highly vouched for with a member that is trusted.

Not all eBooks are exactly what they advertise.

Some promise way more than what they could achieve in months, they do that simply to make quick sales, but with eBooks such as that they get a bad reputation, quickly.

Which in return means most bad methods and eBooks will never be on the front page for that long.

How Do People Become Successful?

Every product is successful for a reason. They tell the truth, they keep their word. It's advertised correctly, and it's actually effective. Most people come across their methods & techniques from past experience of just making their own money, but then saw the advantage of sharing their private method for cash. I have plenty of silly methods of making small money which is not worth giving away never mind selling as it's too time consuming and not promising enough. Your idea must be unique and efficient to come through with something half decent. You must present your product with quality and excellence too. If you design a thread with nothing but a sentence of saying "Hey, selling a method to make $50 a day" nobody would buy it because people like pictures, they like colors. The thread designs show off a great example of yourself and your product and if not presented well then you'll most likely not get any sales at all.

I will be adding a lot more, just ask the questions through PM or down below and I will happily answer them! Happy monetizing. ?

I don't know man, most money making ebooks are about a method that seems to work in theory but not even the seller has ever tested it and most of the time if you try it out you'll soon realize there are problems that are hard/impossible to overcome and the whole thing is not even worth your time.

There might be exceptions, there might be books that will at least give you an good idea ... for all you future sellers out there if you would actually sell something that you've tested yourself and it actually works and it's somewhat unsaturable you'd probably make a whole lot of sales, people are tired of fakes.

fully agree. This is how I see this. Additionally selling methods which really require higher investitions or already widely spreaded. It feels lake waste of cash...
