

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: [\[TUTORIAL\] State Control - Get in the productive state.](#)

Veezon - November 26, 2014, 12:51 pm

Hello HackForums, this thread is about state control, the uses of it and how you can use it to a huge advantage. Here is a thread another user posted about mentality in business:

<https://hackforums.net/showthread.php?tid=4556186>

[Video: <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=ZwGkVvEkCoY>]

So, let's get straight into it.

Have you ever had those days where you worked and at the end, felt so impressed and proud of yourself because of how much you did / achieved? The days I am talking about are the ones where you worked and worked, not because you had to, but because you wanted to and was feeling so much progress and anticipation whilst doing so.

Are these days rare for you? Just imagine having the power to be able to switch these days on and off, awesome right? Well what if I told you that this is possible and you can do it EXTREMELY easily by taking advantage of state control techniques. I can confidently say that the most successful business owners around the world will use state management and it will be a contributing factor towards their success.

So, enough of the chat, let's get into how it is done.

State management is the art of altering your state into a business state of mind, the state where you only want to work and create something successful. You can do this by doing particular things & these things can be pretty much anything, whether it is a particular smell, a particular song, a particular body gesture, anything you like.

Start off by having a vision, a vision of success, a vision of how you want yourself to be in the future because of your product... This can be imagining yourself walking out of your dream home and into your dream car, this can be imaging your project is extremely successful and you're walking around and people know you're successful, this could be a vision of yourself thinking about your earnings and how far you have come, can be absolutely anything you wish. When you do this, have your eyes closed and find something that can put you in that state, whether it is a song, a smell or maybe just beating your chest whilst humming, whatever you prefer and whatever works for you.

Do this for around 2 minutes straight, just imagining this dream lifestyle, all because of the project you are preparing to work on, thinking of where it can get you.... State management is power and power is money.

sonex - November 26, 2014, 12:54 pm

(Nov 26, 2014 01:51 PM)Veezon Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Have you ever had those days where you worked and at the end, felt so impressed and proud of yourself because of how much you did / achieved? Whoever answers "no" to this one never really felt how well it feels to succeed. Quite inspirational thread.

Limited Edition - November 26, 2014, 1:02 pm

Those days happen but they are very rare for me. A lot of the time I will feel a lot of self accomplishment and then the next day I think that I didn't actually accomplish much lol. Another great inspirational post!

Veezon - November 27, 2014, 9:43 am

In all honesty, this is a vital key to success. This can make anything in your life so much easier.

richhacks - November 27, 2014, 10:04 am

Cheersbro, good stuff to build up with?

Kalabybis - June 29, 2018, 6:21 am

I figured it out by myself and also am doing this, but I still seem to be tripping on unnecessary things, like listening to peoples opinions and doubts.

Just dream and achieve. Do your thing. You will reach that goals sometime. If your product will not work, something else will, as long as you believe in yourself.

Keep it in mind.