OP reported this post - this post is not breaking any rules. I'm getting tired of sellers thinking someone asking a question about the service / product they brought is sales trashing. Customers have the right to ask questions or raise concerns about the product / service as long as they are not breaking any other site policy (sales trashing etc.)

Let me give you an example.

Quote:"Hey [seller] - I brought this product from you on 11 November but for some reason I never got the download link - could you send it to me again."

This does not break any rules.

Quote:OP, give me my fucking refund for your shitty product that you leeched before I leak your product and make a scam report against you

This does.

See the difference? One is actually doing business and the other is sales trashing.

RagZorro - if I were you, I would just open up a deal dispute straight away. You paid for a product, you claim you haven't received it and that's valid grounds for a deal dispute (a deal that hasn't gone the way you think it should have).

People abusing the report button and asking for legitimate questions to be removed is just nonsense.
