

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Defacing websites?

Absolute Greatest - December 7, 2014, 1:02 pm

Just curious on how people deface websites that don't use sql. Would like an explanation and maybe a link to tutorial if it's not too much work. ?

john12 - December 7, 2014, 1:04 pm

Why some people are obsessed with defacing websites than create their own?

It's the most skiddie thing ever existed

Absolute Greatest - December 7, 2014, 1:05 pm

(Dec 7, 2014 02:04 PM)john12 Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Why some people love defacing websites than create their own?

It's the most skiddie thing ever existed

I agree, but I have seen people deface things for good reasons. I'm just more curious than interested in doing it.

john12 - December 7, 2014, 1:06 pm

Anyway,with persistent XSS vulnerabilities.

They inject HTML code in the page using a vulnerable text field,like a search box

Absolute Greatest - December 7, 2014, 1:09 pm

(Dec 7, 2014 02:06 PM)john12 Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Anyway,with persistent XSS vulnerabilities.

They inject HTML code in the page using a vulnerable text field,like a search box

And they get the admin login from doing this?

john12 - December 7, 2014, 1:11 pm

No,but the HTML code stays in the page and it's appearance changes to that of the deface HTML code.

Another use is to inject JS redirect code,drive by's etc.