Thread: Age when it's acceptable to call other person "kid"

Grand Pootis - December 8, 2014, 8:02 pm

I hear this all the time on XBL.

Lasso on HF people who are literally not even close to age of majority are calling other people "kid"

How old should someone be to say this?[/align]

Tbh this is true I hear like 16 year olds calling 14 year olds kids and it's like bitch you're like 600 days older than them congrats.

Fuq. - December 8, 2014, 8:03 pm

That's when you slap them with the dosboot.

If a person is under the age of 18 they are considered a child.

CONN3X10N - December 8, 2014, 8:04 pm

Well, clearly adults should only say it. I believe a person of 21 and above can say it. 21 is when you become an actual adult. I hardly call people kid and I am 25.

I've been calling people a "kid" ever since I picked up CoD4 which I was in 5th grade I think. It just stuck to me as a constant insult.

You're a kid if you call someone a kid

Butters Stotch - December 8, 2014, 8:06 pm

I'm 18 years old and those kids that are like 14-16. Which most of Hack-Forums is filled with little kids that think they are top shit. They're just immature kids just ignore them man.

But yeah, 18 is the age and then you can call 14-17 year old's a kid.

Mr Whiskey - December 8, 2014, 8:19 pm

If they're a year younger than me I call them kid, or if they're smaller than me I call them kid.

Amusing.

Through means of sarcasm you attempt to insult me, you are truly filled with idiocy.
