Synopsis (taken from MyAnimeList)

"Welcome to Queen Dekim." What greets two unsuspecting guests is a strange bar, Queen Dekim, and the white-haired bartender, Dekim. "From here you two shall begin a battle where your lives hang in the balance," he says to introduce the Death Game. Before long the guests' true natures become apparent. As a matter of course, at the game's end Dekim is revealed to be the "arbiter." Dekim's judgement on the two guests is...

Spoiler (Click to View)Quote:Text: After humans die, they get sent to either Heaven or Hell. However, there is a bar where those who lose their lives at the same time are abducted to. And so... Those abducted are two people who don't know anything about their death.

Dekim: Welcome to Queen Dekim.

Dekim: First: I cannot answer to any questions asking where this place is.

Text: The bartender with the unknown identity

Dekim: Second: Now, I will have you two participate in a game.

Takashi: Huh? A game?

Dekim: Third: We will decide the rules of the game using a roulette.

Text on panel: Darts

Dekim: Fourth: I will have you participate in the game with your life on the line.

Text: A death game with a life on the line

Decim: Fifth: Until the game is over, you cannot leave the bar.

Takashi: You can't fool me! What did you do to us!?

Takashi: Crap!

Dekim: I believe I told you at the beginning that you would put your life on the line.

Michiko: Is everything... Just pointless...?

Takashi: That's impossible...!

Dekim: Now, then... Let's begin the game.

Text: Your core will be opened.

My thoughts so far

Based on the artwork and background music, it portrays a Death Note-like feeling. As for the plot, well it more or less reminds me of Gantz. I don't really have anything else to say at this time, except for that I hope that it will be an interesting watch. It was made by Madhouse, so I am having a bit of high hopes.

Edit:

So I found out that this anime will be the continuation of an animated short called "Death Billiards" that was made for Anime Mirai 2013.

I do recommend watching the short animation since it is 25 minutes long and an interesting watch.

The animated short

I like the animation style and art style, but I'm worried how it will hold in the long run. The trailers always look nice, but I don't want to raise my hopes too high for this.

I completely understand.

I found out that this anime will be the continuation of an animated short called "Death Billiards" and I updated my original post with the video.

Feel free to check it out.

Chips Ahoy McCoy - December 14, 2014, 12:42 am

I really like the look of this. Definitely going to be watching.

NexPB - December 14, 2014, 6:35 am

Seems perfect anime for madhouse I'm sure they will do awesome things with this ;D

Tedeschi - December 14, 2014, 7:41 am

Psychological anime is the best, I'm so excited.

?I???ry - December 14, 2014, 8:21 am

This actually looks pretty awesome!

Bezo - December 16, 2014, 6:58 pm

Found out that the series will be 12 episodes. I hope this series doesn't become an episodic series. I could see some great story potential from this series.

Ellie Goulding - December 16, 2014, 7:04 pm

So do I have to watch Death Billiards first or can I just watch this series when it airs?

Looks interesting, loved Death Note and AoT

I suppose you could watch it when it comes out.

Death Billiards is an original video animation that is basically an episode. It's 25 minutes long and it gives you a bit of insight as to how the anime will be.

Stoked for this, Madhouse has yet to disappoint me. First episode is to air on Jan. 10, five days from now and I can't wait.

The hype is real!

But seriously though. Madhouse has yet to disappoint me either. I hope that this turns into a fairly lengthy anime, at least 24-25 episodes bare minimum.

Not to disappoint you or anything, but the MAL lists it at 12 episodes. Hopefully that isn't set in stone just yet.

Chips Ahoy McCoy - January 5, 2015, 1:34 am

Ouch, 12 episodes. I hope the pacing is alright.

VYKTOR - January 5, 2015, 2:36 am

I'm pretty hyped for this but since both Death Note & Attack on Titan were not short series so I'm wondering how much they'd be able to do in 12 episodes.

VGM2021 - January 5, 2015, 7:13 am

I am soo fking hyped up for this, Im sure it will be a great anime

I assume every episode would have a new guest then? Should be interesting nonetheless. I just hope they explain the result of the game instead of making us guess.

Assassins Creed - January 5, 2015, 4:40 pm

Madhouse, damn I'm hyped!!

Hopefully this will br likr HxH in the sense of being transmited without censorship(thus not making me wait for a Blu-Ray release).

Madhouse is famous for giving no fucks when it comes to censorship and that's one of the main reasons I love them.

I think the first Madhouse production that I can think of off the top of my head that I saw is probably Parasyte. I was pleasantly surprised to see Spoiler \(Click to View\)No censorship on someones head being ripped off on the first episode. Imao

JonBD - January 9, 2015, 11:03 am

Damn that first episode.

Spoiler \(Click to View\)Damn. It's not a game to see who wins. It's a game to see who is good or bad.

Manny - January 9, 2015, 11:26 am

Well episode 1 is out now. Going to watch it in a few.

Assassins Creed - January 9, 2015, 12:43 pm

Wanna watch episode 12 right now.

Too bad I gotta eat dinner(im starving) right now and then gotta do something for a few hours, and THEN I will be able to watch it....

Oh well, just gonna leave it download alongside some vns while I'm away.
Hopefully it's a good start/episode.

Ellie Goulding - January 9, 2015, 2:45 pm

Just finished the Episode, found it really interesting. Loving it so far. Can't wait how it plays out.

Is there a manga to this? Just wondering, I don't plan on reading it. lol

Hopefully this show will get better!

It's been a while since I've seen a show this epic. I can't wait for next week already.

Bro, that first episode mind-fucked me so bad. I kept switching sides until the very end.

Duyere - January 10, 2015, 12:57 pm

Here is something I found but forgot to mention.

It may or may not come as a spoiler to future episodes, so view at your own risk.

Spoiler (Click to View) So I may have found a way to determine which person is good or bad, based on the door they entered.

If you head to the very beginning of the episode, the old man entered from the left elevator.

You'll notice an icon above the elevator, but just barely. After the game ended, both the young and old man left in the elevators they arrived in.

The image below shows both men departing.

And you will see both icons above the elevators, both signifying where each person is heading.

After I seen that, I thought that maybe it would be the same for future episodes. Like the bad person is always on the left.

Side is irrelevant, only the mask is.

He went in the left and the mask above the elevator corresponds with where he went.

tatsucheng - January 11, 2015, 4:26 am

I really like the first episode. That bartender is good looking and the wedding scene was great too i mean the dress and other. The main thing which i really like about it the ending portion where they know what really happened :D that got me excited to watch the second episode. Can't wait for next episode.

Duyere - January 13, 2015, 8:11 am

So I had the biggest brain fart ever. I posted my theory before seeing the first episode.

For some reason, I had it in my mind that the anime was scheduled to air on the 14th of January.

So basically I've been eagerly waiting when it was already airing.

Terrific first episode though!

Spoiler (Click to View) I had mixed feelings throughout the whole episode.

I was expecting the husband to go to hell, but the plot twist at the end changed that completely.

Had to pause and screenshot since I found this part to be funny.

I can now see that my theory was wrong.

The "hell mask" was on the left side when the husband first entered, automatically implying he was the bad one.

After the episode had ended, the hell mask had switched to the wife's side.

Yoshikage Kira - January 13, 2015, 8:17 am

I believe something along those lines is plausible.

I would assume that the Spoiler \(Click to View\)

Evil person would go to Hell/Void/Whatever you want to call it.

And the lesser Evil person with good intentions would go to Heaven/Salvation?

I don't know, its too early to judge as they haven't even explained much.

I think it's more like...

Spoiler \(Click to View\) The person who is truly 'evil' in a sense will never be able to get back to either Hell or heaven. By this

I'm taking the concept of the void where nothing can reach you or that you can't reach anyone from there.

And the person that deemed 'good' will go to re-incarnation where they will be able to re-incarnate back to the real world. For me this has 2 meanings, one is that they really did truly die and that the person who goes to re-incarnation will get reborn. The other is that they're actually alive and that they're both unconscious and that's how they got to that world, while their real bodies would be in a hospital. So the person deemed good would wake up and come back to the world of the living while the person deemed evil will not awake, ever.

Ah! Episode 2 was pretty great. Now the first episode is more clear to me.

Spoiler (Click to View)I had a hunch about the wife faking her feelings in the first episode, but now it all made sense in episode 2.

The husband would have been the original one to be sent off to hell, based on his actions that led up to both their deaths.

Which is why the "hell mask" was original above his entrance when arriving.

But during the course of the events in Queendecim, they were allowed to change their fates.

So my previous theory about the masks could still be true.

The person who came in on the side with the hell mask could be possibly be responsible for their actions that led up to death.

They arrive at Queendecim to participate in a game to evoke their memories before their death, which gives one of them a chance at redemption.

No... that's not what happened bro. She never cheated on him. She acted it out so he wouldn't feel any regret before he was reincarnated.

Spoiler (Click to View)

She definitely cheated? She knew what she did was wrong so she wanted to save him because despite the fact she cheated, she honestly loved her husband. She also didn't want her husband to feel like he was the cause of their child's death, so she told him it wasn't his so he wouldn't feel any remorse.

Also, it's not a matter of Heaven or Hell. This was explained in episode 2.

Dark_Sniper - January 22, 2015, 6:06 am

I predict a few scenarios...

Spoiler (Click to View)

1. Someone is going to be OP and remember they died, or understand that they are probably dead.
2. Two of the guests will share the same elevator (if they both get reincarnated maybe they become twins?).
3. One of the arbiters (sp?) Is going to take the elevator with one of their "guests".
4. Someone is going to refuse to play.
5. Appears that there must be balance (one must go void the other must be reincarnated). So maybe two guests will ride in one elevator and two arbiters will sacrifice themselves.. or vice versa.

Now those are all predictions. Never read the manga.. don't even know if there is one.

Anyone else have any theories?

I was pleasantly surprised that episode 3 was so much more mellow than the previous game. If each episode is just a different pair of people playing a different game I'll be really disappointed, honestly. The problem is I can't really think of where they would take the story if there is one underlying plot for the whole thing.

I think most people thought that from the previous episodes, actually. The whole time I was waiting for one of the characters to do something fucked up and get sent to the void, but it's really cool to see that it can and good for both.

9.5/10 Even if the concept of arbiters having no emotions is being repeated throughout the anime, I didn't find they were emotionless (the emotion of being surprised for instance, even the old flower man feels it). The plot went well though.

That's the point, all of the rules work against them selves, they are all backwards even with an arbiter that follow them the most. Arbiters have emotions and personality, if arbiters quite judging when they die and they die when they quit judging. And the 4th and final rule about how they cannot live with life or something because it'll ruin them is also flipped because it is what Makes them, not ruin. He had a smile and he kept some memories of someone he judged.
