

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Sonic Boom heard throughout Florida, USA

Rsynced - December 15, 2014, 3:57 am

Just wondering if any of you members who live in Florida heard the Sonic boom on last Friday afternoon? I also swear I heard another less powerful one last night. I'm in North Central Florida. There is not much info available on the web and nothing in the main stream news.

Nothing has been officially confirmed to what it actually was. Pretty freaky in my opinion.

What do you all think it was?

Here are some articles:

<http://www.sott.net/article/276222-Mysterious-booms-worry-Florida-residents>

<http://www.myfoxtampabay.com/story/27617919/meteor-military-test-apparent-sonic-boom-shakes-parts-of-florida>

<http://www.firstcoastnews.com/story/news/local/military/2014/12/12/sonic-booms-florida/20334971/>

<http://www.wfla.com/story/27617431/possible-sonic-boom-heard-around-tampa-bay>

Mutes - December 15, 2014, 5:17 am

It was probably just the government.

Rsynced - December 15, 2014, 5:38 am

(Dec 15, 2014 06:17 AM)Mutes Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) It was probably just the government. Yes, but it is still possibly from the Geminid meteor showers.

Aston - December 15, 2014, 5:45 am

The Russians are testing their aircrafts. Good.

Karnaugh - December 15, 2014, 5:46 am

Probably ISIS got some F's now.

#JustAJoke

?lixir - December 15, 2014, 6:48 am

Dude, it was those damn disney fireworks. They added the big one at the end.

[img]<http://www.vatsaas.org/rtv/construction/skyrocket/bigone.jpg>[/img]

"Whatever it is, Valencia College student Daryl Mercado's story lines up with everything else we've been hearing. These booms start around 10 p.m. and they sound like thunder. Mercado said he's heard them over the past three weeks. "

That is a quote from your first link. The Magic Kingdom's fireworks start at 10pm.

Rsynced - December 15, 2014, 7:24 am

(Dec 15, 2014 07:48 AM)?lixir Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Dude, it was those damn disney fireworks. They added the big one at the end.

[img]<http://www.vatsaas.org/rtv/construction/skyrocket/bigone.jpg>[/img]

"Whatever it is, Valencia College student Daryl Mercado's story lines up with everything else we've been hearing. These booms start around 10 p.m. and they sound like thunder. Mercado said he's heard them over the past three weeks. "

That is a quote from your first link. The Magic Kingdom's fireworks start at 10pm. There are no fireworks at Disney that would be heard miles away, that big of explosion would make the park guests go deaf. Also the first boom was Friday afternoon, not at night. lol - I guess your joking though either way? =)

?lixir - December 15, 2014, 7:32 am

Both. I live 23 miles from the magic kingdom, and I hear them every night.

Rsynced - December 15, 2014, 7:46 am

(Dec 15, 2014 08:32 AM)?lixir Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Both. I live 23 miles from the magic kingdom, and I hear them every night. Do they shake your windows and sound like an explosion in your front yard though? I am over 100 miles away from Disney world and that's what it sounded like on Friday.