

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Socrative exploit?

Manipulate - December 19, 2014, 5:44 pm

Hey guys, so in school we been using something called Socrative for like testing. I was wondering if the site is vulnerable. Is there any exploits to make it look like you did good on the test? I am not so good with the SQLi or anything.

website: <http://www.socrative.com/>

I am willing to pay after I win my PayPal case. I am negative in PayPal right now.

lurk moar - December 19, 2014, 5:50 pm

yes, it is vulnerable

100%

shell access could be obtained

1337zax - December 20, 2014, 11:17 am

If you want to do well on tests, inspect element an answer, look at the coding and the right answer can be seen. Just look closely at the code.

bzgzd - December 20, 2014, 11:40 am

(Dec 20, 2014 12:17 PM)1337zax Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) If you want to do well on tests, inspect element an answer, look at the coding and the right answer can be seen. Just look closely at the code.

Really? If that is true it would be quite stupid from them and that site doesn't look very stupid. But I am too lazy to try it even it is free...

.

wolfhunteryt - December 21, 2014, 12:42 am

(Dec 20, 2014 12:17 PM)1337zax Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) If you want to do well on tests, inspect element an answer, look at the coding and the right answer can be seen. Just look closely at the code.

Not that easy. We use it too. They can see the results remotely. ?

Warbird - February 6, 2016, 7:47 am

Is it still working?

Because I tried inspect element, but I didn't found anything.

Manipulate - February 6, 2016, 6:11 pm

(Feb 6, 2016 08:47 AM)Warbird Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Is it still working?

Because I tried inspect element, but I didn't found anything. This thread is from 2 years ago.

/thread