redhotmo - December 22, 2014, 1:38 pm

I'm not sure if this is the right place to ask this kind of question but i'll give it a shot,

With UI and UX design if you could give 1 sentence tip to a beginner UI/UX designer what would it be?

It is the right place actually.

Research for user experience before you even begin to design any interface.

FBN was a group on the forum. FBN is short for Fly by Night. We were graphics artists. Leader sold the group about 3 months ago and now those who frequent the forum still have joined Enterprise's graphic design sector. We were hated and loved. RIP

You are a god. This thread here looks really clean and nice. And now that i think off it, how did you do the animations (what program)?

And thanks for answering all my noob questions.

Feel free to ask as many questions as you'd like to.

For that animation I used Adobe After Effects. I'd recommend not getting any lower then Adobe AE CS4.

This user: <https://hackforums.net/member.php?action=profile&uid=1775114> is known to put animation tutorials up on the site, they're around somewhere.

For Aired or anyone who can give me a good answer

What would you have done differently in this image and what do I need to work on more than anything?

Nice group of designers btw, if it was any group but Enterprise I'd try to join lol

cortz - December 22, 2014, 3:49 pm

Is that a thread design or a website? Because it differs based on it's intended usage.

But for now, all I'd say is I really don't like the color scheme along with the 3 images. I'm unsure if this is actual size but your text is also too light/small. Bad aliasing makes it hard to read.

Also the 'View' boxes look terrible inside a circle. Geometry doesn't work out.

prada ? - December 22, 2014, 3:57 pm

Forgot to state it's a website. Thanks cortz.

Also ditch using lorem ipsum. You're better off creating your own descriptions et al. It's better for the design.

If it's a website, you gotta work on Color Scheme, Typography (Search leading, font size vs line height vs CPL). Contrast is bad. Don't use colored text for everything. The hero should tell what's the website about in first look, people won't go beyond that if you confuse them here. ?
