Like others have told you, your themes are just your first theme re-colored. This one has 1px border radius on a few parts.

Chuck. - December 20, 2014, 11:51 pm

I would use none of these themes. Even the default windows theme looks better.

Stop fucking posting shitty themes every time you make one.

You're learning, that's great and all... but nobody here cares.

- 1) Stop using hashtags.
- 2) I'm 23.
- 3) "you couldnt do better if you IQ was higher." Nice grammar.
- 4) Are you 12? Using somebodies mother as an insult is what people do when they are kids.
- 5) "asking for feedback ;)" I gave feedback, the fact you didn't like it doesn't mean it's not feedback.
- 6) "oh and btw im a quick learner baby girl" Then learn English.
- 7) "o i bet in the next week ill be making dope themes" I'll be waiting.

Sorry but shitty themes.

3/10 in my opinion

Xghost7 - December 21, 2014, 6:57 am

I'll rate them as 5/10.

just keep practising and you'll get better at theme making.

SaketSaket - December 21, 2014, 7:12 am

Just search "WebUI" images on google & try to create themes similar to them & again my suggestion to you that try to create themes without themebase as this will give you chance to learn better.

I am not saying themebase is not good... It's one of the best for rapid theme development but Aeon's themebase is doing most of the work for you & you have to write just few lines. Instead try to code from scratch ;)

Saket

The themes are all the same. Why give a "preview" of the same theme with another color scheme?
Good luck learning though

its really easy to make themes now with Aeonhack's theme base .

if you really want to learn try doing it by yourself without using a themebase learn the basics , and then move on to creating Custom Controls.in this way you can improve .

Just let him make his themes btw i like the 2nd one work on it more.
