Deal: 1 Xbox One LT for Call of Duty: Advance Warfare @ $20

Seller: MonsteR~

I had purchased this LT from Monster on the 16th November and the account worked fine for about 2 weeks. Then after taking a break from Xbox to complete my finals, i came back to find that i could no longer access the account.

I contacted Monster politely asking why the account's password had been changed as i had not changed any details since he sent me the account. I recieved one reply telling me he would look into it and ive heard nothing since.

Proof:

Buying the account on the 16th.

asking about password change.

Payment proof. (First one was refunded because the funds were "on hold")

Message i sent after a few days of no response from Monster.

Not really that fussed about losing 20 dollars on a poo game but i cant let him get away with running off with my money.

Seems like a legit scam report, I wish he will be banned.

P.S. Good luck!

Chargeback the payment.

Payment was made using friends / family so this option is out of the question :(

90% sure that you can still chargeback, try though because I have been chargedback as F&F before.

Ive waited 6 days and this is the first ive heard from you. Honestly, if you'd had just responded to my messages and not kept me in the dark i probably wouldnt have opened a scam report...

Call them and say your account got hacked. Something like that. Still possible charging back.

Refunded OP the full amount he paid. He can now close this scam report.?

DontBeSneaky - December 24, 2014, 12:28 pm

The problem has been resolved, Monster refunded my money. This thread can be closed.
