Thread: 'The Interview' Discussion Thread \(What did you think of the movie?\)

Great Prosperity - December 25, 2014, 10:13 pm

WARNING: This thread contains spoilers to the movie. If you haven't watched it yet, I recommend watching before viewing this discussion.

I know there's other threads, but this one is review oriented.

Here are my thoughts:

Spoiler \(Click to View\)

I thought the movie was OK.

There were a lot of funny moments, even though a couple of the jokes were too inappropriate.

Aside from that, there were some scenes that didn't really fit in with the movie. Sony could have done better editing on some of them.

The gore was a lot to handle. It was unnecessary for so many fingers to be bitten off and for the aide to Kim Jong Un to be shot in the head, etc.

James Franco's character was funny but irritating sometimes during the first half of the movie, there were parts where he overacted. But in the second half he toned it down and became much better.

As for Kim Jong Un (in the movie), there were times I felt sympathy for him, and times that showed his ruthless leadership. I know in real life though that he is more scary looking and would not be as open to "Dave Skylark" as he was to "Dennis Rodman".

But movies are not meant to be realistic. In a way I can see how North Korea would be offended by this. After seeing this movie, my thoughts on North Korea, is for America to mind it's own business and leave Kim Jong Un alone, after all they do have nukes and we don't want to be in conflict.

Overall I think it was a movie worth watching, there could have been improvements, but I'm glad it came out. Without the gore, I think the message would have been stronger and more professional.

I give it a 7.5 or 8 out of 10. Because it did make me laugh a lot of times and that's what comedies are for :)

B?ue - December 25, 2014, 10:18 pm

Kinda agree with you quite a bit on this.

My Opinion

Spoiler \(Click to View\)

The only part I didn't like was the finger bit as well, It was a little over the top.
Again I actually felt sympathy for Kim. I know it's just a movie but it did really make me feel for him, But I had to keep reassuring myself about what they said at the beginning....
"Kim is a master of deception against the media" So that eased the sympathy a little.

But yeah, I agree with you a lot. I really enjoyed this movie, It's a good movie, I wouldn't say it was Absolutely 10/10 perfectly amazing but It's definitely in my top favorite movies :)

The god damn finger part was what ruined the movie.

Also the tiger getting hit in the head.

Spoiler (Click to View)

Just finished watching the movie and I personally do not really watch comedies, but I am glad I did watch The Interview.

At the end, when they were doing the interview, I believe it could of been a little better as biting fingers and a things going up in peoples arses? It was funny on the tiger bit but they re-did the joke and it was just simply not funny.

But I also believe that the movie was purposely made to cause to stir attention and honestly, it was a stupid idea to bully not only a leader of a country but the most infamous leaders in the world. I don't see people making movies about Obama and the Isis war?

In conclusion, it had crude and typical humor and it is a must watch. 7/10

"You got fucked by robocop" killed me. Ooh and the irony part.

Deany - December 25, 2014, 11:11 pm

I loved it. It was a silly parody, but I enjoyed it.

I like the movie overall. I give it 9/10 because the movie is 8/10 and plus + because your views on it fucking suck. "Leave Kim Jong Un alone" Umm no lmao hes a free powered totalitarian ruler with nukes. We shouldn't leave him alone. We need to get a B-3 to drop a 50 megaton hydro bomb on those motherfucking cunts. We should have wiped those cocksuckers out a long time ago.

EDIT: Also my own review kinda. The only thing I didn't like that the tiger getting killed. Poorly made part.

Quantize - December 25, 2014, 11:28 pm

I think that you over analyzed the movie way to much OP. It was fucking hilarious. I do agree on the gore part though, was kind of just cringy.

bandors - December 25, 2014, 11:29 pm

I finished the movie, I thought it was really hilarious.

Friendly HF User - December 25, 2014, 11:34 pm

Was pretty funny in my opinion, I liked it.

G59 - December 25, 2014, 11:37 pm

I actually enjoyed the movie. Despite some "cheesy" jokes every once in a while, it was entertaining.

The_Apprentice - December 25, 2014, 11:53 pm

My opinion (Click to View) Seth Rogan and James Franco are 2 of my favorite actors, so right off the bat I had a bit of a bias. That aside, I still enjoyed the humor in the movie. Whether the humor be morbid (the finger, the tiger, the guy getting his head blown off in front of those kids), crude (The shuttle in the ass thing), or parody (Eminem or Kim Jong Un), it kept me laughing the entire time. I'll most likely end up buying it at some time.

Lancer of Red - December 26, 2014, 12:59 am

I doubt I'll be seeing it. I don't especially enjoy Seth Rogen movies anymore.

Purple Drank - December 26, 2014, 1:40 am

It was actually a rather impressive movie coming from the fact that it's a stoner movie.

Hustla - December 26, 2014, 1:57 am

The movie was enjoyable some funny parts, overall it was stupid.

Slenderman™ - December 26, 2014, 2:52 am

The movie sucked dick, I wish I could sue sony for the time I will never get back.

Paranoid? - December 26, 2014, 2:54 am

Some funny scenes, especially the tiger scene. ?

Nervo - December 26, 2014, 7:06 am

It was pretty funny and hilarious in my opinion. I don't really liked the fingers biting scene, it doesn't really fit in this type of movie.

User1999 - December 26, 2014, 10:53 am

Movie was alright. Has some funny scenes but think this hacking scandal went overboard for this movie.

B?ue - December 26, 2014, 3:50 pm

Holy fucking shit I must be blind....

I only just noticed that....

Spoiler (Click to View)

At the beginning, when they are with the CIA woman in Langley and she is telling them what's gonna happen, Skylark rambles on about how....

"there's gonna be tigers and shit" and about how he wants it to be epic, he's gonna avoid getting shot by using a bulletproof vest, he's gonna escape and run through a secret tunnel into china and get extracted by seal team 6 and escape in an inflatable boat.

After watching it for a second time with my cousins, I only just realized that was a massive foreshadow.

-Seth gets chased by tiger

- Kim shoots Skylark and bulletproof vest saves him
- They fight their way out in epic gun battle
- They escape Korea through a tunnel into china
- Seal team 6 extract them
- They sail off in a boat

Lmfao I completely zoned out the first time I watched it during the Langley briefing scene and fucking missed that.

I thought the funniest part was when Eminem said he was gay. Hilarious.
Decent movie.

jn1jn1 - December 26, 2014, 3:52 pm

It kinda relied a lot on shock value and obvious jokes, but it was still a funny movie.

???????? - December 26, 2014, 4:22 pm

I can agree with how North Korea could be offended by this movie. I mean, if they made a movie about the United States and President Obama getting killed it would raise global controversy and be hell.

Seth Rogan is not funny and Franco tries too hard.. wasn't this the same douche that got in trouble for soliciting a 17 year old a few months ago? Is he trying to remain relevant?

james franco is what made the movie, he was the funniest person in the movie.
I don't really care about the finger scene, wasn't even that bad

was this movie worth watching? im debating watching it online

Yertle - December 27, 2014, 1:51 pm

I personally loved it. There was some unnecessary gore in it, but it's fine.
It was funny, had some nudity (wink wink) and I just liked it.

The only problem I personally felt was that it was too many jokes about North Korea and such.
There was plenty of stuff that wouldn't have been needed in the movie for it to be good.
(Excuse my english)

There is better movies out there, but it's definitely worth watching!

Zomblarz - December 27, 2014, 8:59 pm

Spoiler (Click to View) I thought that there where two funny parts in the movie that were truly funny and that was when Eminem admitted he was gay and when they finished partying and where investigated.

Matrix Programmer - December 27, 2014, 9:01 pm

"for the aide to Kim Jong Un to be shot in the head"

well like it or not, in order for the mission to be successful, both of the guards had to die lol cuz the one that got shot would know who did it because he's always with the guard who ate the "gum".

???? - December 27, 2014, 9:50 pm

I liked it until the end. It killed it really.

J???? - December 27, 2014, 9:56 pm

The beginning was hilarious, then it got kind of weird and boring. That, and the ending didn't really make much sense -- that's just my opinion though.

Apparently, North Korea didn't hack Sony/leak the film, but if they did, I could see why they would. If I were Kim, the jokes wouldn't be appealing and the ending would have pissed me off a little.

Helios™ - December 27, 2014, 9:58 pm

Really liked the movie. There are really stupid movies out but The Interview was stupid funny, Beginning is kind of boring but as you get more into the move it gets better and better.

I would say the movie would be a 8/10.

Wasn't one of Seth Rogan's best films, wasn't particularly funny but was an alright movie.

Dickleson - December 28, 2014, 8:29 am

Personally found certain parts funny however the whole 'hype' about it was not worth the watch. kinda dragged it out and wasn't that enjoyable outside the funny parts.

I just downloaded a great hd quality of the movie "The Interview" from the "bigU Movies" app I got from Cydia. I think either xsellize repo, insanelyi repo, Appcake or Zeusmos has the bigU Movies app

FawkesSake - December 28, 2014, 12:53 pm

All my friends and I agreed that the finger biting scene was the stupidest scene in the film.

Aside from that I thought the movie was comedic gold. Unrealistic, but gold nonetheless. You can't expect comedies to be very realistic or professional.

I do have to disagree with you about the Dave Skylark character though! I think his character was fucking flawless and perfect for the movie and if they made 10 more movies revolving around him I'd watch all of them! :)

Overall I enjoyed the movie enough to watch it twice!

SIM-1550131 - December 28, 2014, 1:30 pm

I thought it was a good movie, maybe abit to much spoofed up or over the top, you could also tell what was going to happen in the film which was a bit of a let down.

But overall definitely worth watching

It was okay but at the same time kind of dumb. The whole "hacking bomb threat" thing was just a publicity stunt in my opinion, felt like they were just trying to get a few more bucks but actually the box office says they went away average at what they expected so it must not have worked.
