Thread: Returning to Normal

Omniscient - January 2, 2015, 12:06 pm

So happy the Holiday Season is finally over. From Thanksgiving to New Years life just seems so disruptive. Between planning, family events, Xmas shopping, family visits, entertaining guests, holiday parties, cooking, and just all the stuff involved in the holidays it seems that it's near impossible to stay on top of work let alone accomplish anything.

As much as I enjoy the Holidays with my family the falling behind on HF work is very stressful.

But as of today I can safely say I'm resuming my normal work schedule with no serious interruptions for the next few months. Which means more can get done.

First step is to simply catch up on orders, upgrade approvals, and stickies. Next I'll look into the XMPP and fix a few things including the postbit link feature. Then it's onto Gauth. And as usual let's hope any site drama is minimal and we avoid more disruptions to our daily routine.

Thanks everyone and off to work I go.

Cool. I just noticed the trademark symbol by the little dude on our logo. Is it really trademarked?

No, however Omniscient holds copyright ownership. They do not need to be a registered trademark.

Wirt - January 2, 2015, 12:56 pm

Hey Omni, if you could, please let me know when you are caught up on everything. I recently got some money for Christmas and want to donate a little bit of it, but I don't want to bother you until you get caught up with all this work you have to do.

I hope you had a fantastic Christmas and New Year! :)

WRX - January 2, 2015, 12:57 pm

I feel the same way Omni. This holiday season just caused stress for me as I just got off training status. Adjusting to real life was hard enough already.

Memento_Vivere - January 2, 2015, 12:58 pm

People like to inform Omniscient that they donated and I don't think Omniscient minds knowing either.
