Thread: Sanctum || The Return of Intelligence & Security || Recruiting

Tokyo ? - January 9, 2015, 10:14 am

Sanctum | Unofficial Intelligence, Intimidation, and Identity.

About Sanctum was formed in 2014 around the end of summer, with one goal in mind, and that was to be one of the best unofficial groups to ever have hit HackForums. The group was later disbanded due to issues with an official group here on the forum and members attacking one another. Sanctum was working on a variety of projects, and also was working on mainly intelligence and intimidation throughout social media and other internet traffic sites. I am now starting the relaunch of the group and my goals are even greater this time, meaning the people I recruit will also have to be just as passionate about intelligence and online shinnanigans as I am.

Requirements Sanctum never had any requirements, we preferred for users to apply only if they are interested in our designated topic and thought that they would fit in well with the group. So again, there will be no set requirements to join

Recruitment Application Seeing as we prefer to keep our applicants able to present and express their skill as much as possible, there will also be no set application format. So please be creative with how you apply, applications will be reviewed daily. Please await a PM of acceptance.

Tokyo ? - January 10, 2015, 1:22 pm

Thread has been updated, looking for some new recruits.

Not sure how you would challenge the group, seeing as its basically going to be run as a third party security firm. "Challenges" will be jobs that we are given by clients. I'm more than happy to have you on the team if you have skills to represent us with, however I would rather not waste the teams time doing challenges with no reward. Hopefully we will be getting paid for our work, as some of us members did the last time Sanctum was up and running.

Yes hello Obli, I remember you as well. ?

Music taste shouldn't affect whether or not people apply, rather childish in my opinion if it does.

Otis???????????????? - January 11, 2015, 9:16 am

Are we able to PM you the application rather than posting it?

Tokyo ? - January 11, 2015, 10:19 pm

Let me emphasize the fact that Sanctum is not a group that is taking students. We are looking for users who are already experienced in their field and can contribute their skills of intelligence work or security and hacking towards the group. So for those PM'ing me about joining as a student, I am sorry but this is not what we are looking for at this time.

Knowing that you are the only person in your group I don't think any L33T or UB3R is interested in entering, and certainly not with a leader that posts mostly in the lounge/gamers lounge and has an average of 5.4 useless posts per day.

Anyways thrashing you is not productive so I'm going to stop, good luck with your group?

Hello Ego, I would first like to start off by saying I do not have very much experience with hacking and coding but I do know a lot about computers and how things work. I would also like to say I am very passionate and determined to learn everything I can that has to do with computers, hacking, and coding. I recently have been trying to teach myself how to code through books and online sites/articles. Also in the next 2 weeks I start college which I'm going to take a path through computer security and networking so like I said I'm very determined and passionate about this. I signed up for hack forums not too long ago but I have been on every day since I did and really like these forums. I would like to find a group I could join to help me get better at this basically mentor me and I will help with whatever is needed. I am a very fast learner. So basically this is my application and I hope to hear back from you.

Thanks, Nately

I've been on HackForums since April, since then I've learned most of the things I know today. Not all from HackForums, in-fact most things I learned are from YouTube. I've owned multiple very popular Minecraft servers (over 40 players constantly online) in the past. I think I'd fit well in the group, thanks :)

This group isn't really about marketing either.. we do provide services and products, but we are involved in larger operations than that.

Ergo - January 19, 2015, 3:08 pm

Skillset:

SQLi (like any skid can) (incl. Union, Time, General Time, etc etc), XSS (obviously. Who can't?), CSRF, LFI, LFD, RFI, Buffer Overflows (incl. Heap BoF, Stack BoF, and bypassing SEH) for code execution, Format String Exploitation (incl. Direct Parameter Access), Race Conditions, Integer Overflows and Underflows, ASLR Bypass, CRLF Exploitation, Coldfusion Exploitation (like anybody can), Windows Dynamic Link Library Search Order Exploitation, RFID Exploitation, Linux Privilege Escalation, Windows Privilege Escalation, MITM Attacks (incl. DNS hijacking and ARP Cache Poisoning, Network Forensics, Hardware Forensics and Anti-Forensics (incl. File Recovery), Return Oriented Programming, Software Reverse Engineering, POODLE SSL Exploitation, Shellshock Exploitation. However, obviously just that alone is not enough, what I should also list are the programming languages I use: C, C++, ASM (Intel Syntax) (and by extension, my own shellcode), Python, PHP, Pascal, SQL.

What makes me stand out from the rest:

Most people here see breaking into a system as simply exploiting vulnerabilities in web applications, however I understand that there are far more options than just using website exploitation to get into a server. I, personally, prefer to work with the low-level side of programs, for example the server itself. If the server itself is insecure, the web application does not need to be exploited.

A lot of people here have false misconceptions on what can and can't be done, simply because some other person on the forum says it can't be done (for example, hacking someone after getting their IP, or hacking someone through skype (did some reverse engineering on MSNP24 recently and saw how vastly insecure it is)). I don't want these misconceptions to be continually fed to newcomers who want to learn.

Why do I want to join?

I want to get involved with a group like yours, I've wanted to for a very long time. And I've finally found one. An opportunity like this is once in a million (for me atleast) and I want to be a part of it.

About Me:

I'm 17, going to College soon for a Computer Science degree. I love computers, I build them from time to time as a hobby. I enjoy video games, and hacking. I started off as a black hat, became a white hat, and am now a gray hat, and a gray hat forever.

Why should we accept you:

You should accept me because I'm very active on HackForums. I'm a well trusted/respected member of the community as shown by my reputation. I've posted many help threads and am constantly helping in the hacking sections. You should also accept me because of my passion and devotion to a group like this. I can't tell you how long I've been looking for an opportunity like this.

You should also accept me because I'm a gray hat as well. I fit all of the requirements.

-----In what field(s) do your skills pertain to: -----

Programming, Can program pretty much anything you want. Cracking, can crack accounts to pretty much any website you want, Hacking, been hacking for a while though I just got into stressers recently.

-----Further elaborate on your skills and expertise: -----

I have been programming for several years now (around 7) after I started getting a little bored with programming I started getting into hacking (actually it's a funny story, my dad took away my computer because I got bad grades and he has his computer in the living room so I was going to use it, but he put a password on it so I couldn't, ended up hacking the computer and getting into his account and making a guest user account for me. So, I was like this is pretty cool!) After hacking, I didn't really have any one or thing to hack so next on my list was cracking, which I was exposed to since I got all my brazzers accounts from a site that cracked them. So Now my newest found expertise is cracking.

-----Can you provide proof of your claims: -----

Hacking:

Havn't hacked in a while, all my evidence was on a harddrive that I fucked up and all my files got lost.

Also I own 4 websites one of them being

#.com (a forum I made that brings hacking/cracking/programming into one forum and brings people that have the greyhat mentality together)

-----Why should we choose you over someone of similar skills: -----

You should choose me over someone of similar skills because I get the job done. I don't know how to do a lot of things, but computers is one of my favorite things to do, I've been using and learning about computers since I was seven years old. I've never been interested in video games or anything like that. My whole life has been dedicated to computers and joining a group with people that I can converse with and join a group that I really care about.

Not sure if using the same format for all groups you applied to is such a good idea, shows a sense of laziness and lack of determination.

Kromatik222 - January 21, 2015, 7:38 am

My take on hacking :

For one, I am seeking knowledge. If you know enough, money is no longer relevant. Ever since the days I was playing Empire Earth II, I always took knowledge over brute military strenght. And computers being my passion, I decided to seek knowledge in hacking.

Knowledge :

Some experience with Python and HTML, Metasploit, OpenSSL and linux command line.

Why do I want to join ? :

I want to learn, to listen to those who are better than me. I want to experience new things, and belong somewhere. Sounds cliché, I know, but without any instructions or goal of myself I am willing to join someone else's goal, also improving my skills and mindset.

Personality:

Quiet guy, I only say something if I feel like I'm bringing something new to the table, or my own opinion on the relevant topic. Hence I don't have many posts around here. Good managing skills (ex Tournament Manager EU side on Managrind)

Why me over anyone else ?

To be frank ? I don't really know. I am willing to dedicate my time and effort into doing what you guys do, like a young grasshopper. I want to devote myself to the same cause that you have, taking my time with everything there is to learn about hacking in general. I would make a great asset if you have some patience and time to spare on the side.
