

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Stable program to hold alot of bots?

Vaporizer - January 12, 2015, 7:00 pm

Where would i buy a stable botnet that holds X,XXX amount of bots? Thanks.

Masteritnow - January 12, 2015, 7:37 pm

I can get you a free http botnet but it is cracked but still just as good as the non cracked send pm your skype

Vaporizer - January 12, 2015, 9:08 pm

(Jan 12, 2015 08:37 PM)Masteritnow Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I can get you a free http botnet but it is cracked but still just as good as the non cracked send pm your skype
I'll pass up on that. Got the funds to purchase one. Still looking.

Last Resort - January 13, 2015, 1:11 am

I'd suggest a IRC or HTTP Botnet which is currently stable and has regular updates.

Seth01 - January 13, 2015, 7:58 am

Excelsior Http bot is capable of holding many bots. Look at my signature for more details.

Infected. - January 13, 2015, 7:59 am

I recommend setting an IRC with the latest patch to secure the server and follow tutorial where it un-limits the connections.

iamskid - January 13, 2015, 8:05 am

(Jan 13, 2015 08:59 AM)Infected. Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I recommend setting an IRC with the latest patch to secure the server and follow tutorial where it un-limits the connections.

IRC is trash. He will maybe be able to hold 20k at Dedicated server with 8-core while he can hold 100k at shitty dedicated using HTTP bot.

Infected. - January 13, 2015, 8:06 am

Urm, okay explain why my friend can hold near double 20k on his VPS on irc.

HIGH PAID FELLA - January 13, 2015, 11:02 am

If you are looking for a bot with very good stability look my signature.

xfinity - January 15, 2015, 3:49 am

You should look into purchasing yourself a copy of Andromeda or Kronos. Both not sold on this forum unfortunately.

FurfUksake - January 15, 2015, 11:27 am

It's a shame that this forum board has deteriorated to this... uneducated members with no interest in learning, making threads about the best software to buy and sellers replying to them recommending their own software, without any justification as to why their solution meets the clients specific requirements over and above the competition...

It's getting more and more embarrassing as each day passes.

(Jan 13, 2015 09:05 AM)darkstrike420 Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) IRC is trash. He will maybe be able to hold 20k at Dedicated server with 8-core while he can hold 100k at shitty dedicated using HTTP bot.

This is probably the only post in this thread so far that was formulated by something other than the desire to sell something or fuelled by idiocy.

jibber - January 15, 2015, 12:10 pm

I will go with kraken http or andromeda 2.09 to hold bots.

Btw yeah IRC is a bad choose for hold bots

Morgan Stanley - January 15, 2015, 12:33 pm

It depends on what tasks you need the botnet to perform.

IRC is going to give you assurance that your commands are being executed, you get real time responses to your commands, I like this because I feel more in control of the tasks being performed.

HTTP is probably going to be more stable depending on who makes it, you'll be able to hold a lot more bots and probably have more information about each one of your infected servers.

Kraken, Load, Andromeda 2.9(very expensive) are looking to be some of the best available HTTP bots on the market currently.