Do not - it's a bad idea. Try Forex on a practice account. Don't go for binary options.

Best to just shop around and see what suits you, took me a few years to find which type of trading is best for me.

I like to highly leveraged margin trades (5 - 30 min), though it's not always great because you cant really step away during a trade.

There's not much to it, it's basically the same as normal long/short trading, except you are using borrowed money to trade more shares than you can afford to trade normally.

It's generally known as "margin trading", though there are some other weird names people use.
