Thread: [\[SOLVED BY -Hyperion\] I ratted myself! BSOD when Uninstalling](#)

Victini - January 20, 2015, 6:43 am

I ratted myself... i am a fucking idiot for enabling the setting saying BSOD on imminent monitor... i am successfully connected to the rat and when i go to uninstall it with the imminent monitor, it gives me the blue screen of death... how do i fix this?

Try going into safe mode maybe and deleting the rat if you can find it. Other than that who knows. Just wipe your computer and reinstall your os.

blue screen may suggest hard ware issues, I'd run some test's also to check everythings good inside.

[\[BHCPU\]- Removing Malware Instructions](#) by -Hyperion

do all of this and if you still have problems I will personally take a look at it.

Boot up into safemode, then remove it from startup through msconfig then reboot and it shouldn't startup. Then delete the file once it's removed.

I believe there is an uninstall setting on IM3. Try using that in the client.

Apparently I can't.

OP should go to AppData\Roaming\Imminent\ And try to delete everything there. If that does not work, run Malwarebytes. It should pick up this path and remove it.

or instead of guessing OP could use a proven method and follow my instructions
