

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Writers

Sobriety - January 22, 2015, 4:58 am

I'm currently finishing my website as I write this thread, and the last thing I'm in need of, is a team of competent writers. You must be willing to work whenever an assignment is given, and always work with a given deadline. You must have an eye for details, and always write professionally with correct grammar. The assignments will typically be essays, research and proofreading.

Fill out the form below, and you will be notified if chosen.

Code Age:

Experience Writing:

Timezone:

Country of birth:

Skype:

Other skills:

DepLexOr - January 22, 2015, 5:14 am

Age: 19

Experience Writing: I attained an A level in GCSE English at my College.

Timezone: GMT

Country of birth: England

Skype: weedman420421

Other skills: Nothing particularly relevant that would show my linguistic competence.

Sasaki Haise - January 22, 2015, 5:19 am

How much would you be paying your writers?

What type of content would we normally be writing about?

What's the website about?

How many people are you working with in a "team"?

Seems interesting enough, no other questions other than these atm.

Justin Timberlake - January 22, 2015, 5:29 am

I have the same questions as above, I'll most likely apply afterwards.

Sobriety - January 22, 2015, 5:29 am

(Jan 22, 2015 06:19 AM)Sasaki Haise Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) How much would you be paying your writers?

What type of content would we normally be writing about?

What's the website about?

How many people are you working with in a "team"?

Seems interesting enough, no other questions other than these atm.

1) Depends on each assignment. I imagine the process being this - I send you the instruction sheets, you reply back with a price and ETA, which I will forward to the customer and await payment.

2) It can be anything from fiction to analyzing a speech.

3) The website is like every writing service here on HF. However, instead of doing business here, I have created a website targeting students in my country. I would link you the site, but you wouldn't understand anything from it.

4) I have yet to choose the first person. In the beginning I imagine having 2, maybe 3, writers whom I'll contact over Skype when a job is available.

Sasaki Haise - January 22, 2015, 5:33 am

(Jan 22, 2015 06:29 AM)Dr. Disco Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) 1) Depends on each assignment. I imagine the process being this - I send you the instruction sheets, you reply back with a price and ETA, which I will forward to the customer and await payment.

2) It can be anything from fiction to analyzing a speech.

3) The website is like every writing service here on HF. However, instead of doing business here, I have created a website targeting students in my country. I would link you the site, but you wouldn't understand anything from it.

4) I have yet to choose the first person. In the beginning I imagine having 2, maybe 3, writers whom I'll contact over Skype when a job is available.

So it's a foreign site? What are the payment methods, how much approx would you be charging for assignments, like a rough estimate. What cut are you getting out of per assignment. And how regularly can you guarantee work/traffic?

Justin Timberlake - January 22, 2015, 5:34 am

Age: 16

Experience Writing: Honors classes throughout my school career, English honor society, HF News (check sig)

Timezone: GMT-6:00

Country of birth: USA

Skype: pm me if I get chosen

Other skills: Multilingual I guess?

Sobriety - January 22, 2015, 5:46 am

(Jan 22, 2015 06:33 AM)Sasaki Haise Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) So it's a foreign site? What are the payment methods, how much approx would you be charging for assignments, like a rough estimate. What cut are you getting out of per assignment. And how regularly can you guarantee work/traffic?

Yes, that is correct. Payment methods will be either PayPal or Bitcoins, depends on the customer. Every assignment will bring you atleast $20 USD. I'm adding my cut on top of your quote, and if I do not like you price, I'll make an counteroffer. I have no estimate on how much work there will be, as it is an untested market and there is nothing similar in my country - yet.

DepLexOr - January 22, 2015, 5:54 am

(Jan 22, 2015 06:46 AM)Dr. Disco Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Yes, that is correct. Payment methods will be either PayPal or Bitcoins, depends on the customer. Every assignment will bring you atleast $20 USD. I'm adding my cut on top of your quote, and if I do not like you price, I'll make an counteroffer. I have no estimate on how much work there will be, as it is an untested market and there is nothing similar in my country - yet.

Sounds good Dr.

I'm looking forward to see who's accepted.

Sasaki Haise - January 22, 2015, 6:04 am

It's a foreign site and we'll be writing the essays in English I assume? What level of writing would these assignments be? (H.S? Undergrad? Grad?) And when I mean traffic I meant what are the estimate numbers looking like of people going to use the service?

Sobriety - January 22, 2015, 6:59 am

(Jan 22, 2015 07:04 AM)Sasaki Haise Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) It's a foreign site and we'll be writing the essays in English I assume? What level of writing would these assignments be? (H.S? Undergrad? Grad?) And when I mean traffic I meant what are the estimate numbers looking like of people going to use the service?

Yes, everything must be written in perfect English. I aim to find writers competent enough to write on University-level (Grad. school.), but at the same time be able to write on H.S. level.

Right now is the time where ALOT of "Undergrads" in my country is given a large assignment, and I'll be targeting them to begin with. Hopefully a few of these will be ordered. I cannot give you any reasonable estimate number, sorry.

NZT - January 22, 2015, 10:12 am

Thanks for getting in touch with my via my service thread. I've sent you a PM.

The Red Skull - January 22, 2015, 12:01 pm

Age: 16

Experience Writing: High school AP /Gifted student English 2

Timezone: EST

Country of birth: United States

Skype: sfmgwillw

Other skills: I know Java and HTML. I am currently working on learning C++.

Freerunning - January 23, 2015, 1:37 am

Age: 22

Experience Writing: 4 years

Timezone: UTC+08:00

Country of birth: Philippines

Skype: blademaster556

Other skills: Web development

Actually my girlfriend do the writing she's a journalist and I do the coding.

Sobriety - January 23, 2015, 5:24 am

I thank you all for your interest. I have yet to choose, so feel free to leave an application.

Deoxys - January 23, 2015, 6:34 am

Age:21

Experience Writing:Professional English writing in my college

Timezone:+530

Country of birth:India

Skype:pokemon.deoxys

Other skills:Fast Typing,Hardworking,HTML,CSS and PHP.

Sobriety - January 24, 2015, 4:52 am

(Jan 23, 2015 07:34 AM)Deoxys Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Age:21

Experience Writing:Professional English writing in my college

Timezone:+530

Country of birth:India

Skype:pokemon.deoxys

Other skills:Fast Typing,Hardworking,HTML,CSS and PHP.

What do you think your chances are, when you don't bother punctuating correctly?

crazyinthedunya - January 24, 2015, 6:40 am

Age: 18

Experience Writing: Attained an A grade in English.

Timezone: GMT

Country of birth: England

Skype: PM me for it if I'm required.

Other skills: Tend to get tasks completed quickly, Python.

Shxtdown - January 24, 2015, 6:50 am

Age: 17

Experience Writing: A* in my GCSE and currently taking it as an A Level subject.

Here's some of what I've written:

Quote:I gripped my blade and slowly removed it from it's sheath; I could sense danger approaching. I should have taken more caution when approaching the Wilderness; I had heard of the battles that had destroyed this city. I turned to my left, expecting an attack although I saw nothing but the misty fog that roamed the ditches of this land. Some say the fog is the spirits of the dead that had deceased here, that somehow they seeked vengeance and would take it out on those who entered; they were the guardians of the Wilderness.

All at once I heard a terrifying shriek from behind me, the spot I stood just a minute ago. I span round to face my enemy, it was an Archer. They were popular around Varrock, I had been expecting an attack; however this would not work in my favour - I was a mere melee warrior and I could not reach his arrows. There was only one thing I could do, take the battle to him.

I ran towards the Archer at full pelt, I could see the fear in his eyes, he did not expect this. I had been waiting for this moment for a long time, my first taste of blood which would make me a true warrior. I tried to stop my heartbeat, a common trick among experienced Warriors; it makes aim and precision better. I was only a few paces away, I had to think fast; I grabbed my Abyssal Whip from my side and held it firmly. I came closer to the archer, confident, only to find the Archer had something called a 'Dark Bow' one of the most deadliest weapons an Archer could hold.

There was no denying the fear that tugged my insides, but I pushed it away; this was what I was born for... I was a warrior of the Wilderness. Someone would die tonight, but not me; I would make sure the Archer perished in his own arrows.

Quote:It had been over a thousand years since the Battle of the Gods, although its memories lingered throughout the city Septimus called home, Kryanite. The remains of the houses that perished in the Dragon fire of the battle were still among the other buildings in the city; but none in the village had the courage to approach them, afraid that it might spark up an old 'force' as they liked to call it. Septimus felt a surge of pity build up inside him, they were unaware of the harsh danger that was approaching them, and they were – in the eyes of Septimus - delaying their own fate. As the rain droplets hit the face of Septimus he spun around, almost expecting danger, although saw nothing but the deserted streets around him. He looked up as the sky rumbled, almost as if warning all those who walked among this planet of what was coming. It had begun; the Old Gods were rising...

Chapter One: Sticks & Stones

'Septimus, for the last time... get up!' the voice of a woman echoed throughout the inn, waking up all those in the building. Septimus groaned, he had expected some peace on a Saturday morning; although unfortunately didn't find it. He awoke in the midst of the calls, too tired to return a shout however forced himself to open his eyes. At once he felt himself blinded by the harsh sunlight coming through the window to the left of his room, regretting that he had opened his eyes, he clambered out of bed.

Septimus was a scrawny boy with short cut, jet black hair that was raised at the front, almost like a wave that so many would point out to Septimus' annoyance, he had attempted to flatten it many times but came to the conclusion that it was simply held frozen in that position. He attempted to keep himself awake, but to no success – his eyes were half open although Septimus saw nothing, still blinded by his tiredness. He was surprised he was still standing, and just as that thought entered his mind he found himself tumbling around his room and heard the clatter of the items he was knocking down, in his attempt to stay awake; he became unaware of his surroundings.

It was a small room, comparable to a large wardrobe, although to Septimus it was home & therefore nothing could be better. To the corner of the room, furthest away from the door lay a mattress where Septimus slept, most felt it was uncomfortable although Septimus did not take it for granted & greeted it with great enthusiasm every night after a long journey to the blacksmiths. To the left of it lay what was the remains of a broken wardrobe, however the Rail still stood, therefore Septimus deemed it worthy to its job & hung his clothes (well, he didn't own much apart from two ragged shirts & a pair of worn out jeans but he did it all the same) every day, trying to remember the last time he had washed them.

On the walls hung framed pictures of Septimus's own artwork, and for a second Septimus admired his designs, most were drawings of buildings & inventions that Septimus had dreamed of creating as a young child. As he stood there lingering on his dreams that he never saw through, he suddenly remembered why he had awoken.

"Okay, okay! I'm coming" called Septimus down the long flight of stairs, and to his relief the shouts stopped, although what followed was worse.

"Oi! 'oo the bloody 'ell do you think you ar'? This inn dun' just belong to you lot, so shut ya blimmin traps!" trailed the angry voice of Septimus' neighbour, who Septimus had never seen although assumed him to be a big man who wouldn't flinch at the first hint of an argument & he was proved correct when his mother's voice responded.

"Are you talking to me you big fat oaf? Don't make me come up there!"

Septimus groaned, wishing that he had woke up at the first call that his mother had given, because he was sure this argument would last for at least another hour or so. He shut his bedroom door & lay on his bed; going back to the thoughts of his young childhood dream & wondered if it was still a possibility. Losing track of time in his thoughts he did not hear the loud thuds of his mother coming up the stairs, until the door slammed open & in his fright, Septimus shot out of bed, trying to make the impression that he was dressed & was simply waiting for the argument to cease so he could leave, although his mother saw past him (as always.)

"Septimus... please, for the last time. I'm doing this for your own good, would you like to get thrown off your apprenticeship?" asked his mother, Septimus was ready to retaliate in a pleading tone although decided against it; it wasn't best to question his own mother when she was angry.

"Ugh, alright... I'm going. I don't see the point though, Vladimir hates my guts – I'm almost a hundred percent sure I won't get the job" said Septimus, awaiting a reply.

Vladimir was a big man, one of the most highly respected blacksmiths in the county & most would have seen Septimus to be lucky to have landed an apprenticeship with him, although Septimus would be inclined to disagree. Vladimir was a perfectionist, and not a great teacher at that either; he expected Septimus to make swords without teaching him the ways & would punish him severely if he made a mistake (not that Septimus told anyone, he did not want to worry his family.) He almost wished that he wouldn't get the apprenticeship, in fear of becoming like Vladimir himself – however he didn't need to wish, Septimus thought to himself, he was very likely to have failed the apprenticeship because although Vladimir did not know it, most of the 'work' Septimus had done whilst under his apprenticeship was bought from another county blacksmith, and Vladimir was likely to find out sooner or later.

"He took on your four brothers! Now stop complaining and get out the door, before the innkeeper throws me out for strangling you!"

Timezone: GMT + 0

Country of birth: United Kingdom

Skype: provectus.arts

Other skills: Graphics Design, Programming (HTML, PHP, SQL, Java, JS, Ruby, Python), Website Development

Sobriety - January 25, 2015, 5:46 am

One has been chosen. I have yet to decide about many of you.

David Tennant - January 25, 2015, 10:44 am

Age: 20

Experience Writing: No formal experience, I just write for fun and have an adequate understanding of how the English language works.

Timezone: Eastern

Country of birth: Canada

Skype: Currently do not have a Skype but if chosen I will set one up. I primarily use jabber/xmpp

Other skills: Some graphic design, programming (some of all the following - HTML, PHP, SQL, Java and JavaScript, Python). I can advertise and bring attention to your website as well.

I'm not expecting to be chosen as there are so many better people for the position, but if you're ever short-staffed, I'm always bored.

G???????f????s? - January 25, 2015, 10:46 am

Age: 17

Experience Writing: I write stories for all of my friends and used to blog.

Timezone: Pacific

Country of birth: Why does matter

Skype: PM please.

Other skills: I code html and 5 other languages.

STR™ - January 25, 2015, 10:47 am

Age: 28

Experience Writing: Yes experienced

Timezone: IST

Country of birth: India

Skype: will pm you once selected

Other skills: Business Skills

Sobriety - January 26, 2015, 3:37 am

Keep applying peeps. Still have yet to choose another writer!

Maze - January 26, 2015, 3:42 am

Interesting..

Age: 20

Experience Writing: Tested in the top 2% of my state in Advanced English

Timezone: GMT+10

Country of birth: Australia

Skype: PM me for Skype.

Other skills: I am currently studying Commerce and Law at University, which may potentially aid future assignments.

shaneT_T - February 5, 2015, 12:52 pm

Age: 17

Experience Writing: AP English program in my school for the last three years.

Timezone: CST (Central Standard Time)

Country of birth: USA (United States of America)

Skype: boneshane1212

Other skills: Going to go to college to major in business management and computer science.