- Reason:

Who soup is an increadably HQ member who posts high quality threads daily. Not only did he pioneer the sales of physical items on this forum he did so doing food items! From the reviews of his threads as well as his repuataion (which he has no negitives) it seems as if customers are extremely satisfied with his products as well as his kindness to other members; He must be extremely trusted as well to ship out physical items and be entrusted with users personal information which there has never been an issue with. I truely believe that he is deserving of the MOTM award as I have not met a member who has a kinder heart and a passion for business like he does; he will also go to great lengths to help anyone who is in need of help.

Reason: Crypto™ has been an outstanding member of the Hack Forums community for quite some time. He has always been helpful to the members who have asked for his assistance and has always strove to be one of Hack Forums high quality members. Crypto™ has worked in many groups and teams around the site including the Omnicoin team (which he was a leader of) and without his hard work and efforts, the Omnicoin could not be possible. As you can see, he has created several high quality tutorials, suggestions, and threads. I have linked the ones from January above, but I encourage you to check out his profile and see the many contributions he has made since joining Hack Forums, they are all quite remarkable. I believe Crypto™ deserves Member of the Month for January 2015 because of his contributions are on a level that most members would strive to be on. I hope you take this into consideration when choosing which member to put into the polls this month and for all members to consider when voting in the poll. Thanks.
