

Forum: Hack Forums

Thread: Ebook Subject

Linux™ - January 28, 2015, 6:08 am

Greetings hackforums. So before I launch my ebook I was wondering the following.

My ebook will contain information about doxing, yes I know there are tons of doxing ebooks, but this one will include everything I've ever seen, detracing, and also cover how bad guys seize your accounts, and how to secure yourself.

However a few methods that will be discussed in the book is a look at how attackers would social engineer your account, and how you can secure yourself from it. How to avoid getting ISP doxed, and facts about it, and also how to avoid spear phishing, and how it works so the user can better understand it, and how to avoid it. How to remove RAT's, and how to trace RAT's, as well as a full guide on RAT's.

But most of it would also be in a dialogue where it's written like an actual book, and not a guide on how to do said attacks.

Best regards. -BlackArch

Roger Waters - January 28, 2015, 8:35 am

Are you asking if this is allowed or are you asking if people would be interested in it?

SwimmingPool - January 28, 2015, 9:06 am

Yeah, I think that would be allowed.

Emylbus - January 28, 2015, 11:26 am

If your book discusses how to phish, if it discusses how to defraud companies, or anything else that is disallowed by our Disallowed BlackHat Activity Help Document or any other help doc then you cannot distribute or advertise the ebook here.

If you are, for example, explaining how to phish a user and then adding a section afterwards on how to not be phished yourself, you're still discussing how to phish so the entire book would not be allowed.

Without seeing the book, we couldn't give you a much better answer than that. Here's the test: If you were to publish the ebook as a thread, if any part of it would violate any HF rule then the ebook is not allowed on HF.